FLOODED — Drivers on Highway 101 today were going nowhere as their cars hit the high waters near Greenbrae. The latest of the winter's heavy storms brought high waters, mudslides and power failures throughout Marin and Southern Sonoma counties. (See also photos, page 17.)

Soggy Marin Hit By Savage Storm

Wind-Whipped Rain Causes New Floods

By MARY LEYDECKER

A violent, new storm today brought heavy, wind-whipped rains to already soggy Marin and Southern Sonoma counties, causing deep flooding and more mudslides.

The damage did not seem as dramatic in many cases as that in last week's storm, when several houses were destroyed, but it was much more widespread and pervasive.

Sections hit hard by rains last week, such as Tamalpais Valley, were eerily quiet today as residents either left their homes or watched from their windows as waters lapped at their houses.

Streets were flooded, cars stalled, school buses halted, trees down and the power was out in many sections of the county.

Virtually every thoroughfare in Marin was jammed bumper-to-bumper throughout the morning as residents attempted to get to work or evacuate their houses.

In Marinview, where one home was destroyed last week, frightened homeowners awakened today to find a heavy water flow still coming down from a muddy hill behind their residences.

At least two Marinview husbands said they were sending their families to live with relatives in the East until the situation improved.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors, meanwhile, today declared the county a local emergency area, the first step in obtaining outside assistance, and asked that Marin be declared an emergency loan area by the Small Business Administration.

Flooding was widespread in Novato, with the deepest waters in the Nave Gardens section, where four feet of water lapped at foundations. South Novato Boulevard, a main thoroughfare, was closed because of flooding.

The weatherman said there was an 80 per cent chance of more rain tonight, decreasing to 30 per cent tomorrow. Gusty winds were expected again. The downpour today was accompanied by winds of up to 75 miles per hour on Mount Tamalpais.

Commuters on Highway 101 ran into trouble this morning beginning at the Marin-Sonoma county line, where San Antonio Creek overflowed, sending a foot and a half of water across the freeway.

Drivers, allowed through one or two at a time at a maximum speed of 5 miles per hour, experienced nearly an hour's wait and traffic backed up more than five miles north.

Farther south, traffic came to a standstill again near Californai Park Hill south of San Rafael because of more flooding.

The California Highway Patrol reported that four southbound and northbound lanes of Highway 101 were closed at 9:30 a.m., and traffic was trickling through the two remaining lanes on both sides.

Mudslides on Waldo Grade further complicated the traffic situation.

Conditions were no better on many less important thoroughfares. Flooding and slides again caused the closing of Shoreline Highway around Bolinas Lagoon, and Sir Francis Drake Boulevard had slides and high water in several sections.

There was extensive flooding

Hopes Soar For Peace In Vietnam

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

There were optimistic reports today from Saigon, Hanoi, Paris and Washington that peace in Vietnam once again was near, but the White House virtually ruled out any ceasefire agreement before President Nixon's second inauguration on Saturday.

Washington reports said earlier that Dr. Henry A. Kissinger might return to Paris as early as Wednesday and initial an agreement with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho on Friday, the eve of the inauguration. But presidential press secretary Ronald Ziegler said in Key Biscayne, Fla., that Kissinger would not return to Paris this week.

There were unconfirmed reports from Saigon that the cease-fire agreement might be initialed on Friday and that Nixon would make an announcement to the nation. Ziegler told reporters, "the President is not going to address the nation" on the subject of Vietnam this week."

Ziegler adamantly refused to discuss the current status of the negotiations, except to say that they still were in progress. Dip-

Resignation Of Hawkins Is Seen

By PAT PERRY

Wilber D. Hawkins, Tamalpais High School District superintendent, is expected to announce his resignation within the next few days from his $33,000-a-year job, it was learned last night.

Hawkins's action is seen in the wake of a stormy closed session of the district board last night in which a majority of trustees apparently wanted to fire the 42-year-old administrator.

Hawkins, who was hired in April 1970 after his predecessor Chester G. Carlisle, was relieved of his duties and reassigned to consultant work, refused today to comment on the closed session. He would neither confirm nor deny that resignation or dismissal was in the offing.

No confirmation of the decision was volunteered by Trustees Robert M. Corlett or Jerrold M. Ladar when they emerged from the private session after 10 o'clock last night, and Trustees Bette Wallace, Frank Miller and David D. Ring left immediately after the closed meeting.

But reporters who waited outside the closed session were unable to avoid overhearing the raised voices of trustees and Hawkins.

WILBER D. HAWKINS
On way out?

It appeared that Corlett, Ladar and Mrs. Wallace favored firing Hawkins for "breach of contract." The original purpose of the closed session was semi-annual evaluation of Hawkins's performance of his duties.

A major point at issue was Hawkins's authorization to spend district funds to furnish and remodel the Tamalpais High School educational leader's office for more than $5,000 without board approval.

Hawkins apparently attempted to bargain with trustees once the decision to fire him seemed apparent. He suggested he be allowed to resign, and be paid $50,000, "a sum equivalent to half my remaining contract."

Development Fund Hiked $4 Million

By NELS JOHNSON

The San Rafael City Council, reacting to a county legal challenge, last night hiked the financial scope of city redevelopment plans by $4 million. (Other San Rafael City Council stories, page 28.)

Improvements under redevelopment, which the city previously had agreed to limit to a maximum of $6 million through tax incremental financing over a seven-year period, will be set at a $10 million lid over 10 years, councilmen agreed.

The move came in the wake of a county suit-filed last Friday on authority of supervisor chairman Arnold M. Baptiste — which claims the city's environmental impact report on redevelopment does not conform to state law. Baptiste was expected today to ask the board for ratification of his action.

The council, meanwhile, directed redevelopment consultant Steven Goldfarb to gird for the court battle. Goldfarb estimated the suit might cost the city up to $35,000 to fight and

Dogs Barked Novato Flood Alarm

By FRANK FARRARA

Barking dogs sent out the alarm in predawn hours today as floodwaters four to five feet deep lapped at the edges of homes in the South Novato Boulevard section of Novato.

Rescue crews patrolled numerous area streets in rowboats as they carried 25 to 30 residents to safety at Nave Gardens and the Palm Lane area.

Bunny Garcia of 84 Palm Lane, lying on a cot at the American Red Cross evacuation center at the Novato Community House, credited her small dog, Scrappy, with awakening her as waters neared the entrance of her mobile home.

"About 5 o'clock, he started barking and running to the door," she said. "I put on the light and the water was within six inches of coming in."

At about 5:45 a.m. the rescuers came and "asked if we wanted to be evacuated," she said. She recently had back surgery and had to be carried out, she said.

Karen Windell of 20 Lauren Avenue said her dog, Ruhig, a large German shepherd, awakened her about 4:30 a.m. when the laundry room became flooded.

The water was almost up to the porch and she stuffed towels in the doorway, she said. "The trash can floated and (so did) the wheelbarrow, which had been by the porch."

She said she waited awhile and then at 6 a.m., she and her three children, Sammy, 10, Jimmy, 9, and Jason, 7, decided to leave in a police boat.

The rainfall was accompanied by winds near 60 miles an hour which upended trees and tore tiles from roofs at Hamilton Air Force Base.

Gerner Park, the Novato Creek demonstration project, was inundated at Seventh Street with waters swirling at the tops of small trees in the park and covering the benches.

Courier said about 60 persons, including policemen and firemen, were involved in the rescue operations.

Air Strikes End Over The North

SAIGON (UPI) — The United States turned the full force of its air power against Communist forces below the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) today but U.S. warplanes were ordered to continue escort flights for manned reconnaissance planes over North Vietnam.

American military spokesmen said the escort fighters were ordered to bomb or attack any Commmunist planes or antiaircraft gun firing on the reconnaissance planes.

About 1,000 U.S. B52 bombers and jet fighter-bombers based in southeast Asia and Guam obeyed President Nixon's orders to end raids on North Vietnam. But they continued to hit targets in Laos, South Vietnam and Cambodia.

The tempo of ground fighting in South Vietnam increased, but military spokesmen reported no attempts by either government or Communist troops to grab territory in anticipation of a cease-fire.

Officials expect such a land-grabbing offensive by both sides about the time of the signing of a peace agreement, but the Saigon high command reported today that no such attacks have yet been made.

U.S. spokesmen confirmed the bombing ended at 10 p.m. Hanoi time Monday night. In air action over the south, military authorities said, two U.S. Army crewmen were wounded slightly when Communist gunners shot down their helicopter Monday 40 miles northwest of Saigon.

As the bombing halt took effect, Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., a special White House emissary, arrived in Saigon and conferred for two hours and 35 minutes with President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Government sources said Haig apparently was sent to Saigon to seek Thieu's acceptance of a revised cease-fire.

U.S. aircraft that bombed North Vietnam until the Nixon order Monday to stop concentrating today on the Ho Chi Minh supply trail through Laos, military sources said.

At Andersen AFB on Guam, military sources said more than 30 B52s returned from Vietnam missions late today while at least that many or more took off on new missions.

The sources said the air war over the north, renewed last April 6 and ended Monday, lasted 285 days and totaled at least 60,017 sorties. A sortie is one flight by one plane.

In the ground war, the Saigon command said, Vietnamese casualties on both the Communist and Saigon sides were heavy, as they have been for the nearly three months since Washington and Hanoi first announced tentative agreement on a cease-fire.

The heaviest fighting was reported near Vi Thanh, 100 miles southwest of Saigon in the Mekong Delta. The command reported 52 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese and 19 South Vietnamese killed in a battle Monday. Thirty-five Saigon infantrymen were reported wounded.

A MEMORIAL TO KING

Press Secretary May Leave Job

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Connie Stuart, Pat Nixon's staff director and press secretary, says she may be shopping around for another position soon.

Mrs. Stuart said that she has "no definite plans to go yet, but I think it's time for people to evaluate." She said that she had indicated to Mrs. Nixon that if "something good came along," I would take it."

Mrs. Stuart has held her $35,000-a-year post since October 1969, a record for her. Most of her other jobs, in public relations, were for two year hitches.

A Seven-Bill Program Against Airliner Piracy

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Republican Sen. Dennis Carpenter, a former FBI agent, has introduced legislation making it punishable by death to hijack an airliner which results in someone being killed.

The seven-bill program, developed by Attorney General Evelle Younger and the Senate Subcommittee on Civil Disorder, also proposes an additional tax of 50-cents per ticket on departing flights to finance a statewide airport security system.

Carpenter, of Newport Beach and a former Republican state chairman, estimated the new tax would produce $26 million a year.

One bill (SB59), authored personally by Carpenter, would make first degree "air piracy" automatic murder and punishable by death in the gas chamber if it resulted in someone being slain.

Under a separate bill, called for by Younger, first degree air piracy would be punishable by life imprisonment without possibility of parole.

Gasoline Rationing Is Doubted

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — "I don't think you are going to be able to stop people from driving automobiles in this city," said Mayor Sam Yorty.

"Silly and asinine," fumed a television newscaster on the air.

"Impossible. You can declare martial law or something like that, but can you imagine? It would be worse than prohibition," said the chairman of the state Air Resources Board, A. J. Haagen-Smit.

Southern California, which more than any other region of the United States has built a lifestyle on the private auto and the freeway, got the word from the federal government Monday.

The government intends—at least on paper—to clean up smog by forcing residents of a six-county area around Los Angeles to give up most driving. The weapon: gasoline rationing from May to October —the peak smog season— intended to force auto usage down as low as 18 per cent of the present level.

The reaction, in one way or another, could be summed up as: "They can't do that to us."

They probably won't.

Most officials said they doubted the rationing plan would ever become law.

It was announced here by William D. Ruckelshaus, head of the Environmental Protection Agency, who was legally required to come up with some plan that will clean up the air in the Los Angeles Basin to meet the standards set by the federal Clean Air Act of 1970.

Ruckelshaus said such a drastic cutback in vehicle use was the only way the standards could be met by the specified deadline—1977-but even he indicated the ration plan was a manuever, not a firm purpose of the government.

There was speculation that the drastic plan was a move to provoke public reaction, bringing pressure on Congress to extend the deadline for meeting clean air standards.

Money Supply

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Bomb Halt News

SAIGON (UPI) — Hanoi Radio announced the halt of American bombing of North Vietnam in a regular broadcast today, but warned that the United States had stopped the bombing before then resumed it.

"The American imperialists have many times stopped partially and entirely the bombing of North Vietnam, then resumed the bombing again more fiercely," the Vietnamese language broadcast said.

Marcos Backed

MANILA (UPI) — A presidential spokesman said today nearly complete results of a national opinion poll shows that Filipinos strongly oppose reopening parliament but favor giving "blanket authority" to President Ferdinand E. Marcos in running the country.

Presidential assistant Guillermo C. de Vega said results showed that 94 per cent of the 14 million persons who voted in citizens' assemblies oppose the scheduled reopening next Monday of the Senate and House of Representatives.

De Vega also said Filipinos strongly endorsed the policies Marcos began when he proclaimed a nationwide martial law last September.

Corona Deadlock

FAIRFIELD (UPI) — The judge ordered a deadlocked jury to try again today to decide whether Juan V. Corona killed 25 farm workers in the worst mass murder in U.S. history.

The jury of ten men and two women was told to make another effort to reach a verdict after reporting at a hearing held yesterday in state prison that it was stalemated eight to four on a verdict.

Superior Court Judge Richard Patton sent the panel back to Solano County Courthouse by bus from Vacaville State Prison, located 12 miles away, to conclude its fourth day of deliberations.

Night Curfews?

BELFAST (UPI) — Government sources warned today that continued bombing by extremists in Northern Ireland could lead to a night curfew and more army roadblocks.

The warning followed a weekend of bombing that killed three policemen and wounded 28 other persons, 25 of them patrons in a pub. Police spokesmen and sources blamed both the Irish Republican Army (IRA) and Protestant extremists for the explosions.

There were two more bombings Monday in the center of Belfast in one 5-minute period, but police said warnings were given in time for them to evacuate the area. There were no injuries.

Economic Controls

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon will get a one-year extension of his wage-price control powers, and if Congress should mandate stronger controls the White House probably would veto or ignore them, a key congressman said today.

House Banking Committee chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., said efforts would be made to force Nixon to clamp strong controls on the economy — particularly in the area of interest rates — but "I don't think you can force him to."

"He (Nixon) has no power to make laws, but we (Congress) have no power to enforce laws," Patman said in an interview.

Industrial Output

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal Reserve Board report shows that industrial production in 1972 increased 7 per cent over 1971, making its best showing in six years.

The board said yesterday that its index measuring output of the nation's factories, mines and utilities gained by a solid 0.8 per cent in December alone.

Not since 1966, when the increase was 9.2 per cent during an economic boom, has the nation's industry produced at such a clip, said a spokesman for the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

Industrial production usually increases 5 to 6 per cent each year.

10,000 Deaths

BERKELEY (AP) — A massive earthquake in the San Francisco Bay Area probably will not level any city but could cause up to 10,000 deaths, say two University of California professors who studied earthquake-ravaged Managua.

"We will not have a leveled city in San Francisco," architecture and design Profs. Henry J. Lagorio and Karl Steinbrugge told a news conference yesterday.

Of an estimated 400 high-rise area buildings, only "one or two per cent will collapse" with an estimated 10,000 persons killed, depending on the time of day, they said.

Britons Approve Market Move

LONDON (AP) — The first opinion poll published since Britain joined the Common Market Jan. 1 shows that most Britons believe the move will be good for the nation.

The poll by Opinion Research Center said attitudes among voters could be summarized as: "It will not be good for me in the short term because of prices, but it is a good thing for the country, and it will certainly be a good thing for our children."

Fire apparatus filled the corner of Boylston and Berkeley streets in Boston yesterday as firemen fought a five-alarm fire in a building housing both the Irish and Israeli consulates. Ridgeline House Plan Approved By San Anselmo City Planners

The San Anselmo Planning Commission last night approved plans for a house on an open ridgeline above Sleepy Hollow in spite of several neighbors who protested that the building would clash with their homes.

Builder Kurt Kissmann of San Rafael had asked the commission for final approval of a use permit for 234 Oak Springs Drive, a lot under the city's building moratorium. The city council previously had granted the permit provided that the planning commission check that his plans did not severely impair the view of the ridgeline.

Among protestors was Robert Thurmond of 238 Oak Springs Drive, who had a petition from 39 neighbors asking for more changes in Kissmann's design. Thurmond said that most signers were upset that the house was about 1,000 square feet in area, compared to homes of about 2,000 square feet nearby.

"Put it back in the moratorium where it should have been in the first place," he said, asking that the matter be returned to the city council so that the tentative use permit could be revoked.

He also asked that the city force Kissmann to combine three lots in the area into two so that the builder would have space for larger houses.

Attorney David Odom of Sausalito, representing Kissmann, answered that the house was the result of trying to compromise with the city, neighbors and the builder. "This is a smaller house than the one we want to build," he said, "but we couldn't build that one and still minimize the visual effect on the ridge."

He complained that the builder had met unsuccessfully for four hours with neighbors. "We could never come up with a plan that would satisfy the neighbors," he said.

Commissioner Duane Ragan told the Oak Springs group that if they want to keep Kissmann's lot open they should buy the land themselves. "The ridge is partially developed now, and it's not right that it not continue to be so," he said.

John H. Colteaux, commission chairman, urged protestors not to rehash old issues in the dispute which has gone on since October.

The final vote on approval was 5-1, with only Commissioner Daniel H. Goltz opposed. Newly appointed Commissioner Thomas Biesheuvel was absent.

In approving the plans, the commission also turned down Kissmann's request for a five-foot variance in the front yard setback.

Afterward, Thurmond said his neighborhood group would meet to discuss whether they would appeal the planning commission decision to the city council.

The San Anselmo Planning Commission also:

SUBDIVISION — Granted permission to John Komo of San Anselmo to subdivide a parcel at 156 and 166 Tunstead Avenue so that Komo can sell the lot to two buyers.

SEMINARY — Asked the city staff to arrange a future discussion with the San Francisco Theological Seminary about parking and delinquency problems in the area of the school's campus.

SHORELINE — Flood water closes Shoreline Highway at the Richardson Bay Bridge, cutting off access to the heliport. The Fireside Motel was barely high and dry, but the intersection in front was under several feet of water. A mudslide on the ramp to Highway 101 from Tamalpais Valley closed one lane and slowed traffic to a crawl.

Kean Relates Events Of Court Shoot-Out

By MARY LEYDECKER

SAN FRANCISCO — Independent-Journal photographer Jim Kean told in court yesterday his chilling story of how he became involved in the events of Aug. 7, 1970, and again showed his spectacular series of prize-winning photographs.

This time, however, the defendant in the murder-kidnapping case was not in court to hear Kean's calm testimony.

San Quentin convict Ruchell Magee, the sole survivor of three inmates who, along with an accomplice, made an abortive escape attempt from a Marin superior courtroom, is accused of murdering Judge Harold J. Haley.

His case formerly was tied to that of Angela Davis, acquitted last summer in San Jose of any involvement in the plot that left four persons dead.

Magee yesterday repeated his familiar courtroom interruptions, and after refusing to be quiet during the opening session, was removed to a nearby holding cell for the day.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Albert W. Harris Jr. then made an opening statement in which he said evidence during the trial would show that "Magee is guilty as charged of kidnapping and murder in the first degree."

He said Magee fired the shot gun blast which "dissolved" the judge's face and that either that shot or the one allegedly fired by another convict, William Christmas, killed the judge.

Kean, the first witness in a trial expected to last several weeks, told how he almost was forced to join three women jurors, the then Asst. Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas and Judge Haley as hostages.

As the captives were being led out of the Hall of Justice, Kean testified, Magee said to him, "C'mon, you're coming, too."

He fell into line with the group, being marched at gunpoint by the convicts, but the group's young accomplice, Jonathan Jackson, told Magee, "We don't want this Mxxxxx Fxxxxx. We've got enough."

The 17-year-old Jackson, who died a few minutes later, then turned to Kean, the witness said, and remarked with a smile, "You can come along if you want, but you might get killed."

Kean, who earlier had said he was told by the convicts to take all the pictures you want, we are the revolutionaries," said he then continued to take photos of the crime, which ended in a bloody shoot-out in a rental van.

The jury of six women and six men in Judge Morton Colvin's superior courtroom hearing the trial includes three black persons.

They and four alternate jurors are being sequestered in a hotel during the trial, which is being held in heavy security in the same courtroom where the Soledad Brothers were tried behind a bullet-proof glass shield.

Heritage Tree Hearing Slated

The Novato city council will hold a second public hearing tonight on a proposed heritage tree ordinance which would require a city permit to remove or alter significantly a heritage tree.

The council will meet at 8 p.m. at the Novato Community House and the hearing is scheduled for 10 p.m.

Civic Center Security Session Tomorrow

Marin County supervisors and judges will meet to discuss Civic Center Security at 4 p.m. tomorrow in Room 254 of the Hall of Justice.

Chairman Arnold M. Baptiste said he requested the meeting to iron out differences with the judges arising from the cost of courtroom security.

may go unresolved for as long as two years.

Councilmen last night said the city previously had put a $6 million lid on redevelopment improvements in an attempt to avert a litigation with the county over redevelopment.

The $6 million figure was an "undue restriction" that the council had no original intention of making on redevelopment improvements anyway, according to City Mgr. William J. Bielser.

"It was a gracious offer made in the spirit of compromise that has fallen by the wayside" in light of the county's legal action, Bielser said.

The county, as one of several conditions for lifting opposition to redevelopment, has requested that the city limit redevelopment bonds to $3.7 million, a figure nearly tripled by the city last night.

The council made no mention of what effect an additional $4 million would have on redevelopment projects, although the hike appears to open the door for possible expansion of proposed projects as well as inclusion of new projects not previously thought possible.

The council's action came after city fathers adopted an agreement with the San Rafael Board of Education that provides for return to the school system of tax revenue resulting from increases of up to 3.8 per cent of the assessed valuation in the redevelopment area.

The agreement as presented to the council last night lacked any mention of the $6 million lid over a seven-year period, an omission promptly challenged by Lawrence I. Kramer, president of the school board.

Kramer told that the lid would serve only to hamstring the redevelopment plans in light of the county's suit, argued that he didn't want to sign an open-ended agreement or blank check in the redevelopment matter.

"Our intent is not to hamstring the council . . . but we want a finite to the infinite," he said.

At his urging, the council agreed to float up to $10 million in redevelopment bonds through tax incremental financing over a ten-year period.

In addition to the revenue return and new bond scope and timetable, the agreement between the school system and the city prohibits the board from taking any legal action against redevelopment.

The agreement also provides that the pact will be reopened should a redevelopment project create a financial burden on the school system by sparking an increase or decrease in school children.

The board of education will consider adoption of the agreement in a special meeting scheduled for 7:30 p.m. today.

New Storm Hits Hard In Marin

of streets and roads in Southern Marin. Miller Avenue was closed at Camino Alto, and many cross streets were impassable. The southern entrance to Mill Valley, via Shoreline Highway, was blocked by water and mud.

Central Marin also was widely flooded, with Fourth Street in San Rafael the only major street in the city on which traffic was moving at times today. Corte Madera and Larkspur also reported heavy flooding.

In Fairfax, a huge slide blocked Tamalpais Road and threatened houses. At least one car was caught in the slide.

Many businesses were flooded, and in San Rafael's auto row along Francisco Boulevard, water lapped up to the headlight level of new cars.

Sheriff's deputies, trying to take a rape victim to Marin General Hospital about 5:30 a.m. today, found Bon Air Road impassable. They then headed to Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael, where they were forced to try to locate a doctor to examine the woman since Kaiser doctors refused to, deputies said.

In West Marin, the Seadrift area was cut off by rain water combined with a high tide, and downtown Bolinas was inundated with about a foot of water. Most businessmen kept water out of their stores by sandbagging during the early morning hours.

Water rationing continued in Bolinas, where last week's storm knocked out major lines into the community from the Arroyo Honda dam. The water district's large tank was empty and four smaller tanks were being used today.

Bolinas School was closed, as were all schools in the Shoreline Unified School District with flooding reported in Bloomfield, Valley Ford and Marshall and slides in other areas.

Novato schools were open but school buses didn't make morning runs on the advice of police.

The Corte Madera Creek flood control channel was reported working fine as far as it is completed upstream, but there was two feet of water reported in some neighbors' yards in the creek area.

The Pacific Gas and Electric Co. reported that power was out in sections of Mill Valley, San Rafael, Sausalito, Tiburon, Belvedere and Woodacre during the early morning hours but had no estimate of the number of homes affected.

In San Rafael, 3.27 inches of rain had fallen in the 24 hours ending at noon today. The latest storm brought the seasonal total in San Rafael to 35.60, more than double the seasonal average at this date.

Other rainfall figures recorded in a 24-hour-period ending at 8 a.m. today included Bolinas, 2.55 inches; Sausalito, 2.1 inches; Novato, 3.5 inches; Woodacre, 3.5 inches; Ross, 3.48 inches; San Anselmo, 3.2 inches, and Petaluma, 2.06 inches.

Elsewhere in Northern California, the Russian River was at flood stage near Healdsburg and at the Guerneville Bridge. San Francisco Airport was forced to operate on emergency power before dawn because of a power failure.

The Bayshore Freeway also was closed for a time, snarling morning commuter traffic.

HAWKINS

the reporters overheard Hawkins say.

(Carlisle, relieved of his duties in August 1969 for an alleged lack of leadership, was reassigned to a trustee consultant post, retaining his salary of $27,500 through the life of his contract to June 30, 1970.)

Hawkins evidently felt it would be difficult for him to find comparable employment if it were known he had been dismissed, and could rely only on references from Ring and Miller, his only apparent supporters on the board.

Trustees, too, apparently were concerned at the effect of dismissal on Hawkins' career, and also were worried about the effect of the publicity so close to the April 17 school board elections.

The terms of office of Corlett, Ladar and Ring expire this year. Corlett and Ladar already have announced they will run again. Ring has said he is undecided, and Miller — a firm supporter of Hawkins — is known to have threatened to resign if Hawkins goes.

Corlett, chairman of the board, adamantly refused to comment on the closed session today. Told that reporters had overheard the shouting match over the administrator's evaluation, he would say only "Gee this is news to me."

Hawkins, asked directly today if he is going to resign, answered: "You could ask me that question any time in my career. Maybe yes, maybe no. It all depends on my interests and the interests of the district."

Board Refuses Teacher Leave

The Tamalpais High School District board last night refused to grant a year's leave of absence to Redwood High School English teacher James Pierce.

The request had been deferred from the board's meeting last week, when trustees said they wanted to "think about it."

Pierce had applied for the leave, without pay, effective Feb. 1 to set up a new program for credentialling teachers at the University of California.

Pierce had the 1971-72 school year off on a similar leave to work for McGraw-Hill Publishing Co., in Chicago. He has taught at Redwood for only one semester since his return.

PEACE

lomatic, legal and linguistic experts conferred for more than six hours today in Paris to negotiate the fine points of an agreement and announced they would meet again Wednesday.

Gen. Alexander Haig was in Saigon where he conferred for more than two hours today with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu, presumably to work out further details of the cease-fire agreement being negotiated by Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho.

Informed sources in Saigon discounted reports of an immediate cease-fire and said Haig was asking for Thieu's opinion on a number of different matters and intended to take his views back to Washington. In addition, the sources said, some of Thieu's military advisers were reported en route to Paris to study the various versions of the military protocols to an agreement.

Ziegler surprised reporters by his announcement that Kissinger would not be returning to the Paris peace table this week. On Monday he said Kissinger would be returning "in the relatively near future."

Kite Hill Proponents Receive Little Help

The Mill Valley City Council gave only a little encouragement last night to proponents of "saving Kite Hill," the hill at the northwest entrance to the city.

Adopting the interim open space plan as recommended by the city's planning commission, which had approved a plan identical to the proposed Marin Countywide Master Plan, the council asked only that such undeveloped areas as Kite Hill receive further consideration.

The council also asked that the planning commission look into the possibility of naming that area open space along with parcels currently zoned open areas by the city but not included in the interim open space plan.

Over strong objections by representatives for the owner and proposed developers of Kite Hill, the council later in the meeting adopted a residential development moratorium affecting the property, for which town houses have been proposed.

In other action, the council asked the city staff to find out the assessed valuation for small additions made to the North Ridge open space proposal.

Such figures are to be given to the planning commission by its Jan. 22 meeting and to the council for a Jan. 24 gathering.

On Jan. 29 a joint meeting with Larkspur and Corte Madera officials is planned, and Mill Valley Mayor Jean S. Barnard said it was hoped that Mill Valley would have reactions from those cities to its plan by that time.

The Mill Valley City Council also:

FIRE STATION — Postponed further discussion of the question of whether to build a second fire station or find another alternative to the Jan. 24 meeting.

POSTPONED — Also put over to Jan. 24 decisions on appointments to the city's youth, parks and recreation, art commissions and to the human rights miniboard and business assistance committee.

SLIDES — Heard a report on mudslides in the city from City Mgr. William H. Cunningham, who said Upland Drive may be opened by Wednesday night.

Marin Men Admit To Drug Count

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An attorney and a musician from Marin County have pleaded guilty to federal narcotics charges of possessing a half an ounce of cocaine.

No date for sentencing was set by U.S. District Court Judge Charles Wyzanski Monday for George E. Miller, 31, legislative counsel for a private law firm in Washington, D.C. and Marco F. Madaio, 29, a Sausalito, Calif., musician. Miller was on vacation here when arrested last September.

The two, along with Brian N. Smith, 27, a Sausalito gardener, originally were indicted for conspiracy to sell cocaine. The indictment containing felony counts was dismissed against Miller and Madaio after their guilty pleas to a misdemeanor count in a criminal information.

Smith still is awaiting trial.

The three originally were accused of arranging to sell 11 pounds of cocaine to federal narcotics undercover agents at a reported price of $110,000. The one-half ounce was described by officials as a "sample" delivered to agents in Marin County for $300.

Miller and Madaio could get as much as a one year prison term and $5,000 fine on their pleas.

Driver Booked On Felony

A 60-year-old San Rafael man was arrested on suspicion of felony drunken driving Saturday after a car he was driving crashed into a vehicle in a parking area on Lincoln Avenue, police said.

Thomas Toaston, of 874 Estancia Way, was booked into Marin County Jail and released after posting $1,200 to appear tomorrow in Marin Municipal Court.

Police said a car driven by Toaston smashed into the rear of a car driven by Ernst A. Kulps of 44 Tamalpais Avenue, San Anselmo. Kulp and his daughter, Virginia, were taken to Marin General Hospital with complaints of pain, according to police, though hospital authorities said the pair was not admitted.

Homesite Permits Are Voided

The Mill Valley City Council last night finally decided to accept the advice of an attorney hired to advise the council on the matter and declared permits issued for 83 homesites on Shelter Ridge null and void.

The project, fought by some Mill Valley residents, had been sought by others because it seemed that a low-cost housing project, Shelter Hills, was dependent on extension of Seaver Drive by the Shelter Ridge developers.

Last night it appeared that sponsors of both projects would go ahead with plans any way.

Douglas P. Ferguson, attorney for Shelter Hills, said he thought federal funds would still be available for that project since "we got in under the deadline."

It was indicated that Shelter Ridge developers probably would resubmit their plans and Mayor Jean Barnard said she hoped "starting over again won't be too much of a hardship on the developer."

Attorney Richard H. Breiner had told the council he believed the permits were void because time limits had not been met.

Councilman Robert E. Burton told the audience that he hoped opponents of Shelter Ridge would not view last night's decision as a victory, indicating plans probably would be submitted again.

Flu Medicine

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Cognac Producers of France distributed their own brand of flu vaccine- — an ounce of Cognac mixed with three ounces of orange juice, on the rocks—free to tenants of their building on Madison Avenue Monday.

Saturday's Peace Plan Supported

After only an 11-minute discussion last night, the Mill Valley City Council, with one dissenting vote, agreed to back peace demonstrations in Marin and San Francisco set for Saturday, Inauguration Day.

A resolution was adopted declaring Saturday "peace day," decrying recent bombing in North Vietnam and authorizing Mayor Jean Barnard and any other councilmen who wished, to march in a peace rally.

The Marin Christmas Eve Peace Committee has planned a brief demonstration for 9:30 a.m. at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building preceding a cavalcade to San Francisco, where a "walk for peace" will be held at 11 a.m. beginning at the Embarcadero.

Councilman Edward J. Boessenecker voted against the endorsement, saying that "events of the day (cessation of bombing and peace talks) have taken the steam out of it(the demonstration.)"

First Part Of Budget Delivered

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan today sent the Legislature two-thirds of a $9 billion-plus state budget—a $6.2 billion package of local assistance containing a record increase in school funds.

The 34 per cent boost in school aid and a 118 per cent jump in property tax relief reflected the first year's affect of the $1.1 billion tax shift bill co-sponsored by Reagan and passed by the 1972 Legislature.

Reagan will send the Legislature the rest of his record budget proposal Thursday. After reshaping by the Legislature and a final trimming by the governor, the budget will take effect July 1 for the 1973-74 fiscal year.

It was the second straight year the governor has parceled out his budget in two installments in an attempt to show the taxpayers what the state spends on its own programs and what it funnels back to local government.

The local assistance portion totaled $6,157,801,816, an increase of 28.8 per cent over expenditures in the current fiscal year. Besides school aid and property tax relief, it covered such costly programs as welfare, Medi-Cal health care and mental hygiene

The second part of the budget will involve such things as financing the various departments of government, higher education and state highway construction.

The taxpayer's dollar would be earmarked out of the state's general fund like this for local assistance 45.3 cents for schools, 18.4 cents for property tax relief, 15.1 cents for welfare, 12.5 cents for health care services and 8.7 cents for other programs

"There is no brighter chapter in this entire budget than our support for local schools and the 4.6 million children they educate," Reagan said in his written message to the Legislature.

The budget called for increasing state school aid by $559 million, of which $327 million was an actual boost in education funds and $232 million was to replace revenue lost to school districts because of a rollback in property taxes.

Council Agrees To Delay Redevelopment Decisions

The Corte Madera Town Council last night bowed to pressure from its citizens' committee working on the town general plan and promised not to make decisions about redevelopment unless they are in accord with the plan.

The promise was made good immediately afterward when councilmen unanimously voted to delay a proposed "interim modification" to the existing plan which would have formally acknowledged commercial and industrial uses within the proposed redevelopment area east of Highway 101.

Twenty-nine members of the Corte Madera General Plan Committee — more than 75 per cent — presented a petition asking the council to postpone action on virtually all new development, and particularly on redevelopment, until their work on the plan is complete.

Chairman Joel Shawn said the citizens wanted an assurance that their work wouldn't be "tokenism."

Members were neither for, nor against, the proposed regional shopping center, he assured councilmen; rather they wanted "time to do the job and know someone will consider their work."

Town Mgr. Ronald E. Bartels acknowledged that committee members probably were concerned because a citizens committee had worked long and hard last year on a housing element to the general plan, only to see their work rejected when it was decided to have a complete general plan review.

Shawn contended that there was little point in making proposed interim modifications to the general plan, since he had been told the federal Environmental Protection Agency's objections to Ernest M. Hahn's application for a fill permit for his shopping center could not possibly be resolved until March.

Similarly the Army Corps of Engineers probably wouldn't hold a public hearing on the application until mid-March.

"Anything you do as the town council or the redevelopment agency would be of no effect before then," he warned.

The modifications, proposed by town planning consultants Sedway and Cooke, deleted former land uses, such as a tidelands freeway and industrial sites from the marshlands fronting the bay. The changes also designated natural habitat preserves, such as the Heerdt Marsh and shoreline, at the same time establishing much of the Muzzi property within the proposed redevelopment project as residential, commercial, light industrial and service areas.

The modifications, explained consultant Tom Cooke, represented "certain key decisions relating to redevelopment" but he said it wasn't vital to make them now.

After voting to note the petition "in future decisions relating to redevelopment," the council unanimously put off the modifications until its Feb. 20 meeting when the town's first public hearing on the redevelopment project is set for 7:30 p.m. Councilmen said they might put it off again then, too.

Gunman Takes $150 At Tavern

Police said Perry H. Stuart, owner of the Barrel House tavern at 927 Tamalpais Avenue, had opened the tavern for business at 6 a.m. when a masked man waving a revolver demanded money.

The thief, who wore a beige raincoat, blue striped trousers and well-shined Oxford shoes, took $150 from a cash box and fled on foot, police said.

Death Penalty Advocates Grow

PRINCETON N. J. (UPI) — Capital punishment for murderers meets with the approval of most American adults according to the results of a Gallup poll released Monday.

"In a survey conducted in December, a majority of 57 per cent of adults, 18 and older, said they favor the death penalty for persons convicted of murder," the poll said. "This percentage represents an increase in support since March, 1972 when 50 per cent favored the death penalty."

The survey was based on interviews 1,504 adults, 18 or older, in more than 300 locations.

Reds Land Robot Car On Moon

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet union's unmanned Luna 21 probe landed a Lunokhod-2 robot mooncar on the moon's surface today, the news agency Tass reported.

Luna 21 was launched eight days ago, ending nearly a one-year Soviet respite from lunar exploration.

The 1,848-ton craft will remain stationary until Thursday, Tass said, then will continue work after recharging its chemical power supply with the help of a solar battery.

Assemblyman Asks Movers Watchdog

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti has asked the Public Utilities Commission to eliminate the "incentive to cheat" by the household goods moving industry. He was referring to the practice of some moving firms to deliberately underestimate moving costs to attract a customer, who later will receive a final bill "much higher than the estimate." The Van Nuys Democrat said the "incentive to cheat" will disappear if underestimating is made punishable as a misdemeanor or a license violation

Patrick Asks Court Of Appeal To Abolish Restraining Order

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Holiday Magic Inc. and founder William Penn Patrick have asked the state Court of Appeal to throw out a temporary restraining order obtained against them

The state filed suit Dec. 19 in San Francisco Superior Court against Patrick, San Rafael-based Holiday Magic and numerous affiliated firms and individuals. They are accused of allegedly operating "an unlawful endless chain scheme," failing to disclose certain required information to investors and making false and misleading statements regarding investment returns."

A temporary restraining order was issued the same day and Patrick claimed yesterday in a petition that this prevented the defendants from continuing their "usual and established product marketing and distribution program and from conducting sales and recruitment activities essential to petitioners' economic survival."

The court refused to dissolve the order but did modify it. But even this, says Patrick, cripples the businesses and "is constitutionally invalid."

Patrick has taken out full-page newspaper ads criticizing Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger for what he contends is harassment. He also has filed a $10 million damage suit in federal court against Younger and others

The new petition says no prior notice was given about the restraining order and no opportunity was given to appear and oppose it.

Further, it went on, the lower court directed that it be based on written affidavits and declarations and denied a request for a full evidentiary hearing.

Patrick claims the modified order violated due process and equal protection under the 14th Amendment, violates the California Constitution and abridges rights of freedom of expression and association. This has caused petitioners "irreparable damage," he added.

The appeals court is asked to grant writs which would dissolve the restraining order and direct that a full hearing be held on any such order, including oral testimony and cross examination. He also asks that the lower court be prohibited from issuing any order or injunction which abridges constitutional rights.

Herring Loophole Alarms Officials

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SACRAMENTO — Alarmed state officials reported today that Southern California commercial fishermen have found a legal loophole in restrictions on herring fishing and are said to be wiping out the fish at Tomales Bay.

The state strictly controls the commercial harvest in the bay of herring eggs, but belatedly discovered it has no authority to control the taking of adult herring laden with eggs about to spawn.

Emergency legislation to close the loophole was introduced today by Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael. It could reach the governor's desk by Friday if opposition does not block the needed 30 votes in the Senate to waive the rules. Committees have not even been formed yet to hear bills.

Charles Fullerton, deputy director of the Fish and Game Department, said two fishing boats took 167 tons of herring in three days of fishing last week. Storms have delayed the fishing, but up to nine more boats reportedly are on their way to finish the job, Behr's office said.

If more than 500 tons are taken, the herring resource could be "severely depleted," the department warned.

The herring are to be shipped to Korea for processing, the department reported. The eggs are a delicacy in the Orient.

The commercial fishermen apparently always knew of the loophole, but never took advantage of it until this season, when the price of herring rose to $45 a ton.

Behr had a bill two years ago that would have barred all commercial fishing in Tomales Bay, but it was killed after opposition by the Department of Fish and Game. Fullerton said he still opposed banning all commercial fishing in the bay.

Behr's new bill would suspend the harvest of herring in Tomales and San Francisco bays until the department can draft a plan to allow limited takings of the adult fish.

Tax Shift Bill Said Harmful To Schools

The effect of the new state tax-shift school financing law on the Ross School District could restrict the tax rate to $2.097 per $100 assessed valuation, compared to this year's rate of $2.385, Supt. Thomas A. Anderson told trustees last night.

But the impact may not be disastrous to Ross, however, Anderson said, because Ross voters approved a higher tax ceiling in June 1970.

The unused portion of that ceiling, some 57 cents, could be added to the $2.097 mandated by the new state law, Anderson said.

In other business, the board voted unanimously to deny teachers' requests for a 1.5 per cent salary hike. The teachers had asked that $4,700 remaining in the budget when a new kindergarten teacher was hired at a lower salary scale than her predecessor be used for the raise.

Anderson said trustees believed it was not appropriate to grant salary raises in midyear, and indicated they would consider the question of teachers' take home pay in relation to increased retirement contributions in this year's salary negotiations.

The Ross School District Board Also:

CITIZENS — Appointed Trustee Sally Rakow to attend the Feb. 13 meeting of the Ross School Parent Teacher Association to discuss the group acting as citizens' advisory committee when the board needs to know community feelings.

STATE AID — Authorized applying for state funds to run a learning disability instruction program at Ross School, and told Anderson to seek a teacher for the class.

BOILERS — Authorized new safety controls for the school's newest boiler but delayed a decision on replacing the 33-year-old boiler until an engineering study shows whether it's necessary.

CONTRACTS — Renewed Anderson's two-year contract at $21,100 a9year and that of principal William M. Cooper at $18,990 a year, the same as their current salaries.

ENROLLMENT — Heard that Ross School enrollment is now 516 students, up 13 since school began in September and up from last year's total of 470 students.

MEETING — Changed its next meeting date to Feb. 5 at 7:45 p.m. at Ross School to avoid conflicts with holidays.

Youth Is Booked On Hash Charge

Belvedere police have booked a 16-year-old Belvedere resident into Marin County Juvenile Hall on suspicion of possessing hashish for sale, officers reported yesterday.

The arrest was made Friday after the boy's mother called investigators. Officers said they found a brick of hashish in the boy's possession, as well as "considerable" narcotics paraphernalia.

The youth was not identified on a standing order of Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court.

Immunity Bill For Newsmen

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation giving newsmen the constitutional right to refuse to disclose their sources has been introduced by Assemblyman Edwin L. Z'berg, D-Sacramento.

The proposal ACA9 is a constitutional amendment subject to ratification by the voters if approved by the Legislature. He also introduced an implementing companion bill AB75 Monday.

At least four other legislators have introduced measures aimed at giving a newsman additional legal standing to shield himself and his sources. The legislation resulted from the recent jailings of news reporters who refused to divulge the identities of informants.

Among the measures by other legislators is AB4 by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael. It also would grant newsmen absolute immunity from disclosing sources and unpublished information.

The Bagley measure, however, would take effect much sooner if signed into law. Z'berg's measure would not become law until the end of 1974 since it would require voter approval to amend the constitution.

Money Bag Stolen

A money bag containing $140 was stolen yesterday from the Donut House, 202 Douglas Street, Petaluma, police reported. A window was pried open to gain entry.

Trial Opens In Slaying Of Guard

The trial of two San Quentin inmates, charged with killing a guard, began yesterday with battles promised over the truthfulness of prosecution witnesses and the physical evidence.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Joshua W. Thomas said he will show that Earl Billy Gibson and Lawrence Justice knifed inmate Herman Johnson on July 19, 1971, then, two days later, killed guard Leo G. Davis as Johnson, recovering from his wounds, looked on through the meal slot in his cell door at the prison hospital.

However, Marvin Stender, one of two defense attorneys, said in his opening argument that Johnson is a liar. "Johnson could not and did not see the attack on officer Davis," he said.

Opening statements in the heavily guarded superior courtroom of Judge Joseph G. Wilson took up the first day of the trial, which is expected to last six weeks. Stender was to wrap up his argument today, then the prosecution was to call the first of its 41 scheduled witnesses, a guard who took Johnson to the hospital.

Stender charged that Johnson and other inmate witnesses testifying for the prosecution are motivated by hope of parole. The defense attorney noted that Johnson was paroled three days after he identified Justice and Gibson and has since been convicted of burglary without having his parole revoked.

"He is, in effect, the only man in California who can commit crimes while on parole and not be sent to prison," Stender said.

Stender also told the jury yesterday he will challenge the physical evidence. He called testing of blood samples taken from the murder scene "deficient," and noted that fingerprints at the scene of the killing, on the knife itself and in a nearby room were not those of Justice and Gibson.

Thomas, however, contended that Justice has rare type AB blood, the kind found on the knife, on clothing left behind by the knifers and on a roll of toilet paper. Justice had cuts on a hand when apprehended.

Johnson, a target because he offered to testify against black inmates at Soledad Prison, will testify that he was stabbed once each by the two men on a deserted stairway near the prison exercise yard, according to Thomas.

Woodcock Back In The Economic Family

DETROIT (UPI) — United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock today accepted membership on the federal labor-management advisory committee "despite opposition" to President Nixon's economic program.

Woodcock's acceptance brought the 1.5 million-member UAW back into the Nixon administration's economic program for the first time since last March when Woodcock quit the federal pay board.

Woodcock was one of five labor leaders invited to sit on the 10-man committee which will advise the Cost of Living Council on new wage and price guidelines.

He said he would take part on that committee even though the UAW is urging Congress to reject the proposed one-year extension of the Economic Stabilization Act, which expires at the end of April.

"The reduced reliance on outright controls under Phase III of the economic stabilization program announced last week is a step in the right direction, but it does not go nearly far enough," Woodcock said at a news conference.

"The act places in the hands of the executive (President Nixon) huge and largely unrestricted powers to impose controls on wages and prices. Thus far, those powers have been used ineffectively with respect to prices and inequitably with respect to wages.

"For more than 15 years we have opposed outright controls except in clear emergencies because controls inevitably cause widespread economic distortions and inequities."

Woodcock said the UAW prefers a "price-wage review board which would invoke the force of an informed public opinion as a restraining influence."

Looking forward to this summer's negotiations with the "Big Three" auto companies — General Motors, Ford and Chrysler —on contracts covering more than 700,000 auto workers, Woodcock said the UAW intends "to follow a responsible anti-inflationary course."

Parents Day School Board Meeting Set

The Shoreline United School District board will meet at 2 p.m. Thursday at Tomales High School in conjunction with a parents day at the high school.

Under a program sponsored by the Tomales High School and Tomales Elementary Parent-Teacher associations, parents will visit classrooms, meet students and faculty members and attend meetings of the student council and district board.

The parents day will start at 9 a.m. with a welcome by Spirito Ballatore, student body president, and end with the board meeting.

Supt. Charles E. McCully is scheduled to report on the impact of the state school finance bill on the district.

Demos Name Mertle As Chairman

Robert E. Mertle of San Rafael last night won a contested election for chairman of the Marin County Central Committee.

Mertle, owner of a plastics factory that burned last week in Richmond, narrowly defeated Lotte Schiller, reported outgoing cochairman Gordon Pusser.

Other officers elected were Olive Lewis of Terra Linda as vice chairman, George Silvestri of Novato as treasurer and Richmond Young of Corte Madera as secretary. Mrs. Lewis defeated Richmond Young and Young then defeated Mary Henry. Silvestri was unopposed.

The committee, with 23 of its 24 members at the election session in the Marin Civic Center, also appointed seven persons to vacancies. In the Third Supervisorial District, Robert Politzer and Cathy Waycott were named to the committee. In the fourth district, Stanley Shell was appointed, and in the fifth district, Carol Floyd was appointed.

Seamstress Reports Sex Assault

A San Francisco seamstress said she was raped and robbed somewhere on Mount Tamalpais early today by two men who forced her into their car while she was making a phone call on Polk Street in San Francisco.

The 25-year-old woman told Marin City sheriff's deputies that an auto stopped near the phone booth about 2:45 a.m. and a man asked her if she wanted a ride. When she declined, she reported one of the two men got out of the car, grabbed her and forced her into the vehicle.

She said they then drove her to an area on Mount Tamalpais where they raped her, stole her wallet containing $50 and took three rings, two bracelets and her shoes. The attackers then dumped her out near the Buckeye Restaurant.

Deputies were unable to take the rape victim to Marin General Hospital because of flooding on Bon Air Road and finally were forced to take her to Ross General Hospital for treatment.

Arrests Lead To $16,432 In Jewelry

A man and a woman were arrested and $16,432 worth of jewelry stolen from a San Anselmo store was recovered today, San Anselmo police reported.

Booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of burglary were Joan Carol Davis, 33, and Patrick Michael Quinn, also known as George Patrick Holderby, 26, both living at the Fireside Motel in Mill Valley.

Both were held without bail to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

San Anselmo Police Inspector Bernard DelSanto said the two were picked up at the motel shortly before midnight for questioning in the burglary of the Flash store on San Anselmo Avenue, at 3 a.m. Sunday.

DelSanto said officers then recovered the loot from a locker in a bus depot in San Francisco.

Holderby was placed on probation in Marin County in December 1971 for burglary and heroin possession convictions.

Last October, the Kansas City, Mo., district attorney asked Marin County to send Holderby to Kansas City to testify for the prosecution in a murder case — but the trip was canceled because Missouri authorities refused to pay for an escort to accompany Holderby on the trip. At the time, Holderby was serving a 30-day jail term for petty theft and probation violation.

Tear Gas Is Used On Inmates

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Guards used tear gas Monday night to quell an inmate disturbance at the city jail in which three prisoners and five guards were injured.

About 150 inmates refused to go back to their cells after dinner and began banging on tables with their food trays, authorities said.

Farr Out Of Jail; Issue Unresolved

Williarm Farr is out of jail. But the issue involved in his jailing is yet to be resolved.

Farr was released from Los Angeles County Jail last Thursday by order of Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas. He is free on his own recognizance. The indeterminate sentence imposed by Judge Charles H. Older of Los Angeles Superior Court still hangs over his head.

Justice Douglas is well known for issuing writs to release accused criminals from jail. He did it so often that he reportedly was called down for it by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger. Since that report, Justice Douglas has refrained from such orders.

In the current instance, however, he was not freeing a man accused of a crime. For William Farr has never been accused of a crime.

He was accused of refusing to betray a trust. And there is no doubt he was "guilty" of that.

THE ISSUE AROSE when Farr was covering the Manson murder trial. Judge Older, hearing the trial, had issued a "gag order" forbidding any officer of the court from disclosing anything about the case. One of six attorneys violated that order by telling Farr about upcoming testimony regarding a plot by the "Manson family" to kill one or more movie stars. Farr used the material in a story.

Judge Older demanded that Farr tell which attorney had "leaked" the information. Farr refused. He was called before a grand jury, asked the same question, and again refused to tell. Then, cited for contempt, he refused a third time when Judge Older offered him the "opportunity" to "purge the contempt" by revealing the information. On that refusal, he was jailed — to remain, said the judge, until he talked.

Farr spent 46 days behind bars. He would be there yet were it not for Justice Douglas. He may be there again.

His 46 days were not the longest term served for the same reason by a reporter. In 1970, Mark Knops, reporter for an underground newspaper in Madison, Wis., spent 110 days in jail for refusing to tell a grand jury the source of a story about a bombing at University of Wisconsin.

Knops' information could have solved a crime, so there was some excuse for his jailing. Farr's could not; the objection to it was that, in the view of Judge Older, it might influence the case at trail.

JUDGE OLDER thus struck at the foundation of a free press, which is guaranteed by the Constitution.

The right of judges to punish for contempt is well established. But in this, as in all cases, the punishment should fit the crime — and contempt of court is rule violation rather than criminal action.

Judge Julius J. Hoffman's stiff penalties to "Chicago Seven" defendants and attorneys for contempt in disrupting their trial were overturned by a higher court. But Judge Hoffman did not impose indeterminate sentences.

If the issue raised by Farr's jailing is not resolved, no one is safe from being put in jail for the rest of his life at the whim of a judge who thinks the rules he makes override the guarantees of the Constitution.

'Limited Accidental Damage' — Confused Terms, Confused Thinking

(Reprinted from Christian Science Monitor.)

The destruction of the biggest hospital in Hanoi is described by Washington's Pentagon spokesman Jerry Friedheim as being "limited" and "accidental."

The damage could not have been "limited" unless it had been intentionally limited. If it was "accidental" it was not "limited." If it was "limited" it was not "accidental." The choice of confusing words in handling this human disaster itself exposes a deep weakness in Washington's thinking about war and the weapons of war.

WE DO NOT BELIEVE for one instant that anyone in the White House or Pentagon ordered, or authorized the bombing of a particular hospital. Nor do we believe that any pilot sent over Hanoi in the recent 12-day unleashing of fury on the city deliberately aimed at a hospital.

But in the course of aiming at "military targets" in Hanoi the hospital was hit, and so too were large areas of human dwellings. The evidence is solid, and conclusive.

The point we would like to make about all this is that it is not possible to aim at railway stations, radio stations, power plants, or factories in the center of large Asian or European cities without hitting human dwellings and such nonmilitary objects as hospitals and churches. People in such cities live and shop around such central features as railway stations.

In other words, an order to strike at a railway station or a power plant or a factory in Hanoi is in its effect an order to destroy human dwellings, and people living in them. To say that the damage to human life is "accidental" is hypocrisy. If the targets were in the cities, then the cities and their people were the real targets. A bomb cannot tell the difference between a railway station and a hospital. Nor can the average bomber pilot. To him, a hospital is just another big roof.

MAN TOOK a substantial step forward when he decided that the waging of war should be against men of war. Civilization progressed from the "Dark Ages" to "modern times" as the idea caught hold and spread that armies do not make war on civilians or the cities in which they live.

That idea was set back during World Wars I and II. Americans were loud in condemnation of the Germans. The shell of the old cathedral at Coventry stands as a reminder of German "terror bombing." Yet the German bombs which hit the cathedral at Coventry were aimed at airplane factories, just as the bombs which hit the hospital in Hanoi were presumably aimed at a railway station.

It is tragic and almost unbelievable that Washington has forgotten the lessons of World Wars I and II about the folly and futility of bombing cities.

One-Man Rule In Washington Something New For Our Republic

In the latest news, as we sit down to write this column, it says that Gerald Smith, who has guided the American case through the SALT I talks, has resigned as Washington's disarmament ambassador, and that Herbert Klein will be resigning as the chief information figure in the Nixon administration.

Mr. Smith has long talked about resigning at the end of the first Nixon administration and Mr. Klein may have personal reasons for wanting out.

But it was remarked by those present on the occasion that President Nixon never once gave Mr. Smith the slightest nod of credit for the successful conclusion of the SALT I talks. The signing of SALT I in Moscow made it sound as though Mr. Nixon had done it all by himself. No notice was taken there, or at any other time, of the devoted and patient months of dedicated work Ambassador Smith put into the project.

And in respect to Mr. Klein it is known that he disapproved and tried to prevent the original unleashing of Vice President Spiro Agnew against press and television journalism in early Nixon days and the revival of the assault in the after-election era.

AMBASSADOR SMITH and Mr. Klein are people who have their own views about public affairs. They have both done their respective jobs with loyalty and distinction. But they are people. They have identity. They have dignity. They are not "company yes men."

The same holds true of most of the people who have been, for the most part, silently slipping away from the Nixon administration as it moves into the second term. It is merely an observable fact that men of independent identity and thinking have largely gone away. The exodus began with the most independent man in the original cabinet, Wally Hickel. It continued through George Romney, Melvin Laird, Peter Peterson, and Erwin Griswold. It continues now with Richard Helms, Gerard Smith, and Herbert Klein.

TRADITIONALLY, the United States has been governed by what today is called "collective leadership." The President has always been at the center and, usually, has had the last word. But one-man government is a distinct novelty in the American record. Even George Washington surrounded himself by the best men of his times, although they wrangled furiously and publicly about policy.

Not one ofthe great presidents — Washington, Jefferson, Jackson, Lincoln, Wilson, Roosevelt — dreamed of, or would have dared to try, one-man rule. Harry Truman said "the buck stops here," but he also surrounded himself with the best cabinet he could get and let his individual cabinet officers make all the decisions they were willing and able to make.

Never since the founding of the republic has power been gathered so completely into the White House itself as it is today. And never before has the President so dominated the structure of government. Except for Henry Kissinger, there is no clearly visible, definable other personality in a high place in Washington. And there is pelnty of gossip around the White House that this residual sharing of the spotlight will soon end.

If and when Mr. Kissinger does go, there will literally be no one around Mr. Nixon to share the spotlight or question any of his decisions. Even Lyndon Johnson did not dominate the city of Washington to this degree, although it was not entirely for want of trying.

You may or may not think that having so much power in Mr. Nixon's hands is desirable. But recognize the fact that it was never like this before in American political history.

De Gaulle's Heirs Running Scared In French Election

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

French Gaullists, political heirs to Gen. Charles de Gaulle, are running scared in the campaign for election next March to the National Assembly after nearly 15 years in power.

National polls are going against them and posing a special threat is a new popular front coalition of Socialists and Communists.

Public opinion polls have shown steady gains for the leftist coalition formed last June. The latest shows 43 per cent of French voters favoring candidates of the coalition. Forty per cent favor the Gaullists and 15 per cent a centrist anti-Gaullist group.

GAULLISTS LED by President Georges Pompidou are telling the voters they never had it so good and in presenting the picture of a rosy future under their continued giudance are making promises ranging from a vote for 19-year-olds to covered swimming pools for cities with populations of more than 10,000.

The Communist-Socialist coalition, declaring it is time for a change, is promising nationalization of industry and banking on a wide scale. The list would include companies engaging in mining or oil operations, nuclear construction and, specifically, the Dassault company which makes the Mirage fighter-bomber plane.

It would restrict the power of the president and give more to the Assembly.

It would halt construction of France's atomic force. It also calls for the end of military blocs but makes no mention of France's continued membership in the Atlantic alliance. It recognizes the European Common Market but calls for an end to capitalist domination.

BESIDES THE MATTER of longevity in office, also working against the Gaullists is a history of scandals which surfaced during the premiership of Jacques Chaban-Delmas and led to his replacement last July by the staunch Gaullist but little known Pierre Mesmer.

Added to this is general French dissatisfaction with the cost of living which is going up at an annual rate of around 11 per cent. French unions say it is even more.

The Communist-Socialist coalition marks their first agreement on a common policy since 1946. They first formed a popular front in 1936. That fell apart after the signing of the Hitler-Stalin pact in 1939. De Gaulle brought Communists into his provisional government in 1945 and they remained in government until their ouster in May, 1946, at the start of the Cold War.

THE EAST-WEST thaw has given the Communists a new respectability and with it their best chance for a political comeback since 1946.

De Gaulle's Fifth Republic ended the system of revolving door governments which followed one another with dizzying speed under the Fourth Republic. Messmer is only the fifth premier of France since de Gaulle returned to power in 1958.

But the Fifth Republic was tailor-made for de Gaulle.
And de Gaulle is dead.

Legislature's Proposed New Rules Fall Short

By EARL G. WATERS

The sincerity of the legislative leaders in bringing about some real improvements in the legislative process is about to be put to the acid test.

If the "improvements" promised by those leaders in persuading the voters to approve the new two-year sessions are to benefit the people instead of merely being self-serving, some drastic changes are called for.

Efforts for those changes have commenced. New joint rules have been drafted by the staff and are under consideration.

THE INITIAL DRAFT leaves a great deal to be desired.

One of the arguments advanced for the two-year session was that it would permit the lawmakers to give more time to interim study.

The new rules propose eight recesses during the two-year period. Excepting for a 3½-month recess in September of the first year, the others are of short duration and will hardly give time for any extensive interim committee hearings.

The rules would prohibit any action on a bill until after the 31st day after it has been printed. They would also require nine days notice of committee hearings.

But the proposal to permit introduction of bills at any time including while the Legislature is in recess has pitfalls. For the rules would allow standing committees to hold hearings on bills outside of Sacramento during recess. And they are unclear as to what would prevent action on the bill immediately after recess with no further hearing.

It appears there is grave danger under such rules of lowering public visibility of legislative proceedings. The press and the lobbyists, who serve as bastions of protection against impromptu legislative actions, are all geared to maintaining vigil in Sacramento.

To permit committees to wander around the state to conduct hearings on proposed legislation opens the door to abuses.

AN ATTEMPT has been made to write rules to prevent circumventing the provision that only bills which have been approved in the house of origin may be acted upon in the other house in the second year. But the draft language seems deficient. Action on bills in the house of origin is prohibited in the second year.

Also prohibited is the introduction of bills in the second year which "as introduced or amended" would be substantially the same as the first year bill. But it does not seem to block amending a bill which has cleared the house of origin to do that which the first year bill sought to do and failed.

Further, no rule is suggested to prohibit "hijacking," the system of amending proposals to bypass balky committees.

And while a stringent requirement for committee attendance carries a penalty of loss of per diem for failure to be present, the problem of mass absenteeism and "ghost voting" in Assembly sessions is ignored.

Neither is there any attempt to establish committee schedules to avoid conflicts with regular legislative sessions, which has been the major cause of "ghost voting."

Today is National Nothing Day. You can just sit — without celebrating, observing or honoring anything.

The Safety Council hasn't issued any accident forecast for the day. Rocking chair collisions are very rare.

This is a time for everybody to be a little negative and see what develops.

As chairman of the National Nothing Foundation I've been asked what we hope to accomplish today. The answer, of course, is nothing.

March Of Dimes Fund Use Questioned

On Jan. 19 the March of Dimes is starting their annual door to door campaign to raise funds. Part of the money is being used for genetic counseling. Genetic counseling offers a procedure called amniocentesis that tells a pregnant woman if her child would suffer from Down's syndrome or other genetic diseases. Many people have assumed this procedure was used so that help could be given to the unborn child — make it possible for the baby to benefit at the earliest possible moment from any discoveries made in the field of fetology. However, is this belief fact or fiction?

. . . Dr. Charles Epstein, head of the medical genetic group for the department of pediatrics, University of California, states that the group is not willing to do the procedure if the parents would not terminate the pregnancy.

The National Foundation of the March of Dimes says that they take no position on abortion but at the same time are spending money on genetic counseling.

It is a tragedy that a nationally known organization with a reputation for aiding children could be using their funds to encourage the killing of babies when the baby is defective. A child has the right to life whether or not he is perfect by present standards. .

Vietnam War Widow Decries Bombing

Five years ago my husband, Sgt. George W. Storz, was killed in the province of Quang Tri, South Viet Nam. I know the agony of loss, of desperation; the only thing that sustained me during that time was the knowledge that I now had the sole responsibility of rearing my two small children, and the third, growing heavy in my womb.

What words are there to express the loss? None. What reasons for his sacrifice? I have not heard them. Today I am remarried; there is new life and love for me, but tonight I wept as I watched on television the plight of a Vietnamese woman who, with child in arms was telling a Swedish newscaster that she had lost eight members of her family in the recent bombing attacks. This had happened in the same area that the newsman had visited a couple of months prior, and he professed that he had seen absolutely no trace of anything which could be termed a "military target." Directly afterwards came the statements of prisoners of war, who, after seeing the damage they had wrought to civilian areas there, were deeply shocked and saddened.

When, oh, when will this senseless killing be stopped? How long will it take before Americans see what we are doing and take responsibility for it, or is it as this dark fear inside my heart suggests: That we do realize, but don't care?. . .

I am ashamed — that this policy is done in our name, for I grew up being proud to be an American. I am grieved — as a Christian, that my brothers and sisters of the world are thought so little of; and I am outraged — because of my ineffectual voice in protest of this giant, inhuman, crushing war-machine, which has no ears for my voice.

WASHINGTON — "The Nobel Peace Prize Committee will come to order. We will now start examining the list of candidates. Who is first, Mr. Secretary?"

"Richard M. Nixon. His name has been submitted by U.S. Sen. Hugh Scott."

"We can't have Nixon, not after the bombing attacks he ordered on North Vietnam last week."

"Au contraire, Mr. President. I think Richard Nixon is a very suitable candidate for the peace prize. He is eliminating the B-52 from the United States' arsenal of weapons."

"How is he doing that?"

"He is having them shot down by the enemy. The United States had only 100 B-52s. So far 12 have been shot down. At the rate they are going, they will all disappear in three months. What better gesture can one make toward peace?"

"IT'S OUT of the question, gentlemen. Nixon has bombed hospitals and schools and killed thousands of innocent civilians. We cannot give him the peace prize for this."

"But wait a minute! Does he not get credit for restraint? After all, he hasn't used atomic weapons against the North Vietnamese. A man who has the hydrogen bomb and doesn't use it against an enemy should certainly get the prize or at least an honorable mention."

"I do not dispute that, but the Nobel Peace Prize has certain stipulations to it, and one is you do not award it to a man who has dropped more bombs on North Vietnam than were dropped in all of World War II."

"Yes, Mr. President, but we must remember the only reason Nixon is bombing the North Vietnamese is to achieve a generation of peace for all mankind. If this bombing were punitive then I would say scratch him off the list. But Nixon is trying to find peace through bombing and he should be honored for it."

"I OBJECT! Nixon has been trying to achieve peace through bombing for four years. It hasn't worked and it will not work. If we award the prize to a man who believes the only solution to peace is destroying the other side, we will be the laughingstock of the world."

"What does the world know? Nixon has said he will stop the bombing any time the North Vietnamese come to the negotiating table and agree to a fair and just settlement of the war. I say a man who talks that way has gone the extra mile."

"But what is a fair and just settlement of the war?"

"That is not for this committee to decide, Mr. President. For years now, we have given the peace prize to people who have done a great deal of talking about peace, but have had no effect on anybody. This time we have a candidate who has done something about peace."

"WHAT HAS HE done?"

"He has shown everyone that he is dead serious about peace, even if he has to commit his entire Air Force and Navy to bring it about."

"That's true, Olav. But at the same time, wouldn't it be better to wait until the bombing stops before we give Nixon the peace prize?"

"By then it could be too late, particularly if he hasn't achieved peace in time. Don't you see what a fine gesture it would be if we gave the prize to a man who was working for peace but hadn't quite made it?"

"We could be at this all day, gentlemen. Let's go on to the next candidate for the peace prize. Mr. Secretary, what is the second name on the list?"

"Henry Kissinger."

Pentagon Papers Defense Costs Top $400,000

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Defense costs for Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo, defendants in the Pentagon Papers case, now exceed $400,000 and their defense fund is in critical financial trouble, its chairman says.

Stanley K. Scheinbaum, chairman of the defense fund, said funds are low because five full-time lawyers have been kept on the case since the government indicted Ellsberg 18 months ago. He estimated it would cost $50,000 a month for the remaining three or four months of the trial.

Scheinbaum said 20,000 persons have contributed to the fund, and that Ellsberg and Russo raised $75,000 through speaking and writing.

Just Suppose For A Minute That The Roles Were Reversed

When fighter planes from Hamilton Air Force Base soar overhead, hearts do not beat faster, muscles do not snap taut, and fear does not freeze the soul.

For they are friendly planes, leaving in their path at worst a sonic boom that momentarily startles and annoys; not death, destruction and misery.

Yet, a twist of the globe away, the planes are B-52s, the people are North Vietnamese, and the boom is the boom of death.

ONE WONDERS what it would be like if by some act of history, the roles were reversed and the news reports read:

SAN RAFAEL — Waves of North Vietnamese bombers blasted Marin yesterday in a massive attack that leveled downtown San Rafael and the Sausalito waterfront.

Officials estimated that 300 to 350 persons were killed and about 1,100 wounded in the daylight raid, described by President Nixon as "barbaric" and "inhumane."

"We will not be bombed back to the peace table," Nixon told reporters at his bomb shelter at Camp David.

San Rafael was still ablaze today from the bombardment which heavily damaged the Golden Gate Bridge and Hamilton Air Force Base.

The county's main highway, 101, was an impassable series of bomb craters, and the Northwestern Pacific Railroad tracks were demolished at several points.

Two wings of Marin General Hospital collapsed from bomb damage and injured were being carried to the Marin Civic Center, serving as an emergency hospital.

Mission San Rafael, a county landmark, was left in ruins and Dominican College of San Rafael suffered a direct hit that leveled the main building.

REFUGEES FROM the eastern sector of Marin jammed roads to Bolinas and Point Reyes, carrying their belongings in carts and wagons.

Civil defense workers clearing rubble along Fourth Street uncovered the bodies of scores of youngsters who had been attending a kiddie matinee at the San Rafael Theater.

Food, medical supplies and blood were rushed into Marin from East Bay Cities via the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge, which was only slightly damaged.

Tools Taken

Tools valued at $600 were taken Friday or Saturday from Kozy Auto Glass, 50 Lisbon Street, San Rafael, by a thief who pried open a door, police reported today.

Literary Unit's Informational Meeting Set

The adult literacy council, a Sonoma County volunteer group, will hold its semiannual informational meeting for the public Jan. 23 at 8 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church in Santa Rosa.

Those wishing to be students or tutors may attend. Area representatives and students will tell of their work and books used will be on display.

Every community in Sonoma County is now being served by volunteer tutors teaching adults to read and write English, according to council members. The council hopes to reach more nonreaders, especially in Marin County.

Folksong Concert Scheduled Friday

Vera Johnson, Canadian folksinger and writer, will present a concert of her songs at 8:30 p.m. Friday at 81 Hillside Avenue, Mill Valley.

The concert, cosponsored by the San Francisco and Marin County Folk Music clubs, will feature humorous, satiricial and down-to-earth songs.

Novato Chamber Opposed To End Of Air Panel

The Novato chamber of commerce is opposed to elimination of the Marin County Aviation Commission as proposed by Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste, according to president Phillip Coady.

Directors voted last Thursday that the commission shouldn't be abandoned because it is the only citizen group that reviews the needs and development of Gnoss Field and because it performs "an important function representing the community and taxpayers," Coady said.

Chamber directors also rejected a city proposal for four-way stop signs at Seventh Street and Grant Avenue because they believed there wasn't sufficient traffic to warrant interrupting the flow along Grant Avenue.

Watermarks

The designs above are historic watermarks from early paper producers. They are part of a traveling exhibition from the Library of Congress. The watermark was probably first used by the Italians in the 13th Century. A way of identifying the mill that made the paper, the watermark is still used in some better grades of paper. Artists have developed processes to make very intricate watermarks, such as portraits, but these are practical only when paper is handmade. Modern mills use relatively simple watermarks made by impressing a design on the paper while it is still moist. This is done by a wire cylinder known as the "dandy roll."

Labor Scholarships Due Four This Year

The Marin County Labor Scholarship Committee will make four awards this year to senior high school students who plan to attend a college, university or trade school next school year.

Carolyn Horan, county schools' career counselor, who is coordinating the scholarships, said applicants must be a descendant of a member of Carpenters Local 35, Mailman's Local 2095, former Carpenters Local 1710 or one of the several organizations affiliated with the Marin Central Labor Council.

The contest includes a two-hour essay to be held on April 14, said Mrs. Horan, and applications and research material are available at high schools.

Applications must be received by April 7.

Angel Island Boat Booklet Is Published

The California Department of Navigation and Ocean Development has published a special pamphlet for boatmen planning to visit Angel Island State Park.

John E. Bennett, department director, said the booklet, "Angel Island by Boat," describes anchorages and slips in Ayala Cove — the best-protected landing site — and elsewhere on the island. Tidal and weather peculiarities also are described, as well as plans for increased facilities later this year.

Bus Drivers Will Stay On The Job

Golden Gate Transit bus drivers have signed an agreement to continue working under their expired contract pending negotiations on a new one.

Bus Transit Mgr. H. Donald White reported the signing came Friday in a meeting with union representatives of the Amalgamated Transit Union, Local 1227.

The drivers last week rejected a new contract offering pay and fringe benefit increases totaling about $100,000 for 1973. The system has 245 drivers.

White said the contract extension was on a month-to-month basis, with each party required to give 48 hours notice to cancel it. This presumably would give public notice if a strike were called.

He said union negotiators will meet Friday with the drivers to get instructions on how to procede in negotiations on a new contract.

Watches Taken

Eighteen watches valued at about $2,500 were taken from Terra Linda Jewelers, 633 Del Ganado Road, San Rafael, early yesterday by a thief who sashed a window, scooped up the loot and sped off on a motorcycle, according to police.

An Injured Brain Can Mend Self

IRVINE — Research demonstrating that the brain is capable of "rewiring" itself after injury has been reported by scientists at UC Irvine. Two psychobiologists at the University of California campus said their work with nerve tissue from laboratory rats shows that the brain has "an amazing and heretofore unsuspected capability for reorganization after brain damage."

Professors Gary Lynch and Carl Cotman, both of the UCI School of Biological Sciences, said the discovery has significant implications for possible treatment of brain disorders, but they cautioned that much additional study is needed before any conclusions may be drawn.

Studies indicating that the nervous tissue left intact after brain damage can show growth have been reported from various laboratories in different parts of the world. However, the UCI studies have shown that the process takes place simultaneously in different brain systems, that is happens in radically different ways depending on the age of the animal, and have provided measurements of the magnitude of the effect.

No one knows at the present time why some brain damaged patients recover while others are permanently handicapped. Cotman and Lynch said they hope that the process of "rewiring," which their research has disclosed, can be controlled by medical science as the basis for a rational system of treatment. Driving Course Not Accredited

The San Francisco Better Business Bureau warned Marin residents today that a midwest firm advertising courses for semi-trailer truck drivers isn't accredited as a school nor registered in California as an employment agency.

Advertising has been placed in San Francisco and Marin newspapers by Associated Systems, 1040 East Washington Street, Indianapolis, the bureau reported.

The firm operates heavy equipment schools and advertises in help wanted columns to obtain student referrals, the bureau reported.

A report from the Indianapolis Better Business Bureau is that the owner does not answer complaints which allege misrepresentation by salesmen in guaranteeing employment, promising refunds and misleading advertising.

Prospective students are urged to deal with caution when answering this ad, the bureau said.

Veterans Jobless Rate Cut In Half

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The jobless rate among Vietnam War era veterans has been cut in half during the past 23 months, according to Labor Department statistics.

Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson told President Nixon Sunday the administration's campaign to find jobs for veterans aged 20 to 29 had been so successful that the veterans unemployment rate "in effect no longer constitutes a national problem."

THEY NEED HELP, TOO

Problem Drinker's Friends, Family

By KAREN PETERSON

The family and friends of the alcoholic are often overlooked yet they are involved in a highly emotional and distressing situation. Al-Anon is a world-wide organization that recognizes that people involved with the alcoholic need help just as much — and perhaps more — than the problem drinker.

The three women who discussed Al-Anon's program sought help for different problems but their purpose had been the same: comfort, companionship and an answer to their frustrations.

Perhaps the greatest comfort is the realization that other people share the same problems.

"You can live with a drinking problem for a number of years and get a strong sense of isolation," said Sandy. "It's not something you want to discuss. Either you get sympathy, which you don't need, or disbelief. It really helps to talk to someone in the same position."

"In the beginning it doesn't matter who," continued Betty. "You think there is no one else in the world with the same problem. You'd never believe anyone could understand."

THE PEOPLE who attend the meetings remain anonymous and this anonymity creates a more relaxed and open atmosphere. It is not necessary to join, pay dues or feel restricted by a rigid structure or regulations.

"You come as the spirit moves you," said Betty. "It's a self-help group where we share our experiences."

The first thing an individual must accept when he attends Al-Anon is that he is powerless to control the alcholic's drinking. Unless he stops trying to control the drinker, he will continue to live with frustration.

The goal is a change of attitude. The individual who lives with an alcholic is under a tremendous strain and this strain interferes with normal living. Al-Anon works on the premise that the individual can find happiness and that he will adjust. This change of attitude will also be of tremendous help to the alcoholic.

The idea is a selfish one but necessary if an individual expects to help himself, his family and the alcoholic.

"It works against the American ethic of not giving in and to keep struggling," explained Sandy. "You have to become selfish and realize it's not your problem." The individual must become settled emotionally. He has to learn to cope so that he can once again make a life for himself outside of the alcoholic.

"Alcoholics are manipulative people, and we must be easy to manipulate," said Sandy. "There is a sense of entrapment, as if we had no choice. We have to ask ourselves, why do we sit here and take it?"

HE HAS TO decide what he is going to do. He has to learn to cope or realize he doesn't have what it takes. If a decision to stay is made, then he has to base it on the fact that the alcoholic will not change. He has to realize that he can't expect miracles. There are no guarantees.

They are walking a fine line, said Sandy. They have to be able to think rationally. "You have to feel right with what you've done, to find the way home yourself."

All three women stressed that by learning to depend on yourself, by learning to control your emotions and thinking things through clearly, you will indirectly help the alcoholic.

"There's a pattern of the motherly role for women who are involved with the alcoholic. They cover for them and they lie," said Sandy.

"They seek help from doctors and psychiatrists. They are constantly protesting the alcoholic. It's difficult to give this up and to recognize their own powerlessness," she said.

Yet once they stop trying to run the drinker's life, the dependency wears off and the drinker realizes that there is no longer anyone to lean on, she said.

"Criticism of the drinker only incurs hostility, denial or defense," said Betty. "Then you become angry and defeated. It's a tremendous emotional involvement. Once you can think more clearly about the situation, you get less angry and less bitter."

The alcoholic in turn will notice the change in attitude and become curious, they said. He or she may then question whether or not there is anything in it for them.

"YOU HAVE TO get out of your self-involvement with the alcoholic," said Sandy. "Some women become hysterical, but once they've recognized that they can't depend on anyone but themselves, they can once again manage their life and their children. A child can not get support if the mother is upset."

"You can't build your whole life on someone else. You have to do it for yourself," said Connie.

Alcoholism is not the only adjustment a family must go through — even after sobriety the individuals involved must concentrate on returning to a normal relationship.

"There's a tremendous change after alcoholism — a metamorphsis. You're living with a new person," said Sandy. "There's a recovery pattern just as there is a pattern to alcoholism."

For years, she explained, everything is blamed on alcoholism. Once the alcohol problem is gone, so is the scapegoat.

"If they sober up and things still don't straighten up, you have to admit that the problem may be with you," she said.

Al-Anon is not a religious organization, but the women agreed that there is a spiritual feeling among the people involved.

"You realize that there are forces or powers available to you if you ask for them and work for them. If you stop at the material level, you're missing the whole gist of the program," said Sandy.

Self-realization doesn't come overnight. It's something that takes time to sink in. You have to practice every day, said Connie, and the things you learn can be applied to any situation.

"We laugh a lot," said Betty. "It carries us over a lot of bumps."

BETTY LAND describes her new seminar, "The Art of Grandparentry," as finding ways in which a person can become as significant to his grandchild, as the child is to him. The writer, teacher and grandmother will begin the course Monday in the Dominican College Extended Learning program. (Independent-Journal photo)

Enriched Grandparent Relationships Taught

By BARBARA HOSMER

Because she believes that the relation of a grandparent to a grandchild can be potentially so rich, Betty Land will hold a seminar for grandparents at Dominican College, starting next week.

"The relationship is endowed with so much that isn't being put to use, it is so valuable and isn't being realized," said the Palo Alto grandmother, who hopes to show other grandparents how they can enrich their closeness to their own grandchildren.

It must develop into a trust relationship on both sides or there may be boredom after a certain age on the part of the child and disappointment on the part of the grandparent, Mrs. Land said on a visit Friday to the San Rafael campus prior to the start of her course on Monday.

SHE ADMITTED that some grandparents prefer to spend more time with one child than another, but mere preference and being able to feel close doesn't mean that the full relationship is going to be there, she added. She sees the ideal situation as one of availability, both of the grandparent and the child.

"The relationship can offer so much, especially as neither has heavy demands made on their time and there can be so much companionship."

Mrs. Land said she "likes knowing I will have time with my grandchild, but would regret a scheduled 'duty' time." She has found that grandparents she knows are now kind of defiant about not being merely babysitters for their grandchildren.

"It shows that they have more expectations from the grandparent relationship than utilitarian."

MUCH OF the relationship can come from careful listening on the part of the grandparent, said Mrs. Land, and she has no-no and yes phrases for a grandparent to check him or herself with to help open communication with the child.

On her no-no list are such phrases as "Let me do that," "What did you do that for?" and "No, not that way."

Positive phrases that help develop the relationship might be, "I like it when you say that," or "This is nice being here."

A grandparent should not fear showing that he or she is a person at all times, displaying love, anger or happiness when they are felt, said Mrs. Land.

Holding back feelings diminishes it, Mrs. Land said.

SOME OF THE things to avoid with grandchildren, she pointed out, are becoming competitive with a child about experiences and "training the child for hardship."

If the child comes and reports a list of terrible things that happened to him that week, don't try to top it with worse things that happened to you — listen, instead, she explained. And avoid the "Wait until you grow up and find you have to do such and such ..." phrases which train a child for hardship, she said.

She agreed that a stereotype of a grandparent still exists in America that may be comfortable for all concerned but doesn't lead to a deep, rich relationship.

"My daughter still says, 'Mom makes the best hot dishes,' and I haven't made one since 1969," Mrs. Land related to illustrate how a fixed picture may stick to a person even though it holds no reality.

KEEPING THE picture realistic at all times is very important to develop closeness, she said. Neither should the grandparent compete with the parents in a popularity contest with a child. A grandparent who is playing a popularity game with a grandchild is not being honest about feelings with the grandchild, she pointed out.

The stereotype of the grandparent may contribute to this role-playing — "Norman Rockwell and Allstate have made it tough. Apple bosom smelling faintly of apple pie attends the word 'grandmother'. But you can get past it by disclosing real feelings.

"Grandparents can lay out a list of realities and get the kids up to date, but it can be very comfortable being endowed with the qualities that might not actually check out with reality, so it could be a bit risky," she stated.

Also, she said that she personally felt uncomfortable being treated with too much respect simply because of her observable appearance as an elder.

"Respect for elders is part of the mythery. I'd rather be treated as myself — in an ordinary way," she said.

MRS. LAND'S suggestions for getting close to a grandchild right from the beginning: Start feeding the child with a bottle and solid food — be around for meals.

"Also, I like the idea of work — car washing, lawn raking — puddling around with some kind of mutual help situation," she said.

Mrs. Land has been a teacher and writer and counseled at the College of San Mateo. Currently she is working toward the master of sociel work degree at California State University, San Francisco.

She tried the grandparentry course in Menlo Park and was disappointed that those attending weren't quite able to break through to closer relationships.

She hopes with the Marin series to show grandparents who already have a good relationship with grandchildren how to make it even better for both.

Her class will be held in three parts, Jan. 22, Jan. 29 and Feb. 5, at 7:30 p.m. at Dominican College.

Child Aided By Woman In Kentfield

Through the plan the child remains with her family, and the entire family benefits from medical and dental care, sustained guidance and counseling of social workers, a monthly cash grant, distribution of useful goods and the aid of special educational programs.

The $16 per month contributed by Miss Lange will supplement Maria's father's monthly salary of $43.60 which he earns working at a laundry. His salary does not meet the basic needs for the family of eight.

Annual Camp Fire Girls Candy Sale Date Is Set

The Camp Fire Girls annual month-long candy sale will begin Jan. 26. Blue Birds, Camp Fire, Discovery and Horizon Club groups will participate in house-to-house canvassing and in special sales in public places.

Candy sale chairman for the area is Judy Countermine. Jeanne Cohn is publicity chairman, and special sales are being organized by Vincy Greva. All are residents of San Rafael.

The overall campaign is under the direction of Camp Fire Girls Golden Gate Council. Camperships will be awarded to the highest selling girls in each age level in each district.

All profits from candy sales will be used for local activities, improving camping facilities and professional staff and leadership training.

In the past profits from the candy sale have provided 40 per cent of the annual budget.

ON THE AGENDA

Pediatrician Will Be Speaker At Parent-Teacher Meeting

Pediatrician Dr. Maxine Sehring of Walnut Creek will be the speaker at the meeting of the 14th District Parent-Teacher Association Thursday at 10 a.m. at the Sportsman's Lodge in Novato.

Chairman of the meeting is Mrs. Dallas Wagner of San Rafael, president of the 14th District. She will be assisted by North Marin Council P-TA president Edward Adams and members of the council from the Novato area.

Furniture Gives Clue To History

How is a chair like a history book?

By looking at the furniture, Compton's Encyclopedia points out, you can tell a lot about what life was like then.

Look at a massive, heavily carved Tudor oak chair. Life under Tudor monarchs like Henry VIII and Elizabeth I was rough and boisterous. Furniture had to be built to stand hard use. Tough oak wood went into the Tudors' huge canopied beds, trestle tables, benches, and cupboards.

Knowing that England was ruled by Oliver Cromwell, a Puritan, in the 1640s and '50s, you wouldn't be surprised that the furniture from that period is rather plain. But look at what appeared just a few years later. Lounging chairs and delicate sofas upholstered in velvet and brocade; fine mirrors set in gilded frames; elaborately carved walnut tables. Charles II was restored to the throne in 1660. Charles had lived in exile in France during Cromwell's rule, and brought the luxury of the French court back to England with him.

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Inconsistency Of Television Commercials Causes Wonder

RAP:

Can anyone tell me why television commercials are so prudish about some things and so sexy about others?

Like what's wrong with openly spraying an underarm with deodorant, yet even that octopus gal with all the arms, just sprays in the general direction. Are underarms obscene yet, and if so why?

Also, they never show even the "rim" in bathrooms. What's so awful about a toilet?

On the other hand, soap, perfume, men's cologne, etc. depend on sex to sell.

Maybe you could "throw this question down the well and see if it bubbles" — I mean, gets an answer from ad men or people in charge of commercials. — OKAY?

OKAY:

Okay!

We can't figure out television taboos, but they surely must make sense to someone in charge. Let's hope he or she elucidates. — HELEN

OKAY:

Another question, while we're at it: How come television is still pretty well censored, but on radio (especially call-in shows), almost anything goes. . .and young people listen to radio more than they do to television? Not that I'm for strict censorship — just equality. — SUE

DEAR RAP:

I was interested in your column on the European hitchhiker and his suggestion that America develop "safe" hitching via registration and identity cards.

It's a shame that this kind of travel is downgraded in the U.S. for it's a great way to go.

Up until a few years ago (I'm now 56) I did a great deal of hitchhiking. I've been all over the U.S., Mexico and Canada, had a wonderful time, met a lot of fine people and a few odd ones. I could never have traveled had I not used my thumb.

I've never been hurt or forced to do anything against my will. I've never been in jail. My recipe is: guts, plenty of identification, a few dollars of your own, and the spirit of adventure. And I wouldn't trade my memories for anything. — VERY YOUNG 56

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

Maybe hitchhiker emblems and i.d. cards in cars would make it safe, but I learned my lesson recently — no more pick-ups for me!

My sister, a girlfriend and I saw a man hitching. He looked safe and it was raining, so we gave him a ride. He told us he was an alcoholic on the way to an A.A. meeting and to turn down a dark side street to let him off. Then I saw he had a gun at my head! He motioned me to make them stop the car, so without letting them know, I told them there was a friend on the sidewalk, and we ought to pick her up. Thank goodness they caught on fast and stopped. I jumped out with the man behind me, and my sister gunned the car just as I jumped in it again. It was split second, but we got rid of him. We notified the police but he had disappeared.

I went to Europe last summer and it's true — hitching isn't considered dangerous over there — but over here, well, — NEVER AGAIN!

HELEN AND SUE:

My brother-in-law says we're relatives now and it's okay if he kisses me. But he never kisses me in front of my sister — just when we're alone. What do you do about not-so-brotherly kisses? — DEFINITELY NOT TEMPTED

D.N.T.:

How about a sisterly slap across the face? — SUE

DEAR D.:

Or an innocent, "I'll ask my sister what she thinks about brotherly kisses, okay?" — HELEN

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY
(Distributed by General Features Corp.)

Are we still furnishing the living roms of our homes as though they were the "front parlors"? I'm afraid we are. Except where space is really cramped, most families seem to have a living room for show and another "real-life" one. I've even noticed this breakaway attitude in mobile homes, where there's an abundance of space.

Trouble is none of us can afford to waste space. Maybe there could be certain rules (nonrules, actually) established before we lay out the cash for living room furnishings.

1— The living room is the family's place. Guests might come once a week or once a month, but we can't base our lifestyles on those infrequent sessions.

2— We should make it easy for the family to use the living room. Playing chess, checkers, listening to music, reading — while perhaps not compatible occupations at all times — should be provided for if that's what the clan enjoys.

3— Forget the formulas for furniture placement. If one chair and a sofa are all that is needed, why buy two chairs because it's the stock solution?

Better to spend that extra cash on a good reading lamp, game table and straight-back chairs for the homework-doers and the game-players.

4— If refreshments and snacks are consumables allowed during these priority activities, why not provide equipment for them in the living room? For example a roll-around bar cart, a minirefrigerator or place to stash snacks. No sense jumping up and down at the height of a family-type Fischer-Spassky competition.

5— If company is coming, reserve the living room with the approval of the whole gang. Then there won't be such a feeling of dispossession. The youngsters might want to reserve it for a group session some evening and then parents can take their leisure activities elsewhere.

The room shown today, designed by Marcus Tuttle, does have that easy-mix quality that works well for a family of active people. Floors are covered in herringbone-patterned wood tile that just invites dancing. So that area rug selected is one that can be flipped aside at the sound of the first country-western twang.

An ideal game table, and one that works as well for homework or household paper work, is the chrome, brass and glass unit shown by Hickory Manufacturing Co. It has subtle Chinese overtones, as does the bar cabinet with its slide-out tray top, but it is not "faddy." Brass hardware and caster add that extra gleam to the golden-toned room. The Oriental screen, a few framed prints and some porcelain side tables were family heirlooms that just naturally found their way into this living room. New chairs and sofa by KayLyn have a timeless quality and they don't jar the overall "family" feeling.

Early Childhood Education Is Attracting More Men

The Christian Science Monitor News Service

AN ARBOR, Mich. — "I still don't understand what you're doing here," the toddler at the day-care center told Alan Kistler suspiciously.

"I'm here to teach you and to learn from you," Kistler, University of Michigan (UM) senior, replied:

"Then how come you're not a woman?"

With increasing numbers of men entering UM's program in early childhood education, student teachers like Kistler should become less of a curiosity. "Collective bargaining has brought preschool and elementary teachers' wages up to a level more comparable with those of other jobs," UM Education Professor Jane Schwertfeger observes. "And the clear-cut patterns that have separated men's and women's jobs are dissolving."

Throughout the country, preschool education leaders welcome this trend. Boys and girls alike need to be around both men and women in order to develop their own feelings of masculinity and femininity, they maintain.

"Particularly children in inner-city day-care centers whose mothers work and whose fathers are often missing," adds Graham Matthews, who is earning his doctorate in early childhood education at the UM. He has been both head teacher and director of such a center in Detroit.

The male child care worker is not only believed to engender more "masculine" traits in little boys but more feminine traits in little girls. "A girl doesn't know what is feminine unless she has some basic for comparison," says Dennis Lampron, a master's degree candidate. "The child who doesn't come in contact with a man is as 'culturally isolated' as one who has no contact with black children or other minorities.

Kistler sees another side: "A lot of little guys grow up out of touch with the feminine poles of their personality. It's possible for a man to be both strong and intellectual as well as gentle and nurturable. Being around both men and women who are behaving in this way gives them a more balanced image of themselves."

Research currently under way at the Office of Child Development in the U.S. Office of Education bears out the UM students' theories. An Atlanta, Ga., experiment shows high school boys employed as day-care center aides have had a positive influence on their young charges — especially the fatherless black children.

Reality: There are more obstacles facing men in this field than perhaps any other specialty in education.

Chiefly it's credibility. "Many people suspect that the only reason you're interested in preschool education is that upper elementary, secondary, and college-level teaching job areas are closing," Lampron explains.

"People can't believe you'd be willing to give up these things just to work with little children. They doubt you can be as warm and affectionate as a female. You're in a position of continually proving yourself."

"You can overcome any misgiving conveyed by the children; the biggest problems exist with the other — female — staff members," says Kelvin Seifert, a UM teaching fellow combining doctoral studies in psychology and education.

"People have a preconceived idea that men aren't very competent with, or interested in, small children. The more conservative women on a staff may doubt their male colleague's initiative or intelligence. Why he didn't go after a 'real' career, they wonder."

Like the woman executive who is asked to take minutes at the board of directors meeting, the male child care worker may experience sex role discrimination. Seifert, who admits to a growing sympathy with women's causes, recalls being arbitrarily assigned to many mechanical and maintenance duties at one center, including 20 new cots to asemble from scratch.

"The male's more important contribution would consist not of 'acting like a man' for the children, but of disproving the idea that men need to act in some special 'manly' way."

Sex role conventions are not the only barrier that has kept men out of child care, Prof. Schwertfeger adds. "Ten-hour work days and low pay characterize most day-care positions, since the majority of centers are geared to the needs of low-income working parents. Unless this changes, men will continue to opt for administration, research, and training of other professionals instead of working directly with the children."

"People must come to realize that taking care of children is a community responsibility," Seifert concludes, "not just that of an individaul, or more specifically, a woman."

Ther series, sponsored by the Marin Symphony Association, will continue May 9 with a blending of romantic, experimental and jazz music at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building.

The series will close with a program on the development of orchestral music May 19 at the Meade Theater at Tamalpais High School, Mill Valley.

Hub Man Makes Plea To Charges

Harry Frank Vantrease, 39, of San Anselmo, pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Superior Court to felony possession of Benzedrine and a misdemeanor violation of having drug injecting equipment.

Vantrease pleaded guilty after a plea bargaining session in which Judge David Menary Jr., his attorney and the district attorney agreed he should spend no more than six months in jail or a residential drug treatment program.

The judge set sentencing for Feb. 5.

Sausalito police arrested Vantrease Nov. 2 slumped over the wheel of his car on the shoulder of Highway 101. When the car door opened, 30 Benzedrine tablets fell out, police said.

A syringe and 12 hypodermic needles were found in Vantrease's pocket, according to police.

Guilty Plea Made To Theft Of Watch

The plea by Herman Sanchez was based on a promise by Judge David Menary Jr. that he will receive no more than eight months in jail when he is sentenced Feb. 5 on the grand theft charge.

Sanchez was arrested Dec. 5 in Petaluma on a warrant charging him and two others with armed robbery, but the charge was revised by a Marin Municipal Court judge.

Sanchez, Lonnie Lawder Rivas, 26, of Petaluma, and Larry Paul Slager, 25, of San Rafael, were sought by police after two teen-agers told police the men forcibly took two watches from them Aug. 14 in the parking lot of Mayfair Market in San Rafael.

Slager pleaded guilty to a reduced misdemeanor charge of battery and served 11 days in jail. Rivas is awaiting trial in superior court.

Policewomen

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Forty-five women will be hired this year by the Cleveland police department and assigned to basic patrol duty, Mayor Ralph J. Perk announced Monday.

Classroom Plan Wins Council Nod

Mayor Arthur N. Roberts won tentative approval of a proposal the city buy used portable classrooms that could be shared by the city recreation department and the Cotati-Rohnert Park School District.

Roberts said the plan could be mutually beneficial, since the school district needs temporary classrooms until a new school can be built and the city needs extra space for evening meetings and youth activities.

City Atty. Richard Maxwell warned the plan might be illegal since the buildings would be primarily used as classrooms. City funds cannot be spent on schools since they are not the responsibility of the city, Maxwell said.

"The school could just happen to have a key to them during the day," Roberts suggested, gaining support from fellow councilmen in sidestepping the law. Recreation fees would be used to buy the portables, but the school district would be expected to do repair work and make improvements.

On a unanimous vote, the council told City Mgr. Peter M. Callinan and Schools Supt. James H. Davidson to price used portable classrooms and recommend if the plan might work.

The Rohnert Park City Council also:

REZONING — Approved rezoning of 680 acres more of the Rohnert Park Expressway as requested by Shapell Industries. Councilman Vernon P. Smith dissented, saying an environmental impact report should have been received first on the 2,000 living units proposed.

MOBILE HOMES — Approved on a 3-2 vote rezoning of 41.5 acres for a 300-unit mobile home park at Hinebaugh Creek. Roberts and Councilman Louis G. Beary dissented, arguing for adults only rather than the 30 per cent family units permitted.

BUS — Directed Callinan to study the feasibility of funding a minibus service within the city and to the college.

SALARY — Granted a 5.5 per cent salary increase to Callinan, bringing his pay to $1,860 per month.

MEETING — Agreed to hold a town hall meeting Feb. 12 at 7:30 p.m. at the community center. An agenda will be considered at the Feb. 5 council meeting.

Plan To Preserve Old Structures Approved

A proposal to protect historical buildings through zoning won tentative approval from the Petaluma City Council last night.

Representatives of the Petaluma Historic Preservation Committee, formed after the Dec. 18 city council meeting in which the new city zoning ordinance was adopted, said elimination at the same time of the historic combination district would threaten old structures in the city.

Donald D. Confer, a representative of the committee, said the group would assist the city with plans for a new historical district. A committee suggestion for a three-month moratorium on demolition of structures within the district was rejected.

Planning Director William C. McGivern said he was willing to work with the committee but that a moratorium would be a threat to any work unrelated to historic preservation. McGivern suggested the committee could review any demolition plans and decide if these structures would be worthy of preservation.

Mayor Putnam said the first step was to set up a meeting as soon as possible for whomever wants to hear about the district. She called for a joint meeting open to the public.

"Out of this should come the kinds of things we want. We can decide where to go from there," she said.

The council also suggested that an inventory be compiled of all buildings that have historical value.

The Petaluma City Council Also:

SEWERS — Agreed to consider sharing costs with Stero Dishwashing Machine Manufacturing Co. on extending the sewer main at Lakeville Highway and Frates Road.

APPEALS — Set a hearing for Jan. 30 at 4 p.m. on appeals of residential development evaluation board ratings of proposed housing projects.

COMPUTERS — Agreed to research further the feasibility and cost of a computer system at the Feb. 5 meeting.

ZONING — Set a hearing date for Jan. 29 for rezoning a multi-family residential district to a planned unit development district at the northeast corner of Ely Boulevard North and East Washington Street.

EMERGENCY — Adopted an emergency operations plan for setting up guidelines for emergencies.

RESTROOMS — Approved installation of prefabricated comfort stations at La Tercera Park at a cost of $8,500.

PARKS — Saw plans for the development of the 2.5-acre Miwok Park and new playground equipment for preschool and elementary children.

MEETING — Adjourned to Jan. 29 at 7:30 p.m. to consider permitting alcoholic beverages in recreational halls and increasing building rental fees.

County Plan To Be Presented

The proposed countywide general plan will be presented to members of the Marin County Family and Children's Services Advisory Committee Jan. 23 at 8 p.m. at the county schools office in Corte Madera.

The committee, an advisory group to county supervisors and welfare department officials, has criticized the plan as lacking firm policies for more low-income family housing.

The committee's agenda also includes discussion of federal revenue sharing as it relates to welfare — possibly forcing the county to pick up a larger share.

The county schools office is located at 201 Tamal Vista Boulevard near the Co-op shopping center.

Fishery Limits Bill Introduced

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — Legislation to establish a 200-mile fishery jurisdiction along the nation's ocean coast has been introduced by Rep. Don H. Clausen, R-First District.

The bill, symbolically numbered House Resolution 200, would create the zone in which the government would regulate the taking of fish. He said the measure would "correct a serious flaw in existing conservation laws which do not provide any protection whatsoever to fish caught beyond the 12-mile limit."

Clausen said many nations condone virtual elimination of fish from some areas by their fleets. "Even immature fish are taken and none left for reproduction," he said.

His bill also would regulate the number of fish caught and set penalties for violations.

Opera Slated

The College of Marin Opera Workshop production of "The Primadonna" at college's studio theater on Friday and Saturday will begin at 8 o'clock, and not at 8:30 p.m., as reported in Saturday's Marin Magazine.

Performances will begin at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 8 and at 8 p.m. on Feb. 9 and 10 in the school's Little Theater.

Senior Tom Elkjer will direct the musical, adapted from the comic strip "Peanuts."

The cast will include John Finn as Charlie Brown, Andree Krier as Lucy, Dan Mogulof as Snoopy, Dewey Reed as Schroeder, Donna Stallone as Patty and Jim Wright as Linus.

JUST A LOT OF WATER

Commuters on Highway 101 today found the scene was straight out of Noah as they approached Corte Madera. Flooding in several sections of the highway, along with a slide on Waldo Grade, contributed to a massive traffic jam in which many never made it to work. (See story, photos, page 1.)

TOW TRUCK DIES — The deep water was too much for one busy tow truck on Lucky Drive in Corte Madera. Water was so deep that vehicles fording the flooded freeway made waves with small white caps. The freeway was opened and closed several times by the California Highway Patrol.

LIFT YOUR SKIRTS — Golden Gate Transit bus wades through deep water at Lucky Drive in Corte Madera. The vehicle made it onto the freeway. The buses at least had the advantage of height, which apparently saved them from the stalled engines that plagued other drivers.

DOUBLE WET — Two unidentified rescuers failed to master the rapids at a Novato intersection, and were dumped into four feet of water. They righted their boat, hopped back in, and went on their way.

HELP — Little Christine Villa of Novato is lifted to safety by two strong firemen after deep waters swept around her home on Garden Court.

Bond Election Is Rescheduled

The Cotati-Rohnert Park School District board has rescheduled its $1.5 million bond election to April 17.

The election had been scheduled for March 6, but the legal notice setting the date had not been published far enough in advance.

Board secretary Miriam Horne said the board set the new date to coincide with the district trustee election. Bond funds would be used to build a new school.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON GREB

How many candles should we put on the cake today for these celebrities — 38, 62, 64, or 69? Those are their ages today.

1. Dizzy Dean is the kid from Arkansas who pitched his way to fame with the St. Louis Cardinals in the 1930s. One of five children of cotton-pickers, he was spotted by a major league scout while pitching for a gas house club, then proved him right by establishing a lifetime record of 150 wins, 83 losses. He was averaging 22 wins yearly until injured — won 30 in 1934.

2. Ethel Merman made her Broadway debut in "Girl Crazy" 33 years ago. With her strong, booming voice she has starred in countless musicals and made collector's items out of recordings of "You're the Top" and "Alexander's Ragtime Band." She was born in Astoria, New York, and was educated to be a secretary.

3. A. J. Foyt was born in Houston, Tex., where there was plenty of gas to propel automobiles. And he showed how fast they could go three times in the Indianapolis "500," driving to victory in 1961, 1964, and 1967. This national champion won top money by averaging better than 151 miles per hour in a Ford Coyote in his last big win. You could have won it in 1920 driving 89 miles per hour.

4. Ivie Anderson is a familiar voice to anyone who likes Duke Ellington records. From Gilroy, Calif. she sang with his band from 1931 to 1942, cutting such favorites as "It Don't Mean a Thing" and "I Got It Bad." She also appeared with the Marx Brothers in the film, "Day at the Races." She died in 1949 but we remember her birthday today.

ANSWERS

Pick The Best Finesse For Slam Contract In Spades

"How could I tell which finesse was going to work?" South asked after the play of today's hand. He was asking the wrong question, for the choice was very clear. Moreover, an answer to his question would not have helpd him.

SOUTH RUFFS

West opened a club, and South ruffed. Declarer drew three rounds of trumps, ending in dummy, and led the ten of hearts for a finesse. He expected to make his contract if either the heart finesse or the diamond finesse worked.

West took the queen of hearts, and East eventually got the setting trick with the king of diamonds.

TOOK WRONG FINESSE

Both finesses lost, as it turned out, but South should have made his contract. He made the mistake of taking the wrong finesse first.

South should draw trumps and try the diamond finesse to begin with. If East slyly refuses the trick, South can abandon the diamonds and just give up one heart trick.

If East takes the first diamond with the king, South can do without the heart finesse altogether. He can get rid of three hearts on dummy's good diamonds and then his slam contract is unbeatable.

A MORAL

Perhaps we can draw a moral from South's little tragedy. Don't ask a question when the answer is useless. In fact, a bridge player who asks questions after the play of a hand that he has muffed may get an answer that he won't like.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:

♥ - 5 2
♦ - K 6 4 2
♣ - A Q J 9 8 4.
What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

You would bid this borderline hand if the long suit were a major or if it had one more high-card point in either of the long suits. Some experts would bid one club with the hand as it stands.

Nixon Programs Against Crime Said Working

CLEVELAND (UPI) — U.S. Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst says President Nixon's anti-crime programs are working and "we are building an edifice of domestic peace in the United States." Kleindienst said a record 768 persons linked to organized crime were convicted in 1972 and a total of more than 2,500 in Nixon's first four-year term of office.

He said twice as much heroin was seized last year as in 1971, creating a shortage among pushers in major U.S. eastern cities. "We have not yet won the war, but the enemy is in retreat," said Kleindienst. "We will keep up our offensive until we drive the last of the major narcotics rings out of business."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Difference Between A Strain And A Sprain Misunderstood

L. V. writes: "What is the difference between a sprain and a strain?" This is a good question because there is considerable misunderstanding about these conditions.

Sprain is, perhaps, the more serious, since it represents an incomplete tearing of capsule and ligaments as a result of joint injury. A strain usually involves a muscle that was stretched or pulled beyond its capacity. Overlapping between the two injuries is inevitable because muscles often end in the ligaments that are attached to the joints.

AN ANKLE sprain usually stems from a sudden, twisting injury such as occurs when stepping down a curb or during an athletic contest. The foot inverts so that the weight of the body is carried on the outside of the structure. The ankle is bent under and the joint capsule and ligaments on the outside of the joint are torn. The ankle usually becomes extremely painful and swollen; the individual no longer may be able to bear weight on the leg. Occasionally the person is able to finish what he is doing before the pain sets in.

In a strain, the muscle fibers tear after vigorous and forceful use. The contracted muscle is stretched beyond its ability to lengthen and the injured tissues bleed and swell (charlie horse).

THE DISTRESS depends upon the severity of the injury. Most of the victims tell of developing severe disabling pain during strenuous muscular activity. The typical example is the runner who pulls a muscle in the groin, thigh, or calf during a race. A forceful delivery by the pitcher may do the same in the shoulder and arm.

Chronic muscular strain may occur to a sedentary individual after hiking a long distance. Although the area is tender to the touch, it rarely swells or bleeds.

During the first 24 to 48 hours, strains are best treated with ice packs. Thereafter, heat and rest are most helpful. Sprains respond to a compression bandage, elevation of the part, and the immediate application of ice. An Ace bandage or plaster cast also may be needed. However, surgery usually is required when the tendon is torn. In both instances, physiotherapy hastens recovery.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

NEEDS CHECKUP

A reader writes: My boy friend fainted last night and had to be given oxygen to bring him to. He said he has an enlarged thyroid. Could this be responsible for his attack?

REPLY

Yes, but unconsciousness is not the usual manifestation. An enlarged thyroid may press on the windpipe or esophagus, leading to difficulty in breathing or swallowing. In most instances, a goiter is nothing more than a cosmetic defect. Your friend ought to have his attack investigated.

BELL'S PALSY

Mr. S. writes: Six years ago I was cured of Bell's palsy. Could I get it again?

REPLY

Yes, but a second attack is unusual. Not much can be done to prevent the condition except to avoid drafts and infections. See your dentist regulaly to correct dental conditions that might affect the bite.

Coastline Session Is Tomorrow

The first meeting of the North Central Coast Regional Commission will be held at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the supervisors' chambers of the Marin Civic Center.

Passage of Proposition 20 on the November ballot created six regional commissions and a statewide coast panel to draft plans for the zone's conservation and development. The North Central Coast Regional Commission has jurisdiction over the ocean coasts of Marin, Sonoma and San Francisco counties.

The meeting was called by Marin Supervisor Michael Wornum, a member of the new commission and chairman of the Association of Bay Area Governments ocean coastline planning committee.

The regional commission has power to prohibit any construction along the coast during the four years it has to draft a plan.

Ten of the 14 members of the regional commission are from Marin and Sonoma: Wornum, Fairfax City Councilman Frank J. Egger Jr., Marin County Planning Commissioner Margaret Azevedo, Melville Owen of Kentfield, Phyllis Faber of Mill Valley, Sonoma County Supervisor Robert Theiller, Santa Rosa Vice Mayor Gregory Jones, Dr. Bradford Lundborg and Kenneth M. Stocking, both of Santa Rosa, and Wanda Zankich of Bodega Bay.

San Francisco members are Supervisors Robert H. Mendelsohn and John Molinari, and Ellen Jonck. Pleasant Hill Vice Mayor Leonard E. Grote is the representative of the Association of Bay Area Governments.

Man Arrested On Pot Charge

A 25-year-old Homestead Valley man, who allegedly tried to sell three to four kilograms of marijuana to a gas station attendant, was free today on $10,000 bail pending a court appearance tomorrow.

Arrested at 4:30 p.m. Saturday at a Strawberry service station was Gary Wayne Jones of 107 LaVerne Avenue.

Sheriff's deputies said they staked out the station at 580 Redwood Highway after the attendant reported being offered the pot for $720.

Deputies said Jones had a shopping bag containing suspected pot in his car and was booked on suspicion of having marijuana for sale and transporting it.

Speckmann Scholarship In Music Available

The committee for the Maybelle Speckmann Music Scholarship, named for the former Independent-Journal music critic, has announced eligibility requirements for applicants and other pertinent information.

The $600 scholarship will be offered to a student of piano who fulfills all requirements and who is sufficiently advanced to perform in auditions works selected by the committee. The winner will also have the opportunity to appear in concert with the Orchestra Piccola under the direction of Hugo Rinaldi, a member of the committee who also is head of the San Rafael schools music department and director of the Marin Youth Orchestra.

Eligibility qualifications are that an applicant cannot be over 22 years of age as of Jan. 1, 1974; must be a resident of Marin County or one whose family home is in Marin; must be prepared to perform from memory the Bach D Minor Concerto (the work to be played with the Orchestra Piccola), major Beethoven Sonata and a major Romantic period work, and that the money must be used to further music education.

Auditions will be held during the 1973 Christmas vacation at San Domenico School in Sleepy Hollow. Performance with the Orchestra Piccola will be during spring vacation.

Deadline for applications is Oct. 1. Further information on how application forms may be obtained will be announced later.

Council Tentatively Sets A Library Bond Election

The San Rafael City Council last night gave tentative approval to an October bond issue for improvement of the city's library after declaring present facilities are inadequate. (See another San Rafael City Council story, page 1.)

The San Rafael City Council Also:

CITY MANAGER — Declared that acting City Mgr. William J. Bielser, who was appointed to the "acting" post in the wake of the resignation of City Mgr. James H. McCown two weeks ago, is now a full-fledged city manager.

ROSS STREET — Put over to Feb. 5 consideration of an appeal of planning commission denial of the Tamalpais Land and Development Co.'s proposal for a multiple apartment development at 127 Ross Street.

REZONING — Rezoned 22 acres off Mitchell Boulevard from heavy commercial to planned community district in connection with the Northgate Industrial Park Unit II.

UTILITY DISTRICT — Declared a strip of land stretching along Francisco Boulevard from Bellam Boulevard to Irwin Street as "Underground Utility District No. 5," but made no commitment to finance the undergrounding. Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere, a spokesman for the Francisco Boulevard Beautification Committee, predicted undergrounding of utilities "as early as 1975."

PEACE PLEA — Rejected a request by the Christmas Eve Peace Committee to declare Saturday as "Peace Day" in the city and declined to lead a Marin peace march sponsored by the Northern California Peace Action Coalition. The council said it had a longstanding policy of "not becoming involved in national issues."

CITIZENS COMMITTEE — Postponed appointments to the citizens committee on the general plan to Feb. 5 in the wake of a flood of 90 applications for 60 committee seats. The city earlier had experienced difficulty in encouraging applications.

DOLLAR ESTATE — Authorized expenditures of up to $1,000 on a matching basis with Marin Heritage for a feasibility study aimed at determining the financial implications of purchase, preservation and use of the Robert Dollar estate on Mission Avenue. The study, to be made by an independent consultant and "appropriate professionals" already associated with the preservationist group, will be completed within 90 days.

APPOINTMENT — Appointed colleague John A. Miskimen as city representative on the Redwood Empire Association, a post vacated by the death of Harry A. Barbier.

BONDS — Called for bids on $2.25 million in open space bonds on Feb. 5.

TRANSFER — Transferred from San Anselmo to San Rafael two small parcels on Alexander Avenue. The land is now in San Anselmo, though all other property fronting on the avenue is in San Rafael. San Anselmo approved the action.

LANDSLIDE — Learned that an old landslide on the site slated for acquisition by the Mont Marin Open Space Assessment District will cost about $50,000 to repair, and directed homeowners to meet with city officials on Jan. 23 to discuss the matter.

GIFT — Referred to the parks and recreation commission a request by E. S. Arntz that he give two acres of land in Bayside Acres to the city in return for payment of an $11,000 sewer assessment.

STOP SIGNS — Ordered stop signs placed on Lea Drive at Regina Way in both directions and that Belle and Ridge avenues be turned into a three-way-stop intersection.

POLICE — Authorized Police Chief Joseph J. Brusatori to make discretionary payments to members of the auxiliary police force as compensation for services rendered.

PERSONNEL — Hired Jack K. Karr as patrolman for $886 monthly; hired Chris Southard as a civil engineer for $950 monthly and promoted Roland L. Brust to assistant civil engineer at a salary of $1,142 monthly.

MANAGERS — Declared the posts of 37 city employees to be "miscellaneous management and confidential personnel," or employees having access to personnel bargaining information, and said such employees may not be represented by the miscellaneous employees association.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Feb. 5.

No specific date or bond amount was mentioned, however.

The action came after city fathers rejected all bids for a public toilet addition to the facility in the wake of news that the proposed addition would have to be torn down to make way for future expansion.

Low bid on the proposed toilet addition was about $5,000 more than the $12,500 budgeted for the improvement, according to Bryce W. Anderson, library board member.

Anderson said that if the toilets were constructed now, "we'd have to tear them out again to expand." He said plans originally had called for one toilet but had mushroomed into a four-toilet addition. The project has already cost about $600 due to an architectural study, he said.

Anderson said there is no room in the library for more books, and that the facility is inadequate by American Library Association standards for a city San Rafael's size.

At Anderson's suggestion, the council said funds budgeted for the toilet addition will be used for "earthquake-proofing" of the library, an improvement harmonious with future expansion.

Terra Linda Open Space Still In Air

The San Rafael City Council, faced with increasing demands by Terra Lindans that a 10-acre parcel slated for development be acquired as open space, last night asked for more staff information on the matter.

It was the second time in as many hearings that the council had declined action in the tug of war between open space advocates and developer Jerry Meislin, despite a plea by Mayor C. Paul Bettini for a decision without further delay.

At issue is a parcel near Knockaboul Way and Wintergreen Terrace on which Meislin already has received city approval of a tentative map for a 16-lot subdivision.

John Nicholas of 6 Wintergreen Terrace noting that the old Terra Linda Community Services District board unanimously had tapped the parcel for acquisition through a $60,000 reserve fund, presented city fathers with petitions containing signatures of 668 families urging preservation of the land.

Nicholas said that residents in the 1,000-home community "fantastically approved" acquisition of the land, and argued the site was "visible to the majority of the valley."

Others noted the city annexation agreement with Terra Linda earmarked the reserve fund for local open space acquisition and argued that springs on the site made development unfeasible.

Jean Starkweather of Terra Linda said the area has had "an historic slide problem" and claimed a soils report made by Meislin — which found no presence of ground water despite "numerous borings" — was made in September during the drought.

The study by Cooper-Clark soils engineers of Novato is dated Nov. 8 and "was probably made several months before that," Meislin said.

The developer argued he had proceeded in good faith with his plans on the basis of tentative map approval by the city. Declaring that he thought the history of the site to be "an old wives tale," Meislin charged his proposal "was being hindered by political motivations."

Meislin said his plans call for public access for Terra Lindans to the nearby 184-acre Mont Marin Open Space Assessment District lands.

Bettini, who described the petitions as "fanfare," urged a prompt decision on the matter. "Either he has the opportunity to go ahead with development or we purchase the land as open space," he said.

Councilman Lawrence E. Mulryan, describing the petitions as an "important indication" of community wishes, urged authorization of up to $60,000 to acquire the land as open space.

Bettini, saying purchase of the parcel now might mean less money for Terra Linda acquisitions through open space bonds later, asked for more staff advice on other available open lands in the community.

The council deferred action until Feb. 5 pending reports from staff and the parks and recreation commission.

Senator Claims Auto Recalls Topped Sales

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., says auto makers recalled more cars than they made last year and should be required to pay for repairs when safety-related recalls are issued.

Present law only requires manufacturers to issue a recall when a safety defect is noted, Nelson said Monday. He said auto firms often do pay for repairs but are not required to do so.

But Nelson said manufacturers did not pay costs when Corvairs were recalled to fix heaters that leaked fumes, when Volkswagens were recalled to repair windshield wipers, and when Alfa Romeos were recalled to fix defective brake fluid reservoirs.

Concert Slated As Scholarship Fund-Raiser

The Lydian Ensemble, a chamber music group, will present a concert at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 28 at Caleruega Hall, Dominican College, San Rafael, to raise funds for music scholarships.

The ensemble consists of Beverly Bellows, a harpist who is with the Oakland Symphony Orchestra, Oakland Ballet and San Francisco Opera Company; Jean Chandler, a flutist with the Marin Symphony Orchestra; and Janice Negherbon, a biolist, who plays with the Oakland Sympony Orchestra.

Plenty To See At Sports Show

Pardon me if I take off the shoes and rest my feet awhile. I wandered through the huge halls and pavillions of the Cow Palace last night at the San Francisco Sports and Boat Show and that takes a little bit of walking.

Although I didn't count them, I'll take publicist Graham Kislingbury's word for it that there are a record 628 exhibits spread over the Cow Palace grounds and in the main pavilion.

OUT OF THE RAIN of winter and into the dreams of vacation there I was in the Vacationland Hall gathering literature from exhibits with that outdoor chamber of commerce air, from Canada, from Idaho, from Wyoming, and from nearby Redwood Empire haunts. Men and women working the booths told of all the great fishing and hunting their areas provided.

Then I strolled through hall after hall of campers and camper trucks, huge mobile homes, every make and model imaginable. Some of the plushier homes on wheels carried price tags of up to $24,000. But being a realist, I spent more time looking at the Volkswagen campers. You don't see too many sports writers driving around in the more expensive ones . . . unless he's free loading on somebody else's rig.

AFTER THAT TRIP through vacationland spots and seeing the rigs that could get you there, I hot-footed it to the South Hall to get the latest on fishing tackle and studied some hand-tied flies, rods, reels, lures and all those streamside goodies. By now the rain of winter was being locked out of my consciousness and my visions were only of some mountainside stream and the clear air of summer.

When I came upon some water skiing exhibits, I immediately looked up the Western Wood Manufacturing Co. which is represented by world champ Mike Suyderhoud of Petaluma, and sure enough, I ran into Mike and his father, Jaap, of San Anselmo.

Mike and Jaap were on hand to discuss water skiing to any of the show goers who stopped by the booth. In addition, there is a continuous videotape of Mike going through his water skiing routine which s really something to behold.

In the main pavilion are the beautiful boats of the show — sailboats, power boats, dinghies to ocean-going craft. At the front of the hall, standing majestically, was the queen of the show — not the pretty blonde, the boat, the boat. It's a Columbia 45-footer, the exterior trim of solid teak gleaming under the bright lights. Cost is a mere $45,000. I had the feeling of being in a big city for the first time, looking up, not at the skyscrapers, but at tall white sails.

NO VISIT TO the boat show would be complete without seeing show director Tom Rooney's gimmick boat, this time the Wrigley Chewing Gum Boat, a catamaran with pontoons shaped and painted to look like giant packages of spearmint gum. It was designed by Brooks Stevens and made by Don Price in the backyard of his Santa Rosa home.

The Hall of Guns is one of the popular attractions of the show and features a display of Buffalo Bill Cody's guns, with Cody's grandson, looking every bit like his grandpa, there to talk to the visitors. There is also an exhibit of the evolution of cartridges which has painstakingly been assembled over the past 54 years.

THE HUCK FINN fishing pond for the kids is still a part of the show and just a peek inside to look at the expressions on those kids' faces when they catch a five-inch trout is worth the price of admission.

The 31st annual sports-boat show will run through Sunday, from 2 to 11 p.m. on weekdays, from 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Sunday.

And take your check book. Everything you see is for sale. Even that $45,000 dandy.

Ailing Attles Sent To Bed

All-Star Thurmond To Coach

Combined AP & UPI

OAKLAND — Nate Thurmond, a National Basketball Association All-Star again after a long wait, will coach the Golden State Warriors tonight from his center position.

The Western Division coaches added the 6-foot-11 veteran to the West All-Star squad today, 24 hours after Thurmond learned he would be player-coach for a week in the absence of coach Al Attles.

Attles has been ordered to take a week off. He is ill with pneumonitis and will rejoin the team Jan. 25 for the game here against Kansas City-Omaha.

Guard Jeff Mullins, when he learned of the ailment, said: "We are going to miss the leadership and direction of Al."

The Cavaliers are nestled in the cellar of the NBA's Centeral Division with a 15-30 mark while Golden State is second in the Pacific Division with a 29-14 mark.

The last time Thurmond played in the All-Star game was in 1967. He was named to play in the 1968 and 1970 games but missed them because of injuries.

He joins Warriors forward Rick Barry on this year's West team. Barry, just back from the American Basketball Association, also last played in the NBA All-Star game in 1967.

The 1967 game was at San Francisco's Cow Palace and the Warriors' entries were among the stars. Barry scored 38 points while Thurmond scored 16 and grabbed 18 rebounds.

A MIAMI PROMISE

'We'll Try To Be Better Team Next Season'–Shula

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — In his final news conference yesterday before leaving California to return to Florida as the conquering hero, Super Bowl VII winner Don Shula had some bad news for the other 25 coaches in the National Football League.

"We'll be out to be a better football team next season," the 42 year-old coach of the Miami Dolphins said.

"Our desire will have to be to repeat, that's where it has to start," Shula continued. "But I'm not worried. This team has done everything I've asked them to do in the three years I've been at Miami and I don't see any reason for them to change."

Although his perfect 17-0 Dolphins had only two starters over 30 in their 14-7 victory over the Washington Redskins Sunday, the Miami coach wasn't ready to talk about a Dolphin dynasty.

"I don't think you ever hear coach-types talk about dynasties," Shula said. "We know the competition in this league is very tough."

Only tight end Marv Fleming and linebacker Nick Buoniconti, both 31, were Miami Super Bowl starters over 30 and the Dolphin mentor said he didn't look for any of his players to retire, including backup quarterback Earl Morrall, who will be 39 before next season.

DON SHULA
Gives views

"We have a couple of spots where we've got some age," Shula noted, "but basically we're a young football team and we're grooming some younger players, too."

"It's nice to win here in the backyard of a guy (Rosenbloom) who has severely criticized me in the past at not being able to win the big one," he said.

After the news confernce, he had a three-minute phone conversation with President Nixon in which he received the President's congratulations.

Meanwhile, last night, when the Washington Redskins returned to Redskin Park, a small but vocal group of fans cheered them and sang, "Hail to the Redskins."

Obviously pleased with the enthusiastic welcome, Allen told the crowd he "didn't think we'd have such a turnout after we lost.

2 Hamilton Boxers Win Vs. England

The U.S. national team, however, suffered a 6-5 defeat to the English, as light-middleweight Reggie Jones lost a controversial decision to John Whitehorn.

Wells, a heavyweight from Fort Worth, Tex., needed only two punches to dispose of Les McGowen of Liverpool in a first-round knockout. The first punch stunned McGowan, and the second knocked him unconscious for three minutes.

Light flyweight Rivera, of New York City, was awarded a three-round decision over Mickey Abrams of England, and the verdict drew jeers from the crowd.

Also unpopular was Whitehorn's decision over Jones, who had suffered a similar controversial loss to Valery Tregubov of the Soviet Union in the Olympics. This time, Jones knocked Whitehorn down twice for counts of eight in the first minute of the first round, and apparently won the second as well, but the Englishman rallied to win the third round and was awarded the fight.

In another controversial bout, middleweight Frankie Lucas of London was given a decision even though he was floored for eight in the first round and appeared to dominate only the last half of the last round.

The U.S. team later this month will fight the Soviet Union in Las Vegas, Nev.

USF Impresses Bruins' Coach

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Gary Cunningham, John Wooden's right-hand man, saw the University of San Francisco's Dons last week and came away impressed.

"USF is a very fine ball club," the UCLA assistant coach told the Southern California basketball writers Monday. "They can shoot from the outside, they're a strong rebounding team, they run well and they're strong on defense.

"I'm very impressed with them."

Cunningham was in San Francisco last Thursday night and scouted the Dons' 109-92 romp over Loyola of Los Angeles.

"They ran against Loyola and converted many points off their fast break," he said "Defensively, they play both zone and man-to-man effectively."

57 STRAIGHT

Ironically, UCLA has 57 straight wins over three seasons and is closing in on USF's all-time record of 60 straight victories.

The No. 1-ranked Bruins, who have a 12-0 record this season, and the 11th-rated Dons, who are 12-1, meet at Pauley Pavilion Friday night. UCLA faces Providence, 10-1, here Saturday night.

In Pacific-8 action last weekend, the Bruins won 82-67 at Stanford and 69-50 at California.

When the Bruins play USF and Providence next weekend, they'll probably be without starting guard Tommy Curtis, who missed the Stanford and Cal games with the flu.

THE FLU

"He has the gastrointestinal flu and it's doubtful if he'll be ready," the Bruin assistant coach said.

Loyola coach Dick Baker, whose Lions were trounced by USF by 17 points in West Coast Athletic Conference play last week, was asked to pick a UCLA-San Francisco winner.

"USF is a very good team and UCLA is a very, very good team," Baker declared. "UCLA probably won't play anyone much tougher before —or if— they get to the regionals.

'LONG NIGHT'

"UCLA better play well or it could be a long night for them. Obviously, though, I'd have to pick UCLA if I was going to bet."

All-America Ed Ratleff of eighth-ranked Cal State Long Beach and teammate Nate Stephens, the 49ers' 6-foot-11 starting center, have the flu, coach Jerry Tarkanian revealed.

"We don't play until Saturday night so we have some time," Tarkanian said.

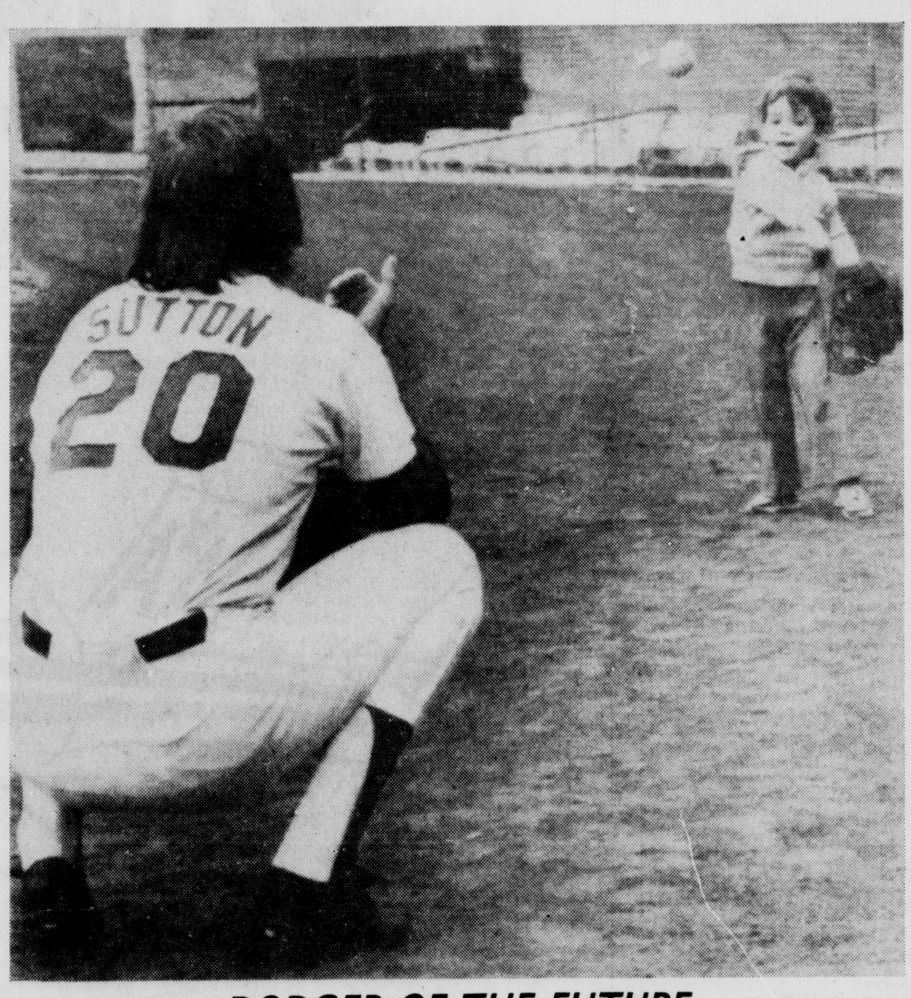
'FORTUNATE'

"We've been fortunate to make it through the first part of our schedule as well as we did," Tarkanian said. "We've played only three of our first 14 games at home and the road schedule has really worn the kids down.

"Now we have eight of our remaining 12 games on the home court and the schedule isn't as demanding."

Game Day Error

The Marin County Athletic League basketball game between Terra Linda and Tamalpais high schools will be played at College of Marin at 4 p.m. tomorrow, instead of today, as reported in yesterday's Independent-Journal.



DODGER OF THE FUTURE

ABA 'Secret' Draft Held By Telephone

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Basketball Association held a "secret" draft of collegiate basketball players by telephone yesterday and mum is the word.

The draft included both seniors and underclassmen but little information was released concerning the identity of those drafted.

The Virginia Squires formally announced that they drafted George Gervin, formerly of Eastern Michigan. Garvin dropped out of school last year after becoming involved in a fight in the championship game of the National Collegiate Athletic Association College Division Tournament. He has been playing for the Pontiac team in the Continental League in Detroit.

The Norfolk Virginian-Pilot reported it is believed that Gervin has already signed with the Squires.

Gervin reportedly had been on the verge of signing with a National Basketball Association team, but NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy would not approve the contract.

Larry McNeill, a 6-foot-9 star for Marquette, was reportedly drafted by the San Diego Conquistadors.

One ABA coach, who declined to be quoted by name, said. "We're trying to break the NBA and sign these guys even before the other league even holds its draft. Most of us are not even going to leak the names of the players we drafted." The ABA office reportedly gave strict orders not to leak any of the players names.

All-Americans Bill Walton of UCLA, Ed Ratleff of Long Beach State and Doug Collins of Illinois State were not on the list since they were drafted last year in the regular ABA draft.

SAN FRANCISCO TENNIS

Nancy Gunter, Fran Durr Win

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Thirty-year-old veteran stars Nancy Gunter of San Angelo, Tex., and Francoise Durr of Paris, fought off younger challengers to win opening round singles matches in the $25,000 British Motors Pro Tennis Championships here last night.

After a first set loss and a near defeat in the second, Miss Durr edged Leslie Hunt of Australia, 4-6, 7-5, 6-3.

Both winners moved into the quarter final round.

Billie Jean King of Berkeley, Calif., and Rosie Casals of Sausalito moved into the semifinals of doubles play with a slim 6-3, 7-6 victory over Chris Kemmer of Los Angeles and Barbara Downs of Alamo, Calif.

The tourney continues through Saturday.

Radio Network Sets For NBA Broadcasts

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Basketball Association and the Mutual Broadcasting System announced yesterday the establishment of a national radio network "NBA Game of the Week"

The network program will be launched with the East-West All-Star from Chicago on Jan. 23. Nine regular games will be aired on different nights of the week.

TONIGHT

PREP OF THE WEEK

After Just 2 Years Play, Stewart Emerges As Star

By LEW CODDINGTON

Rival basketball players, flailing helplessly under the bucket as Byron Stewart plucks a rebound high above them, can take consolation in one fact: there once was a time when Stewart was their size, or smaller.

It's not true now, and won't be true again. Only a junior at San Rafael High School, Stewart stands 6-foot-7 and last week blended his height with other attributes to score 52 points and grab 38 rebounds in two games to become Independent-Journal Prep of the Week.

For somebody who has been playing organized ball only two years, the achievement is considerable. To opponents who must face him in years to come, the prospect is terrifying.

"I don't think he realizes how good he can be," said San Rafael coach Bret Tovani, who also coached Stewart last year when both were with the junior varsity.

That may be because Stewart still has a keen sense of what he was — an athlete of average size, playing Pop Warner football in San Anselmo, with no basketball experience or interest.

Then he began to grow, five inches in one year and another five a couple of years later. And he discovered a phenomenon — when you're growing like that, a lot of people suggest that you might want to play some basketball.

"I played some in P.E. at White Hill Junior High (in Fairfax) in the seventh grade, and got to like it, because I was a little bit better than everybody else," he said. But he didn't play in the eighth grade, and after moving failed to make San Rafael's freshman team in the ninth. As a sophomore, he made the J.V. team, but didn't begin to play regularly until the second half of the season.

"A lot of people got behind me and pushed me," said Stewart. "Coach Tovani. Coach (Mike) Diaz (who handled the varsity last year), Guy Perry (a forward) and the other guys on the team. The pushing helped. I didn't know they cared, but they did."

Stewart also put in a plug for the cheerleaders, which is understandable, since his sister Darla is one. Both Darla and his other sister, Tonnie, are on the tall side, which is remarkable because his parents are not.

BYRON STEWART

"I don't think he realizes how good he can be," says his coach. "He could be the best thing this league has ever seen."
(Independent-Journal sketch by Jack Lucey)

Byron's father, Vern, stands 6-2 and is a representative for Standard Oil now working on racial problems in the Richmond plant. His mother, Ruby, works at Marin General Hospital and is about to become a registered nurse, and she is just 5-7.

"I'm beginning to think about college," he said. "I really haven't decided, but of course there are places where everybody'd like to go — UCLA, Berkeley, Long Beach."

The one area where he would like to improve his game most is rebounding, surprisingly. "I need more board power, I need to be more solid," he said. His favorite professional players — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Bob Dandridge, and Curtis Perry — all have this trait.

Stewart weighs 205 pounds, slim for his height, and the requisite strength presumably can be developed through weight training. "The incentive will have to come from his realizing how much potential he has," Tovani said. "He could be the best thing this league has ever seen.

Kansas City Toys With NBA 76ers

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Kansas City-Omaha Kings got their chance to toy with the Philadelphia 76ers Monday night and like the rest of the National Basketball Association, they had a ball.

The Kings exploited Philadelphia's defense for 43 points in the third quarter, 10 of them coming on layups, and went on to rout the 76ers 135-108. The loss was the 43rd in 47 games for the 76ers this season, the worst record by far in the league.

Nate Archibald, the league's leading scorer, hit for 30 points and contributed 14 assists before leaving the game with nearly seven minutes left. Freddie Boyd led the 76ers with 24 points.

In the only other game, Dave Bing scored 31 points and Bob Lanier added 24 to lead the Detroit Pistons to a 112-101 victory over the Portland Trail Blazers. The victory snapped a three-game losing streak for the Pistons. Portland, which has won only 11 games, second worst to Philadelphia, was led by Sidney Wicks' 29 points.

FOR PINCH-HITTERS

Casey Supports New Rule

By MILTON RICHMAN

GLENDALE, Calif. (UPI) — "Of course, I'm for it. I've been doin' it all my life, ain't I?"

Casey Stengel, the world's leading authority on designated pinch-hitters—he has designated more of them in his time, perhaps, than any other man alive—paused a moment from puttering around in the garden of his neat but unpretentious, white stucco Spanish-type home here to talk about the American League's newly adopted rule for the upcoming season.

"It's gotta help," said the 82-year-old former manager of the Dodgers, Braves, Mets and Yankees, referring to the use of specified pinch-hitters in place of the pitchers without the pitchers having to leave the game.

"Some pitchers are never gonna get to hit this way," a newsman said to ol' Case.

"The ones who can't hit anyway," he said, answering his own question. "They're never gonna take the good ones out, like (Bob) Gibson, are they?

"Sure, I used to believe in takin' pitchers out," Stengel said. " I believed in takin' other guys out too no matter what inning it was. I took (Clete) Boyer out once in the second inning of a World Series in Pittsburgh, before he ever came up to bat, and got hell for it, remember?

"I did it because they had scored three-four runs in the first inning. So I put in a pinchhitter. Why in hell not? I'm behind, ain't I? How in hell am I gonna catch 'em in nine innings if I don't try to? It's too late to catch 'em tomorrow. The guy I put in to hit for Boyer was outfielder-first baseman Dale Long who used to play for Pittsburgh. The fella hit a line drive that was caught. We scored some runs anyway, but we lost. Remember the big smell they made about it? They said it was Boyer's first World Series, and how could I be so mean and take him out?"

"How can anybody say this is a bad thing?" he asked. "I used it with the Yankees and we won ten pennants."

Stengel put in more than 50 years in baseball before retiring at the end of 1965. He saw many fine hitting pitchers in his time but, this is a trait of his, he shies away from saying which one he thinks was best because he doesn't wish to hurt the feelings of some other pitcher who might feel he's the one Casey should have singled out.

"I won't say (Charlie) Ruffing was the greatest hitter I ever seen for a pitcher, but he was one of 'em. (Don) Drysdale was a very good hitter and so was (Bob) Lemon. I had some pretty good ones, too, like (Ed) Lopat, (Whitey) Ford and (Tommy) Byrne. All of 'em could hit."

Yet Stengel sent in pinchhitters for Lopat, Ford and Byrne when he felt he had to.

Casey says he can't begin to calculate how many pinchhitters he used during the 25 years he managed in the majors.

"I'll tell you one thing, though," he says. "I believed in it."

Nobody was sacred as far as he was concerned either.

Once, after one of his better known infielders was removed for a pinch-hitter, and the infielder who had already begun walking up to the piate became so angry over being pulled that he flung his bat toward the rack.

It bounced into the dugout and landed only inches from Stengel's feet.

The infielder grumbled something about being taken out and headed straight down the dugout steps toward the Yankees clubhouse.

Stengel was after him like a shot.

"Lissen here, you," snapped Casey, his face less than six inches from the infielder's. "When you manage this club, you do it your way. I'm managin' now, so you're gonna do it my way. Understand?"

Warfield Out Of Pro Bowl; Hill Selected

DALLAS (UPI) — Pro bowl officials today excused Miami flanker Paul Warfield from participating in Sunday's game because of illness in his family.

J. D. Hill, a second year player from the Buffalo Bills, was named to replace Warfield. Hill reported to workouts today.

Warfield's 3-year-old son was thought to have been suffering from a case of flu, but doctors in Miami have diagnosed the ailment as scarlet fever.

Redskins 'Not Fired Up' Against Dolphins—Landry

DALLAS (UPI) — The Washington club that Tom Landry saw on his television set last Sunday did not remind him in any way of the team he was forced to look at New Year's Eve.

"Washington just didn't have the edge against Miami that they did against us," said Landry, preparing the National Conference squad for next Sunday's Pro Bowl. "They weren't fired up.

"I don't know if it was their fans that made them that way or if they were just that way for us. But they weren't the same against Miami."

Miami's 14-7 Super Bowl victory over Washington was the chief topic for discussion Monday during workout sessions for the third Pro Bowl to bring together stars of both the NFC and AFC. The first two games, both played in Los Angeles, were split.

Landry could easily sympathize with Washington Coach George Allen who commented after the Redskin loss that even his veteran squad may not have been prepared to handle the "carnival atmosphere," stirred up in the week leading up to the contest.

"It is a tough row to hoe," Landry said of the pre-game buildup. "If you haven't gone through it and you don't know what to expect it is tough.

"The second time we were there (in which Dallas defeated Miami, 24-3) we took the attitude that (Miami Coach) Don Shula took this time. You just have to bear with it and don't let it worry you. It's just something to put up with."

Landry saw a large similarity between the way Washington played against Miami and the way Dallas played against Washington in the 26-3 NFC title game.

"Washington missed its big chances," he said. "They missed that field goal (in the third quarter) and the touchdown (when Jake Scott picked off a Billy Kilmer pass in the end zone in the fourth quarter).

Lesson Learned By Utah

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The Utah Stars learned a valuable lesson last week and they taught it to Carolina's Cougars, pulling off a 128-110 American Basketball Association victory Monday night in the only scheduled league game.

Last Saturday, the Stars had an 18-point first half lead on archrival Kentucky. Utah blew it in the third quarter and let the Colonels pull within two points before the Western Division leader was able to regain its footing and go on to beat the visitors, 105-96.

"We just decided as a team" before the Carolina game "that we've got to keep our offense moving," said assistant Stars' coach Larry Creger following the win over the Cougars. "So, we just kept our running game going."

Utah had the Eastern Division leader on the ropes Monday night and kept it there. While the Colonels kept pace nearly basket-for-basket in the second half, Utah's huge first half lead gave the Stars breathing room during the final two quarters.

The win gave Utah a solid five-game lead over the Denver Rockets in the West, and dropped Carolina's lead 2 ½ games in the East over Kentucky.

Southpaw Bryant Deserves Raise

Ron Bryant was top man on the pitching staff of the Giants last year with a 14-7 record and 2.90 ERA. When a young southpaw tops such veterans as Juan Marichal (6-16) and Sam McDowell (10-8), it is only natural that he should expect a substantial salary increase.

Bryant's $18,500 stipend in 1972 was substantially sweetened in the 1973 contract sent him by Jerry Donovan, Horace Stoneham's chief negotiator of Giant player agreements. But it didn't make Bryant jump with joy. Bryant would like Donovan to further sweeten it.

THIS WAS obvious after Bryant's first contract talk with Donovan. It was cordial but unproductive. It also was very brief, less than five minutes.

When Bryant emerged from Donovan's Candlestick Park office he was asked whether he had signed a new deal. He put a finger to his lips — a silent no comment.

When Donovan was asked if Bryant, last Giant to sign last season, had become the first to sign this year, Donovan wasn't as reluctant to comment.

"NO," SAID Donovan. "It was just a brief talk. I also talked briefly with Chris Speier and Willie McCovey."

Had Speier and McCovey signed?

"Not yet," said Donovan.

"I could," said Donovan, "but I'm not going to. There's been too much talk and speculation about player salaries in the past. If they want to disclose their own salaries that's their business. But I don't have any intention of pinpointing what they make."

BRYANT PINPOINTED his 1972 salary at $18,500 last November in a voluntary bankruptcy that listed debts of $52,490, including $15,000 owed Stoneham, and assets of $36,750, including property in Davis. He noted that the $18,500 was opposed to $21,000 he made in 1971.

The $2,500 salary cut was due to an up-and-down season Bryant had in 1971 when he was 7-3 before the All-Star break, 0-7 after it, for an overall 7-10 record.

Last year Bryant enjoyed his best season ever, pitching his way out of the bullpen into a regular starting assignment. In late June he spun back-to-back shutouts against the Cubs and Braves. By the end of July he stretched a win streak to six in a row.

THEN, ON AUG. 1 he was bombed in Atlanta — three-home runs in the seventh inning — by the same Braves he had shut out on a four-hitter at Candlestick June 26. Something obviously was wrong.

On Aug. 4 Bryant entered St. Luke's Hospital in San Francisco. He was suffering from viral pneumonia. It wasn't until Aug. 20 that he returned to action and he won five of his last seven decisions for his 14-7 finish which is worthy of a substantial salary increase.

Tide Pool Collectors: Conservation Urged

By AL GIDDINGS

Starting today and through next Saturday, there are a series of exceptionally low tides. Access to the intertidal zone area exposed by the low tide has in recent years become an acute problem. New laws have been written to give the tidal invertibrates protection.

Two state departments in California have issued joint statements calling on teachers to help conserve tide pool resources along the state's 1,100 miles of coastline.

THE STATEMENTS, which were mailed to all county and district superintendents of schools, were signed by Wilson Riles, state superintendent of public instruction, and Ray Arnett, director of the Department of Fish and Game.

It urges teachers to help students study and enjoy tide pool animals in their natural surroundings and to share specimens on a countywide basis when collected under special permits in accordance with regulations.

The policy urges the adoption of programs to control and reduce the collection of tide pool specimens by school groups and sets up procedures under which permits for collection may be issued.

Some tide pool animals under the Fish and Game regulations are still legal to take. All of these are listed in the Fish and Game Sport Fishing Regulations under Section 51. Note that the abalone season closed last Sunday. Cockles and clams are still open, but have regular set bag limits, also listed in the fishing regulations.

Another Hunter-Safety class will be started on Saturday, at the San Rafael Police Pistol Range. It will run from 9 to 11:30 a.m., each Saturday for eight weeks. There is a $5 fee to cover equipment and target costs. Jim Wright will be the instructor. (This is not to be confused with the class starting Jan. 22 at 7:30 p.m.)

OVER LAST WEEKEND, good catches of bass and sturgeon were noted. At the Black Point launching ramp, most anglers checked had some sturgeon and some bass. The anglers there fished the area between the Napa and Petaluma rivers.

I stopped at the Marin Rod and Gun Club Pier just in time to see Lou Silviera, one of the club's members, land a 13-pound striper.

Stan Kelly, the harbor master at the Marin Yacht Club, said he saw Don Rossi of San Rafael and two friends come in with three sturgeon.

Everyone is catching lots of flounders, too, so a fishing trip almost anywhere in San Pablo Bay is sure to be productive.

FOUR-HUNDRED persons, many of them from the Department of Fish and Game, are expected for the annual steelhead symposium Feb. 1 at the Cal-Neva Lodge at North Lake Tahoe.

Joint sponsors of the meeting, which will be held on the eve of the fourth annual American Fisheries society wildlife session are the California-Nevada Chapter of the AFS and California Trout.

Trout plants are scheduled for Stafford Lake near Novato this week. Last week's heavy rains have just about filled the reservoirs in Marin County and has eliminated water shortages for this coming season.

DETROIT'S TOP CHOICE SIGNS PACT

DETROIT (UPI) — Right-hander Larry Ike, the Detroit Tigers' No. 1 choice in the recent free agent draft, today gave up his final season of pitching eligibility at Michigan State University to sign a contract with Detroit.

Ike, 22, Grand Rapids, was signed to a contract with Montgomery of the Southern League. He reports to spring training at Lakeland, Fla., on March 15, when the current term ends.

The 6-foot-3, 195-pound pitcher leaves collegiate competition with the Spartans' all-time win mark. Ike began as a freshman and had a 23-6 career record to erase Ron Perranoski's previous Michigan State record of 21 wins.

Mayan Defeated In Phoenix By Baby Cassius

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Baby Cassius of Los Angeles scored a split 10-round decision over Mike Mayan of San Diego in a junior welterweight brawl Monday night at Riverside Ballroom.

The fight was toe-to-toe warfare from the opening bell and the outcome was not decided until the finale.

A packed house of 1,500 booed the decision.

Judge Ed Gary scored it 99-95 for Cassius; Judge Erik Thorne had Mayan the winner, 98-94; and referee Ralph Harmon scored for Cassius, 99-98. United Press International had it 97-97.

Houston's Trade Plans Finalized Over Weekend

HOUSTON (UPI) — General Manager John Breen of the Houston Oilers says a possible trade of the club's No. 1 college draft choice will be settled this weekend.

Trades cannot be made until after Sunday's pro bowl.

"If we do anything I'm sure it will be culminated this weekend," Breen said Monday. "Nothing is definite. There are about half a dozen teams that are interested in our No. 1."

Breen said the Oilers were interested in trading for several Los Angeles Rams, including running back Willie Ellison and guard Tom Mack or linebacker Isiah Robertson and the Rams' second round draft choice.

Track Meet Shuns National Anthem

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Star Spangled Banner won't be played at the Olympic Invitational Track and Field Meet at Madison Square Garden Feb. 16 since "it has become a source of controversy and...nobody has to prove his patriotism at sports events."

Jesse Abramson, director of the meet, said Monday he and meet chairman Edwin H. Mosler, Jr., made the decision Dec. 15 not to play the National Anthem during the track and field meet.

"There is no rule or regulation about playing the anthem at sports events," said Abramson. "We saw no particular purpose in playing it. If we played it just before the meet started at 6:30 p.m. there would be only about 2,000 people in the Garden. There would be nobody to listen to it.

"It was a question of fitting it in. Why suddenly interrupt the meet at say 10 p.m. and play the Anthem before any particular event? We saw no relevance between the Anthem and a track and field meet. Nobody has to prove his patriotism at sports events."

An official of the Millrose Games, the only other indoor track meet scheduled for the Garden this season, that the Anthem "would be played as it has always been for the past 60 years of this meet."

Abramson noted that some fans and players at recent sporting events have not been standing at attention during the traditional playing of the Anthem.

"While there is no particular relevance to our decision," Abramson said, "the Anthem has become a source of controversy and the mood right now in this country has perhaps been the reason for this. I don't know. But what do we need this for now?"

Scoring Lead Kept By New York's Ward

For the past two weeks, it's been New England's Terry Caffery and Tommy Webster, a former California Seal. Before that, it was Winnipeg's Chris Bordeleau. And, still earlier, it was Houston's Gordon Labossiere.

Ward picked up three goals last week and through games of Sunday, Jan. 14, had 36 goals, 36 assists and 72 points. That's good enough for a seven-point lead over Andre Lacroix of Philadelphia, who has moved into second place. Lacroix has 27 goals and 38 assists for 65 points.

Lacroix is one third of the Blazers' "Fire Line" with Danny Lawson and Don Herriman. Together, they've scored 77 goals, been credited with 88 assists and piled up 165 points—more than any other line in the WHA.

Ward's 36 goals remain the best in the league and Quebec's J.C. Tremblay is still the leading playmaker with 48 assists. Tremblay also is the WHA's top scorer among defensemen with 56 points. John Schella of Houston has been charged with the most penalty minutes—145.

A Plea Of Innocent For Hayes

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — A plea of innocent was entered today for Ohio State football coach Woody Hayes on a misdemeanor charge arising from a camera-shoving incident with a photographer in the Rose Bowl.

Hayes was not required to appear for the arraignment and the plea was entered by his attorney, Andrew R. Edwards.

Art Rogers, a photographer for the Los Angeles Times, claimed Hayes pushed Rogers' camera back into his face while he was trying to take pictures on the field shortly before the opening kickoff of the New Year's day game with the University of Southern California.

Comeback Vow By USC's Davis

Combined AP & UPI

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Both legs encased in plaster, Southern California star running back Anthony Davis yesterday said there is "no question" that he will soon be on the athletic field again.

At a news conference at Centinela Valley Community Hospital, where he is recovering from injuries suffered in an auto accident, Davis told reporters from his wheelchair that it would only be a matter of weeks before he was playing baseball for the Trojans.

Davis, who is a star in both football and baseball, rose to fame this year as a former third-string tailback who went on to gain 1,000 yards for the no. 1 ranked Trojan football team, including a spectacular performance against Notre Dame in which he scored six touchdowns, a school record.

Keep Records On Purchases

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I cannot find the purchase slips on the few stocks that I own. In the event that I want to sell them, how am I to establish my cost figures and work out my profits or losses? — E.E.

A. Your predicament illustrates one of my often repeated contentions: Investors should keep a written record of stock transactions in addition to saving their brokerage slips. These slips are very easy to misplace. A written account of all purchases and sales kept in a safe place is added insurance against such a loss.

If your stocks were bought on separate occasions your canceled checks will provide the cost basis for your tax return. However, if these checks are no longer available or if your securities were all bought at one time then perhaps your broker will be able to supply the required information. You may also do some research in your library's back newspaper files, that is assmuming you know the dates these transactions were made. Your certificate will provide the stock transfer date. The prices you determine in this search will of course be only approximate and will have to be adjusted for any subsequent stock splits or dividends. Any odd lot fees and commission charges would have to be added in order to establish your full cost.

Q. I would like your opinion on Continental Corp. (NYSE) as a prospective purchase. — R.B.

A. This insurance holding company is trading at only 9 times projected 1973 earnings. The very modest evaluation accorded these shares reflects investors' attitude to the industry in general as well as Continental's inability to generate new business (new premiums increased only 2 per cent year to year in the September, 1972, period) and continued losses from 88 per cent-owned Diners' Club. The sluggish growth in new premiums is a temporary situation, however, reflecting sale of one subsidiary and the merger of another. The Diners' Club situation has improved with losses pared substantially. Shares are rated a buy for income and safety.

Stock Mart Continues Its Decline

NEW YORK (UPI) — Continued concern over the uncertainties of Phase III of President Nixon's economic plan and the threat of renewed inflation drove prices lower today on the New York Stock Exchange. Trading was moderately active.

The market has suffered in the past three sessions from investor uncertainties surrounding the President's Phase III economic plan, the possibility of a credit squeeze later this year, and the threat of renewed inflation. The Dow has lost almost 28 points in this period. Even positive Vietnam news has not been able to shake the market out of its economic concerns.

Chrysler Corp. was the most active issue, off 5/8 at 39½ on 165,600 shares. Chrysler announced the recall of 6,263 new passenger cars for two possible safety defects.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were slightly lower in fairly active trading. Bowmar Instruments was the most active issue, up 1⅞ at 23¾ on 42,100 shares.

Soggy Marin Hit By Savage Storm

Wind-Whipped Rain Causes New Floods

By MARY LEYDECKER

A violent, new storm today brought heavy, wind-whipped rains to already soggy Marin and Southern Sonoma counties, causing deep flooding and more mudslides.

The damage did not seem as dramatic in many cases as that in last week's storm, when several houses were destroyed, but it was much more widespread and pervasive.

Sections hit hard by rains last week, such as Tamalpais Valley, were eerily quiet today as residents either left their homes or watched from their windows as waters lapped at their houses.

Streets were flooded, cars stalled, school buses halted, trees down and the power was out in many sections of the county.

Virtually every thoroughfare in Marin was jammed bumper-to-bumper throughout the morning as residents attempted to get to work or evacuate their houses.

In Marinview, where one home was destroyed last week, frightened homeowners awakened today to find a heavy water flow still coming down from a muddy hill behind their residences.

At least two Marinview husbands said they were sending their families to live with relatives in the East until the situation improved.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors, meanwhile, today declared the county a local emergency area, the first step in obtaining outside assistance, and asked that Marin be declared an emergency loan area by the Small Business Administration.

Flooding was widespread in Novato, with the deepest waters in the Nave Gardens section, where four feet of water lapped at foundations. South Novato Boulevard, a main thoroughfare, was closed because of flooding.

The weatherman said there was an 80 per cent chance of more rain tonight, decreasing to 30 per cent tomorrow. Gusty winds were expected again. The downpour today was accompanied by winds of up to 75 miles per hour on Mount Tamalpais.

Commuters on Highway 101 ran into trouble this morning beginning at the Marin-Sonoma county line, where San Antonio Creek overflowed, sending a foot and a half of water across the freeway.

Drivers, allowed through one or two at a time at a maximum speed of 5 miles per hour, experienced nearly an hour's wait and traffic backed up more than five miles north.

Farther south, traffic came to a standstill again near Californai Park Hill south of San Rafael because of more flooding.

The California Highway Patrol reported that four southbound and northbound lanes of Highway 101 were closed at 9:30 a.m., and traffic was trickling through the two remaining lanes on both sides.

Mudslides on Waldo Grade further complicated the traffic situation.

Conditions were no better on many less important thoroughfares. Flooding and slides again caused the closing of Shoreline Highway around Bolinas Lagoon, and Sir Francis Drake Boulevard had slides and high water in several sections.

There was extensive flooding

Hopes Soar For Peace In Vietnam

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

There were optimistic reports today from Saigon, Hanoi, Paris and Washington that peace in Vietnam once again was near, but the White House virtually ruled out any ceasefire agreement before President Nixon's second inauguration on Saturday.

Washington reports said earlier that Dr. Henry A. Kissinger might return to Paris as early as Wednesday and initial an agreement with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho on Friday, the eve of the inauguration. But presidential press secretary Ronald Ziegler said in Key Biscayne, Fla., that Kissinger would not return to Paris this week.

There were unconfirmed reports from Saigon that the cease-fire agreement might be initialed on Friday and that Nixon would make an announcement to the nation. Ziegler told reporters, "the President is not going to address the nation" on the subject of Vietnam this week."

Ziegler adamantly refused to discuss the current status of the negotiations, except to say that they still were in progress. Dip-

Resignation Of Hawkins Is Seen

By PAT PERRY

Wilber D. Hawkins, Tamalpais High School District superintendent, is expected to announce his resignation within the next few days from his $33,000-a-year job, it was learned last night.

Hawkins's action is seen in the wake of a stormy closed session of the district board last night in which a majority of trustees apparently wanted to fire the 42-year-old administrator.

Hawkins, who was hired in April 1970 after his predecessor Chester G. Carlisle, was relieved of his duties and reassigned to consultant work, refused today to comment on the closed session. He would neither confirm nor deny that resignation or dismissal was in the offing.

No confirmation of the decision was volunteered by Trustees Robert M. Corlett or Jerrold M. Ladar when they emerged from the private session after 10 o'clock last night, and Trustees Bette Wallace, Frank Miller and David D. Ring left immediately after the closed meeting.

But reporters who waited outside the closed session were unable to avoid overhearing the raised voices of trustees and Hawkins.

WILBER D. HAWKINS
On way out?

It appeared that Corlett, Ladar and Mrs. Wallace favored firing Hawkins for "breach of contract." The original purpose of the closed session was semi-annual evaluation of Hawkins's performance of his duties.

A major point at issue was Hawkins's authorization to spend district funds to furnish and remodel the Tamalpais High School educational leader's office for more than $5,000 without board approval.

Hawkins apparently attempted to bargain with trustees once the decision to fire him seemed apparent. He suggested he be allowed to resign, and be paid $50,000, "a sum equivalent to half my remaining contract."

Development Fund Hiked $4 Million

By NELS JOHNSON

The San Rafael City Council, reacting to a county legal challenge, last night hiked the financial scope of city redevelopment plans by $4 million. (Other San Rafael City Council stories, page 28.)

Improvements under redevelopment, which the city previously had agreed to limit to a maximum of $6 million through tax incremental financing over a seven-year period, will be set at a $10 million lid over 10 years, councilmen agreed.

The move came in the wake of a county suit-filed last Friday on authority of supervisor chairman Arnold M. Baptiste — which claims the city's environmental impact report on redevelopment does not conform to state law. Baptiste was expected today to ask the board for ratification of his action.

The council, meanwhile, directed redevelopment consultant Steven Goldfarb to gird for the court battle. Goldfarb estimated the suit might cost the city up to $35,000 to fight and

Dogs Barked Novato Flood Alarm

By FRANK FARRARA

Barking dogs sent out the alarm in predawn hours today as floodwaters four to five feet deep lapped at the edges of homes in the South Novato Boulevard section of Novato.

Rescue crews patrolled numerous area streets in rowboats as they carried 25 to 30 residents to safety at Nave Gardens and the Palm Lane area.

Bunny Garcia of 84 Palm Lane, lying on a cot at the American Red Cross evacuation center at the Novato Community House, credited her small dog, Scrappy, with awakening her as waters neared the entrance of her mobile home.

"About 5 o'clock, he started barking and running to the door," she said. "I put on the light and the water was within six inches of coming in."

At about 5:45 a.m. the rescuers came and "asked if we wanted to be evacuated," she said. She recently had back surgery and had to be carried out, she said.

Karen Windell of 20 Lauren Avenue said her dog, Ruhig, a large German shepherd, awakened her about 4:30 a.m. when the laundry room became flooded.

The water was almost up to the porch and she stuffed towels in the doorway, she said. "The trash can floated and (so did) the wheelbarrow, which had been by the porch."

She said she waited awhile and then at 6 a.m., she and her three children, Sammy, 10, Jimmy, 9, and Jason, 7, decided to leave in a police boat.

The rainfall was accompanied by winds near 60 miles an hour which upended trees and tore tiles from roofs at Hamilton Air Force Base.

Gerner Park, the Novato Creek demonstration project, was inundated at Seventh Street with waters swirling at the tops of small trees in the park and covering the benches.

Courier said about 60 persons, including policemen and firemen, were involved in the rescue operations.

Air Strikes End Over The North

SAIGON (UPI) — The United States turned the full force of its air power against Communist forces below the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) today but U.S. warplanes were ordered to continue escort flights for manned reconnaissance planes over North Vietnam.

American military spokesmen said the escort fighters were ordered to bomb or attack any Commmunist planes or antiaircraft gun firing on the reconnaissance planes.

About 1,000 U.S. B52 bombers and jet fighter-bombers based in southeast Asia and Guam obeyed President Nixon's orders to end raids on North Vietnam. But they continued to hit targets in Laos, South Vietnam and Cambodia.

The tempo of ground fighting in South Vietnam increased, but military spokesmen reported no attempts by either government or Communist troops to grab territory in anticipation of a cease-fire.

Officials expect such a land-grabbing offensive by both sides about the time of the signing of a peace agreement, but the Saigon high command reported today that no such attacks have yet been made.

U.S. spokesmen confirmed the bombing ended at 10 p.m. Hanoi time Monday night. In air action over the south, military authorities said, two U.S. Army crewmen were wounded slightly when Communist gunners shot down their helicopter Monday 40 miles northwest of Saigon.

As the bombing halt took effect, Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., a special White House emissary, arrived in Saigon and conferred for two hours and 35 minutes with President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Government sources said Haig apparently was sent to Saigon to seek Thieu's acceptance of a revised cease-fire.

U.S. aircraft that bombed North Vietnam until the Nixon order Monday to stop concentrating today on the Ho Chi Minh supply trail through Laos, military sources said.

At Andersen AFB on Guam, military sources said more than 30 B52s returned from Vietnam missions late today while at least that many or more took off on new missions.

The sources said the air war over the north, renewed last April 6 and ended Monday, lasted 285 days and totaled at least 60,017 sorties. A sortie is one flight by one plane.

In the ground war, the Saigon command said, Vietnamese casualties on both the Communist and Saigon sides were heavy, as they have been for the nearly three months since Washington and Hanoi first announced tentative agreement on a cease-fire.

The heaviest fighting was reported near Vi Thanh, 100 miles southwest of Saigon in the Mekong Delta. The command reported 52 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese and 19 South Vietnamese killed in a battle Monday. Thirty-five Saigon infantrymen were reported wounded.

A MEMORIAL TO KING

Press Secretary May Leave Job

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Connie Stuart, Pat Nixon's staff director and press secretary, says she may be shopping around for another position soon.

Mrs. Stuart said that she has "no definite plans to go yet, but I think it's time for people to evaluate." She said that she had indicated to Mrs. Nixon that if "something good came along," I would take it."

Mrs. Stuart has held her $35,000-a-year post since October 1969, a record for her. Most of her other jobs, in public relations, were for two year hitches.

A Seven-Bill Program Against Airliner Piracy

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Republican Sen. Dennis Carpenter, a former FBI agent, has introduced legislation making it punishable by death to hijack an airliner which results in someone being killed.

The seven-bill program, developed by Attorney General Evelle Younger and the Senate Subcommittee on Civil Disorder, also proposes an additional tax of 50-cents per ticket on departing flights to finance a statewide airport security system.

Carpenter, of Newport Beach and a former Republican state chairman, estimated the new tax would produce $26 million a year.

One bill (SB59), authored personally by Carpenter, would make first degree "air piracy" automatic murder and punishable by death in the gas chamber if it resulted in someone being slain.

Under a separate bill, called for by Younger, first degree air piracy would be punishable by life imprisonment without possibility of parole.

Gasoline Rationing Is Doubted

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — "I don't think you are going to be able to stop people from driving automobiles in this city," said Mayor Sam Yorty.

"Silly and asinine," fumed a television newscaster on the air.

"Impossible. You can declare martial law or something like that, but can you imagine? It would be worse than prohibition," said the chairman of the state Air Resources Board, A. J. Haagen-Smit.

Southern California, which more than any other region of the United States has built a lifestyle on the private auto and the freeway, got the word from the federal government Monday.

The government intends—at least on paper—to clean up smog by forcing residents of a six-county area around Los Angeles to give up most driving. The weapon: gasoline rationing from May to October —the peak smog season— intended to force auto usage down as low as 18 per cent of the present level.

The reaction, in one way or another, could be summed up as: "They can't do that to us."

They probably won't.

Most officials said they doubted the rationing plan would ever become law.

It was announced here by William D. Ruckelshaus, head of the Environmental Protection Agency, who was legally required to come up with some plan that will clean up the air in the Los Angeles Basin to meet the standards set by the federal Clean Air Act of 1970.

Ruckelshaus said such a drastic cutback in vehicle use was the only way the standards could be met by the specified deadline—1977-but even he indicated the ration plan was a manuever, not a firm purpose of the government.

There was speculation that the drastic plan was a move to provoke public reaction, bringing pressure on Congress to extend the deadline for meeting clean air standards.

Money Supply

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Bomb Halt News

SAIGON (UPI) — Hanoi Radio announced the halt of American bombing of North Vietnam in a regular broadcast today, but warned that the United States had stopped the bombing before then resumed it.

"The American imperialists have many times stopped partially and entirely the bombing of North Vietnam, then resumed the bombing again more fiercely," the Vietnamese language broadcast said.

Marcos Backed

MANILA (UPI) — A presidential spokesman said today nearly complete results of a national opinion poll shows that Filipinos strongly oppose reopening parliament but favor giving "blanket authority" to President Ferdinand E. Marcos in running the country.

Presidential assistant Guillermo C. de Vega said results showed that 94 per cent of the 14 million persons who voted in citizens' assemblies oppose the scheduled reopening next Monday of the Senate and House of Representatives.

De Vega also said Filipinos strongly endorsed the policies Marcos began when he proclaimed a nationwide martial law last September.

Corona Deadlock

FAIRFIELD (UPI) — The judge ordered a deadlocked jury to try again today to decide whether Juan V. Corona killed 25 farm workers in the worst mass murder in U.S. history.

The jury of ten men and two women was told to make another effort to reach a verdict after reporting at a hearing held yesterday in state prison that it was stalemated eight to four on a verdict.

Superior Court Judge Richard Patton sent the panel back to Solano County Courthouse by bus from Vacaville State Prison, located 12 miles away, to conclude its fourth day of deliberations.

Night Curfews?

BELFAST (UPI) — Government sources warned today that continued bombing by extremists in Northern Ireland could lead to a night curfew and more army roadblocks.

The warning followed a weekend of bombing that killed three policemen and wounded 28 other persons, 25 of them patrons in a pub. Police spokesmen and sources blamed both the Irish Republican Army (IRA) and Protestant extremists for the explosions.

There were two more bombings Monday in the center of Belfast in one 5-minute period, but police said warnings were given in time for them to evacuate the area. There were no injuries.

Economic Controls

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon will get a one-year extension of his wage-price control powers, and if Congress should mandate stronger controls the White House probably would veto or ignore them, a key congressman said today.

House Banking Committee chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., said efforts would be made to force Nixon to clamp strong controls on the economy — particularly in the area of interest rates — but "I don't think you can force him to."

"He (Nixon) has no power to make laws, but we (Congress) have no power to enforce laws," Patman said in an interview.

Industrial Output

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal Reserve Board report shows that industrial production in 1972 increased 7 per cent over 1971, making its best showing in six years.

The board said yesterday that its index measuring output of the nation's factories, mines and utilities gained by a solid 0.8 per cent in December alone.

Not since 1966, when the increase was 9.2 per cent during an economic boom, has the nation's industry produced at such a clip, said a spokesman for the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

Industrial production usually increases 5 to 6 per cent each year.

10,000 Deaths

BERKELEY (AP) — A massive earthquake in the San Francisco Bay Area probably will not level any city but could cause up to 10,000 deaths, say two University of California professors who studied earthquake-ravaged Managua.

"We will not have a leveled city in San Francisco," architecture and design Profs. Henry J. Lagorio and Karl Steinbrugge told a news conference yesterday.

Of an estimated 400 high-rise area buildings, only "one or two per cent will collapse" with an estimated 10,000 persons killed, depending on the time of day, they said.

Britons Approve Market Move

LONDON (AP) — The first opinion poll published since Britain joined the Common Market Jan. 1 shows that most Britons believe the move will be good for the nation.

The poll by Opinion Research Center said attitudes among voters could be summarized as: "It will not be good for me in the short term because of prices, but it is a good thing for the country, and it will certainly be a good thing for our children."

CONSULATES CONSUMED BY FIRE

Fire apparatus filled the corner of Boylston and Berkeley streets in Boston yesterday as firemen fought a five-alarm fire in a building housing both the Irish and Israeli consulates. Some 200 firefighters fought the flames, which gutted the five-story building and caused an estimated $400,000 in damage. (UPI Telephoto)

Ridgeline House Plan Approved By San Anselmo City Planners

The San Anselmo Planning Commission last night approved plans for a house on an open ridgeline above Sleepy Hollow in spite of several neighbors who protested that the building would clash with their homes.

Builder Kurt Kissmann of San Rafael had asked the commission for final approval of a use permit for 234 Oak Springs Drive, a lot under the city's building moratorium. The city council previously had granted the permit provided that the planning commission check that his plans did not severely impair the view of the ridgeline.

Among protestors was Robert Thurmond of 238 Oak Springs Drive, who had a petition from 39 neighbors asking for more changes in Kissmann's design. Thurmond said that most signers were upset that the house was about 1,000 square feet in area, compared to homes of about 2,000 square feet nearby.

"Put it back in the moratorium where it should have been in the first place," he said, asking that the matter be returned to the city council so that the tentative use permit could be revoked.

He also asked that the city force Kissmann to combine three lots in the area into two so that the builder would have space for larger houses.

Attorney David Odom of Sausalito, representing Kissmann, answered that the house was the result of trying to compromise with the city, neighbors and the builder. "This is a smaller house than the one we want to build," he said, "but we couldn't build that one and still minimize the visual effect on the ridge."

He complained that the builder had met unsuccessfully for four hours with neighbors. "We could never come up with a plan that would satisfy the neighbors," he said.

Commissioner Duane Ragan told the Oak Springs group that if they want to keep Kissmann's lot open they should buy the land themselves. "The ridge is partially developed now, and it's not right that it not continue to be so," he said.

John H. Colteaux, commission chairman, urged protestors not to rehash old issues in the dispute which has gone on since October.

The final vote on approval was 5-1, with only Commissioner Daniel H. Goltz opposed. Newly appointed Commissioner Thomas Biesheuvel was absent.

In approving the plans, the commission also turned down Kissmann's request for a five-foot variance in the front yard setback.

Afterward, Thurmond said his neighborhood group would meet to discuss whether they would appeal the planning commission decision to the city council.

The San Anselmo Planning Commission also:

SUBDIVISION — Granted permission to John Komo of San Anselmo to subdivide a parcel at 156 and 166 Tunstead Avenue so that Komo can sell the lot to two buyers.

SEMINARY — Asked the city staff to arrange a future discussion with the San Francisco Theological Seminary about parking and delinquency problems in the area of the school's campus.

SHORELINE — Flood water closes Shoreline Highway at the Richardson Bay Bridge, cutting off access to the heliport. The Fireside Motel was barely high and dry, but the intersection in front was under several feet of water. A mudslide on the ramp to Highway 101 from Tamalpais Valley closed one lane and slowed traffic to a crawl.

Kean Relates Events Of Court Shoot-Out

By MARY LEYDECKER

SAN FRANCISCO — Independent-Journal photographer Jim Kean told in court yesterday his chilling story of how he became involved in the events of Aug. 7, 1970, and again showed his spectacular series of prize-winning photographs.

This time, however, the defendant in the murder-kidnaping case was not in court to hear Kean's calm testimony.

San Quentin convict Ruchell Magee, the sole survivor of three inmates who, along with an accomplice, made an abortive escape attempt from a Marin superior courtroom, is accused of murdering Judge Harold J. Haley.

His case formerly was tied to that of Angela Davis, acquitted last summer in San Jose of any involvement in the plot that left four persons dead.

Magee yesterday repeated his familiar courtroom interruptions, and after refusing to be quiet during the opening session, was removed to a nearby holding cell for the day.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Albert W. Harris Jr. then made an opening statement in which he said evidence during the trial would show that "Magee is guilty as charged of kidnapping and murder in the first degree."

He said Magee fired the shotgun blast which "dissolved" the judge's face and that either that shot or the one allegedly fired by another convict, William Christmas, killed the judge.

Kean, the first witness in a trial expected to last several weeks, told how he almost was forced to join three women jurors, the then Asst. Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas and Judge Haley as hostages.

As the captives were being led out of the Hall of Justice, Kean testified, Magee said to him, "C'mon, you're coming, too."

He fell into line with the group, being marched at gunpoint by the convicts, but the group's young accomplice, Jonathan Jackson, told Magee, "We don't want this Mxxxxx Fxxxxx. We've got enough."

The 17-year-old Jackson, who died a few minutes later, then turned to Kean, the witness said, and remarked with a smile, "You can come along if you want, but you might get killed."

Kean, who earlier had said he was told by the convicts to take all the pictures you want, we are the revolutionaries," said he then continued to take photos of the crime, which ended in a bloody shoot-out in a rental van.

The jury of six women and six men in Judge Morton Colvin's superior courtroom hearing the trial includes three black persons.

They and four alternate jurors are being sequestered in a hotel during the trial, which is being held in heavy security in the same courtroom where the Soledad Brothers were tried behind a bullet-proof glass shield.

DEVELOP

may go unresolved for as long as two years.

Councilmen last night said the city previously had put a $6 million lid on redevelopment improvements in an attempt to avert a litigation with the county over redevelopment.

The $6 million figure was an "undue restriction" that the council had no original intention of making on redevelopment improvements anyway, according to City Mgr. William J. Bielser.

"It was a gracious offer made in the spirit of compromise that has fallen by the wayside" in light of the county's legal action, Bielser said.

The county, as one of several conditions for lifting opposition to redevelopment, has requested that the city limit redevelopment bonds to $3.7 million, a figure nearly tripled by the city last night.

The council made no mention of what effect an additional $4 million would have on redevelopment projects, although the hike appears to open the door for possible expansion of proposed projects as well as inclusion of new projects not previously thought possible.

The council's action came after city fathers adopted an agreement with the San Rafael Board of Education that provides for return to the school system of tax revenue resulting from increases of up to 3.8 per cent of the assessed valuation in the redevelopment area.

The agreement as presented to the council last night lacked any mention of the $6 million lid over a seven-year period, an omission promptly challenged by Lawrence I. Kramer, president of the school board.

Kramer told that the lid would serve only to hamstring the redevelopment plans in light of the county's suit, argued that he didn't want to sign an open-ended agreement or blank check in the redevelopment matter.

"Our intent is not to hamstring the council . . . but we want a finite to the infinite," he said.

At his urging, the council agreed to float up to $10 million in redevelopment bonds through tax incremental financing over a ten-year period.

In addition to the revenue return and new bond scope and timetable, the agreement between the school system and the city prohibits the board from taking any legal action against redevelopment.

The agreement also provides that the pact will be reopened should a redevelopment project create a financial burden on the school system by sparking an increase or decrease in school children.

The board of education will consider adoption of the agreement in a special meeting scheduled for 7:30 p.m. today.

Heritage Tree Hearing Slated

The Novato city council will hold a second public hearing tonight on a proposed heritage tree ordinance which would require a city permit to remove or alter significantly a heritage tree.

The council will meet at 8 p.m. at the Novato Community House and the hearing is scheduled for 10 p.m.

Civic Center Security Session Tomorrow

Marin County supervisors and judges will meet to discuss Civic Center Security at 4 p.m. tomorrow in Room 254 of the Hall of Justice.

Chairman Arnold M. Baptiste said he requested the meeting to iron out differences with the judges arising from the cost of courtroom security.

New Storm Hits Hard In Marin

of streets and roads in Southern Marin. Miller Avenue was closed at Camino Alto, and many cross streets were impassable. The southern entrance to Mill Valley, via Shoreline Highway, was blocked by water and mud.

Central Marin also was widely flooded, with Fourth Street in San Rafael the only major street in the city on which traffic was moving at times today. Corte Madera and Larkspur also reported heavy flooding.

In Fairfax, a huge slide blocked Tamalpais Road and threatened houses. At least one car was caught in the slide.

Many businesses were flooded, and in San Rafael's auto row along Francisco Boulevard, water lapped up to the headlight level of new cars.

Sheriff's deputies, trying to take a rape victim to Marin General Hospital about 5:30 a.m. today, found Bon Air Road impassable. They then headed to Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael, where they were forced to try to locate a doctor to examine the woman since Kaiser doctors refused to, deputies said.

In West Marin, the Seadrift area was cut off by rain water combined with a high tide, and downtown Bolinas was inundated with about a foot of water. Most businessmen kept water out of their stores by sandbagging during the early morning hours.

Water rationing continued in Bolinas, where last week's storm knocked out major lines into the community from the Arroyo Honda dam. The water district's large tank was empty and four smaller tanks were being used today.

Bolinas School was closed, as were all schools in the Shoreline Unified School District, with flooding reported in Bloomfield, Valley Ford and Marshall and slides in other areas.

Novato schools were open but school buses didn't make morning runs on the advice of police.

The Corte Madera Creek flood control channel was reported working fine as far as it is completed upstream, but there was two feet of water reported in some neighbors' yards in the creek area.

The Pacific Gas and Electric Co. reported that power was out in sections of Mill Valley, San Rafael, Sausalito, Tiburon, Belvedere and Woodacre during the early morning hours but had no estimate of the number of homes affected.

In San Rafael, 3.27 inches of rain had fallen in the 24 hours ending at noon today. The latest storm brought the seasonal total in San Rafael to 35.60, more than double the seasonal average at this date.

Other rainfall figures recorded in a 24-hour-period ending at 8 a.m. today included Bolinas, 2.55 inches; Sausalito, 2.1 inches; Novato, 3.5 inches; Woodacre, 3.5 inches; Ross, 3.48 inches; San Anselmo, 3.2 inches, and Petaluma, 2.06 inches.

Elsewhere in Northern California, the Russian River was at flood stage near Healdsburg and at the Guerneville Bridge. San Francisco Airport was forced to operate on emergency power before dawn because of a power failure.

The Bayshore Freeway also was closed for a time, snarling morning commuter traffic.

Board Refuses Teacher Leave

The Tamalpais High School District board last night refused to grant a year's leave of absence to Redwood High School English teacher James Pierce.

The request had been deferred from the board's meeting last week, when trustees said they wanted to "think about it."

Pierce had applied for the leave, without pay, effective Feb. 1 to set up a new program for credentialling teachers at the University of California.

Pierce had the 1971-72 school year off on a similar leave to work for McGraw-Hill Publishing Co., in Chicago. He has taught at Redwood for only one semester since his return.

the reporters overheard Hawkins say.

(Carlisle, relieved of his duties in August 1969 for an alleged lack of leadership, was reassigned to a trustee consultant post, retaining his salary of $27,500 through the life of his contract to June 30, 1970.)

Hawkins evidently felt it would be difficult for him to find comparable employment if it were known he had been dismissed, and could rely only on references from Ring and Miller, his only apparent supporters on the board.

Trustees, too, apparently were concerned at the effect of dismissal on Hawkins' career, and also were worried about the effect of the publicity so close to the April 17 school board elections.

The terms of office of Corlett, Ladar and Ring expire this year. Corlett and Ladar already have announced they will run again. Ring has said he is undecided, and Miller – a firm supporter of Hawkins – is known to have threatened to resign if Hawkins goes.

Corlett, chairman of the board, adamantly refused to comment on the closed session today. Told that reporters had overheard the shouting match over the administrator's evaluation, he would say only "Gee this is news to me."

Hawkins, asked directly today if he is going to resign, answered: "You could ask me that question any time in my career. Maybe yes, maybe no. It all depends on my interests and the interests of the district."

PEACE

lomatic, legal and linguistic experts conferred for more than six hours today in Paris to negotiate the fine points of an agreement and announced they would meet again Wednesday.

Gen. Alexander Haig was in Saigon where he conferred for more than two hours today with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu, presumably to work out further details of the cease-fire agreement being negotiated by Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho.

Informed sources in Saigon discounted reports of an immediate cease-fire and said Haig was asking for Thieu's opinion on a number of different matters and intended to take his views back to Washington. In addition, the sources said, some of Thieu's military advisers were reported en route to Paris to study the various versions of the military protocols to an agreement.

Ziegler surprised reporters by his announcement that Kissinger would not be returning to the Paris peace table this week. On Monday he said Kissinger would be returning "in the relatively near future."

San Rafael Man At Law Seminar

San Rafael attorney Marvin Cahn will discuss the handling of probation hearings and sentencings Saturday at the California Trial Lawyers Association's Criminal Law Seminar in Los Angeles.

Kite Hill Proponents Receive Little Help

The Mill Valley City Council gave only a little encouragement last night to proponents of "saving Kite Hill," the hill at the northwest entrance to the city.

Adopting the interim open space plan as recommended by the city's planning commission, which had approved a plan identical to the proposed Marin Countywide Master Plan, the council asked only that such undeveloped areas as Kite Hill receive further consideration.

The council also asked that the planning commission look into the possibility of naming that area open space along with parcels currently zoned open areas by the city but not included in the interim open space plan.

Over strong objections by representatives for the owner and proposed developers of Kite Hill, the council later in the meeting adopted a residential development moratorium affecting the property, for which town houses have been proposed.

In other action, the council asked the city staff to find out the assessed valuation for small additions made to the North Ridge open space proposal.

Such figures are to be given to the planning commission by its Jan. 22 meeting and to the council for a Jan. 24 gathering.

On Jan. 29 a joint meeting with Larkspur and Corte Madera officials is planned, and Mill Valley Mayor Jean S. Barnard said it was hoped that Mill Valley would have reactions from those cities to its plan by that time.

The Mill Valley City Council also:

FIRE STATION — Postponed further discussion of the question of whether to build a second fire station or find another alternative to the Jan. 24 meeting.

POSTPONED — Also put over to Jan. 24 decisions on appointments to the city's youth, parks and recreation, art commissions and to the human rights miniboard and business assistance committee.

SLIDES — Heard a report on mudslides in the city from City Mgr. William H. Cunningham, who said Upland Drive may be opened by Wednesday night.

Homesite Permits Are Voided

The Mill Valley City Council last night finally decided to accept the advice of an attorney hired to advise the council on the matter and declared permits issued for 83 homesites on Shelter Ridge null and void.

The project, fought by some Mill Valley residents, had been sought by others because it seemed that a low-cost housing project, Shelter Hills, was dependent on extension of Seaver Drive by the Shelter Ridge developers.

Last night it appeared that sponsors of both projects would go ahead with plans any way.

Douglas P. Ferguson, attorney for Shelter Hills, said he thought federal funds would still be available for that project since "we got in under the deadline."

It was indicated that Shelter Ridge developers probably would resubmit their plans and Mayor Jean Barnard said she hoped "starting over again won't be too much of a hardship on the developer."

Attorney Richard H. Breiner had told the council he believed the permits were void because time limits had not been met.

Councilman Robert E. Burton told the audience that he hoped opponents of Shelter Ridge would not view last night's decision as a victory, indicating plans probably would be submitted again.

Flu Medicine

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Cognac Producers of France distributed their own brand of flu vaccine- — an ounce of Cognac mixed with three ounces of orange juice, on the rocks—free to tenants of their building on Madison Avenue Monday.

Marin Men Admit To Drug Count

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An attorney and a musician from Marin County have pleaded guilty to federal narcotics charges of possessing a half an ounce of cocaine.

No date for sentencing was set by U.S. District Court Judge Charles Wyzanski Monday for George E. Miller, 31, legislative counsel for a private law firm in Washington, D.C. and Marco F. Madaio, 29, a Sausalito, Calif., musician. Miller was on vacation here when arrested last September.

The two, along with Brian N. Smith, 27, a Sausalito gardener, originally were indicted for conspiracy to sell cocaine. The indictment containing felony counts was dismissed against Miller and Madaio after their guilty pleas to a misdemeanor count in a criminal information.

Smith still is awaiting trial.

The three originally were accused of arranging to sell 11 pounds of cocaine to federal narcotics undercover agents at a reported price of $110,000. The one-half ounce was described by officials as a "sample" delivered to agents in Marin County for $300.

Miller and Madaio could get as much as a one year prison term and $5,000 fine on their pleas.

Driver Booked On Felony

A 60-year-old San Rafael man was arrested on suspicion of felony drunken driving Saturday after a car he was driving crashed into a vehicle in a parking area on Lincoln Avenue, police said.

Thomas Toaston, of 874 Estancia Way, was booked into Marin County Jail and released after posting $1,200 to appear tomorrow in Marin Municipal Court.

Police said a car driven by Toaston smashed into the rear of a car driven by Ernst A. Kulps of 44 Tamalpais Avenue, San Anselmo. Kulp and his daughter, Virginia, were taken to Marin General Hospital with complaints of pain, according to police, though hospital authorities said the pair was not admitted.

Saturday's Peace Plan Supported

After only an 11-minute discussion last night, the Mill Valley City Council, with one dissenting vote, agreed to back peace demonstrations in Marin and San Francisco set for Saturday, Inauguration Day.

A resolution was adopted declaring Saturday "peace day," decrying recent bombing in North Vietnam and authorizing Mayor Jean Barnard and any other councilmen who wished, to march in a peace rally.

The Marin Christmas Eve Peace Committee has planned a brief demonstration for 9:30 a.m. at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building preceding a cavalcade to San Francisco, where a "walk for peace" will be held at 11 a.m. beginning at the Embarcadero.

Councilman Edward J. Boessenecker voted against the endorsement, saying that "events of the day (cessation of bombing and peace talks) have taken the steam out of it(the demonstration.)"

SNOW FALLS IN JERUSALEM

Soldiers distribute bread and milk to stores in Jerusalem where the first snow of the season has paralyzed the city. The snow yesterday blocked all roads into Jerusalem — from Beersheva in the desert south to the occupied Golan Heights in the north.

First Part Of Budget Delivered

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan today sent the Legislature two-thirds of a $9 billion-plus state budget—a $6.2 billion package of local assistance containing a record increase in school funds.

The 34 per cent boost in school aid and a 118 per cent jump in property tax relief reflected the first year's affect of the $1.1 billion tax shift bill co-sponsored by Reagan and passed by the 1972 Legislature.

Reagan will send the Legislature the rest of his record budget proposal Thursday. After reshaping by the Legislature and a final trimming by the governor, the budget will take effect July 1 for the 1973-74 fiscal year.

It was the second straight year the governor has parceled out his budget in two installments in an attempt to show the taxpayers what the state spends on its own programs and what it funnels back to local government.

The local assistance portion totaled $6,157,801,816, an increase of 28.8 per cent over expenditures in the current fiscal year. Besides school aid and property tax relief, it covered such costly programs as welfare, Medi-Cal health care and mental hygiene.

The second part of the budget will involve such things as financing the various departments of government, higher education and state highway construction.

The taxpayer's dollar would be earmarked out of the state's general fund like this for local assistance: 45.3 cents for schools, 18.4 cents for property tax relief, 15.1 cents for welfare, 12.5 cents for health care services and 8.7 cents for other programs.

"There is no brighter chapter in this entire budget than our support for local schools and the 4.6 million children they educate," Reagan said in his written message to the Legislature.

The budget called for increasing state school aid by $559 million, of which $327 million was an actual boost in education funds and $232 million was to replace revenue lost to school districts because of a rollback in property taxes.

Council Agrees To Delay Redevelopment Decisions

The Corte Madera Town Council last night bowed to pressure from its citizens' committee working on the town general plan and promised not to make decisions about redevelopment unless they are in accord with the plan.

The promise was made good immediately afterward when councilmen unanimously voted to delay a proposed "interim modification" to the existing plan which would have formally acknowledged commercial and industrial uses within the proposed redevelopment area east of Highway 101.

Twenty-nine members of the Corte Madera General Plan Committee — more than 75 per cent — presented a petition asking the council to postpone action on virtually all new development, and particularly on redevelopment, until their work on the plan is complete.

Chairman Joel Shawn said the citizens wanted an assurance that their work wouldn't be "tokenism."

Members were neither for, nor against, the proposed regional shopping center, he assured councilmen; rather they wanted "time to do the job and know someone will consider their work."

Town Mgr. Ronald E. Bartels acknowledged that committee members probably were concerned because a citizens committee had worked long and hard last year on a housing element to the general plan, only to see their work rejected when it was decided to have a complete general plan review.

Shawn contended that there was little point in making proposed interim modifications to the general plan, since he had been told the federal Environmental Protection Agency's objections to Ernest M. Hahn's application for a fill permit for his shopping center could not possibly be resolved until March.

Similarly the Army Corps of Engineers probably wouldn't hold a public hearing on the application until mid-March.

"Anything you do as the town council or the redevelopment agency would be of no effect before then," he warned.

The modifications, proposed by town planning consultants Sedway and Cooke, deleted former land uses, such as a tidelands freeway and industrial sites from the marshlands fronting the bay. The changes also designated natural habitat preserves, such as the Heerdt Marsh and shoreline, at the same time establishing much of the Muzzi property within the proposed redevelopment project as residential, commercial, light industrial and service areas.

The modifications, explained consultant Tom Cooke, represented "certain key decisions relating to redevelopment" but he said it wasn't vital to make them now.

After voting to note the petition "in future decisions relating to redevelopment," the council unanimously put off the modifications until its Feb. 20 meeting when the town's first public hearing on the redevelopment project is set for 7:30 p.m. Councilmen said they might put it off again then, too.

Gunman Takes $150 At Tavern

Police said Perry H. Stuart, owner of the Barrel House tavern at 927 Tamalpais Avenue, had opened the tavern for business at 6 a.m. when a masked man waving a revolver demanded money.

The thief, who wore a beige raincoat, blue striped trousers and well-shined Oxford shoes, took $150 from a cash box and fled on foot, police said.

Death Penalty Advocates Grow

PRINCETON N. J. (UPI) — Capital punishment for murderers meets with the approval of most American adults according to the results of a Gallup poll released Monday.

"In a survey conducted in December, a majority of 57 per cent of adults, 18 and older, said they favor the death penalty for persons convicted of murder," the poll said. "This percentage represents an increase in support since March, 1972 when 50 per cent favored the death penalty."

The survey was based on interviews 1,504 adults, 18 or older, in more than 300 locations.

Patrick Asks Court Of Appeal To Abolish Restraining Order

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Holiday Magic Inc. and founder William Penn Patrick have asked the state Court of Appeal to throw out a temporary restraining order obtained against them.

The state filed suit Dec. 19 in San Francisco Superior Court against Patrick, San Rafael-based Holiday Magic and numerous affiliated firms and individuals. They are accused of allegedly operating "an unlawful endless chain scheme," failing to disclose certain required information to investors and making false and misleading statements regarding investment returns."

A temporary restraining order was issued the same day and Patrick claimed yesterday in a petition that this prevented the defendants from continuing their "usual and established product marketing and distribution program and from conducting sales and recruitment activities essential to petitioners' economic survival."

The court refused to dissolve the order but did modify it. But even this, says Patrick, cripples the businesses and "is constitutionally invalid."

Patrick has taken out full-page newspaper ads criticizing Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger for what he contends is harassment. He also has filed a $10 million damage suit in federal court against Younger and others.

The new petition says no prior notice was given about the restraining order and no opportunity was given to appear and oppose it.

Further, it went on, the lower court directed that it be based on written affidavits and declarations and denied a request for a full evidentiary hearing.

Patrick claims the modified order violated due process and equal protection under the 14th Amendment, violates the California Constitution and abridges rights of freedom of expression and association. This has caused petitioners "irreparable damage," he added.

The appeals court is asked to grant writs which would dissolve the restraining order and direct that a full hearing be held on any such order, including oral testimony and cross examination. He also asks that the lower court be prohibited from issuing any order or injunction which abridges constitutional rights.

Reds Land Robot Car On Moon

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union's unmanned Luna 21 probe landed a Lunokhod-2 robot mooncar on the moon's surface today, the news agency Tass reported.

Luna 21 was launched eight days ago, ending nearly a one-year Soviet respite from lunar exploration.

The 1,848-ton craft will remain stationary until Thursday, Tass said, then will continue work after recharging its chemical power supply with the help of a solar battery.

Assemblyman Asks Movers Watchdog

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti has asked the Public Utilities Commission to eliminate the "incentive to cheat" by the household goods moving industry. He was referring to the practice of some moving firms to deliberately underestimate moving costs to attract a customer, who later will receive a final bill "much higher than the estimate." The Van Nuys Democrat said the "incentive to cheat" will disappear if underestimating is made punishable as a misdemeanor or a license violation.

Herring Loophole Alarms Officials

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SACRAMENTO — Alarmed state officials reported today that Southern California commercial fishermen have found a legal loophole in restrictions on herring fishing and are said to be wiping out the fish at Tomales Bay.

The state strictly controls the commercial harvest in the bay of herring eggs, but belatedly discovered it has no authority to control the taking of adult herring laden with eggs about to spawn.

Emergency legislation to close the loophole was introduced today by Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael. It could reach the governor's desk by Friday if opposition does not block the needed 30 votes in the Senate to waive the rules. Committees have not even been formed yet to hear bills.

Charles Fullerton, deputy director of the Fish and Game Department, said two fishing boats took 167 tons of herring in three days of fishing last week. Storms have delayed the fishing, but up to nine more boats reportedly are on their way to finish the job, Behr's office said.

If more than 500 tons are taken, the herring resource could be "severely depleted," the department warned.

The herring are to be shipped to Korea for processing, the department reported. The eggs are a delicacy in the Orient.

The commercial fishermen apparently always knew of the loophole, but never took advantage of it until this season, when the price of herring rose to $45 a ton.

Behr had a bill two years ago that would have barred all commercial fishing in Tomales Bay, but it was killed after opposition by the Department of Fish and Game. Fullerton said he still opposed banning all commercial fishing in the bay.

Behr's new bill would suspend the harvest of herring in Tomales and San Francisco bays until the department can draft a plan to allow limited takings of the adult fish.

Tax Shift Bill Said Harmful To Schools

The effect of the new state tax-shift school financing law on the Ross School District could restrict the tax rate to $2.097 per $100 assessed valuation, compared to this year's rate of $2.385, Supt. Thomas A. Anderson told trustees last night.

But the impact may not be disastrous to Ross, however, Anderson said, because Ross voters approved a higher tax ceiling in June 1970.

The unused portion of that ceiling, some 57 cents, could be added to the $2.097 mandated by the new state law, Anderson said.

In other business, the board voted unanimously to deny teachers' requests for a 1.5 per cent salary hike. The teachers had asked that $4,700 remaining in the budget when a new kindergarten teacher was hired at a lower salary scale than her predecessor be used for the raise.

Anderson said trustees believed it was not appropriate to grant salary raises in midyear, and indicated they would consider the question of teachers' take home pay in relation to increased retirement contributions in this year's salary negotiations.

The Ross School District Board Also:

CITIZENS — Appointed Trustee Sally Rakow to attend the Feb. 13 meeting of the Ross School Parent Teacher Association to discuss the group acting as citizens' advisory committee when the board needs to know community feelings.

STATE AID — Authorized applying for state funds to run a learning disability instruction program at Ross School, and told Anderson to seek a teacher for the class.

BOILERS — Authorized new safety controls for the school's newest boiler but delayed a decision on replacing the 33-year-old boiler until an engineering study shows whether it's necessary.

CONTRACTS — Renewed Anderson's two-year contract at $21,100 a9year and that of principal William M. Cooper at $18,990 a year, the same as their current salaries.

ENROLLMENT — Heard that Ross School enrollment is now 516 students, up 13 since school began in September and up from last year's total of 470 students.

MEETING — Changed its next meeting date to Feb. 5 at 7:45 p.m. at Ross School to avoid conflicts with holidays.

Youth Is Booked On Hash Charge

Belvedere police have booked a 16-year-old Belvedere resident into Marin County Juvenile Hall on suspicion of possessing hashish for sale, officers reported yesterday.

The arrest was made Friday after the boy's mother called investigators. Officers said they found a brick of hashish in the boy's possession, as well as "considerable" narcotics paraphernalia.

The youth was not identified on a standing order of Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court.

Pay Instructions Will Be Given

Trustees of the Bolinas-Stinson School District will meet in special closed session at 8 p.m. today at Bolinas School to instruct its negotiators on employee salaries, according to Dist. Supt. Lester M. Horning.

Trial Opens In Slaying Of Guard

The trial of two San Quentin inmates, charged with killing a guard, began yesterday with battles promised over the truthfulness of prosecution witnesses and the physical evidence.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Joshua W. Thomas said he will show that Earl Billy Gibson and Lawrence Justice knifed inmate Herman Johnson on July 19, 1971, then, two days later, killed guard Leo G. Davis as Johnson, recovering from his wounds, looked on through the meal slot in his cell door at the prison hospital.

However, Marvin Stender, one of two defense attorneys, said in his opening argument that Johnson is a liar. "Johnson could not and did not see the attack on officer Davis," he said.

Opening statements in the heavily guarded superior courtroom of Judge Joseph G. Wilson took up the first day of the trial, which is expected to last six weeks. Stender was to wrap up his argument today, then the prosecution was to call the first of its 41 scheduled witnesses, a guard who took Johnson to the hospital.

Stender charged that Johnson and other inmate witnesses testifying for the prosecution are motivated by hope of parole. The defense attorney noted that Johnson was paroled three days after he identified Justice and Gibson and has since been convicted of burglary without having his parole revoked.

"He is, in effect, the only man in California who can commit crimes while on parole and not be sent to prison," Stender said.

Stender also told the jury yesterday he will challenge the physical evidence. He called testing of blood samples taken from the murder scene "deficient," and noted that fingerprints at the scene of the killing, on the knife itself and in a nearby room were not those of Justice and Gibson.

Thomas, however, contended that Justice has rare type AB blood, the kind found on the knife, on clothing left behind by the knifers and on a roll of toilet paper. Justice had cuts on a hand when apprehended.

Johnson, a target because he offered to testify against black inmates at Soledad Prison, will testify that he was stabbed once each by the two men on a deserted stairway near the prison exercise yard, according to Thomas.

Immunity Bill For Newsmen

The proposal ACA9 is a constitutional amendment subject to ratification by the voters if approved by the Legislature. He also introduced an implementing companion bill AB75 Monday.

At least four other legislators have introduced measures aimed at giving a newsman additional legal standing to shield himself and his sources. The legislation resulted from the recent jailings of news reporters who refused to divulge the identities of informants.

Among the measures by other legislators is AB4 by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael. It also would grant newsmen absolute immunity from disclosing sources and unpublished information.

The Bagley measure, however, would take effect much sooner if signed into law. Z'berg's measure would not become law until the end of 1974 since it would require voter approval to amend the constitution.

A money bag containing $140 was stolen yesterday from the Donut House, 202 Douglas Street, Petaluma, police reported. A window was pried open to gain entry.

Woodcock Back In The Economic Family

DETROIT (UPI) — United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock today accepted membership on the federal labor-management advisory committee "despite opposition" to President Nixon's economic program.

Woodcock's acceptance brought the 1.5 million-member UAW back into the Nixon administration's economic program for the first time since last March when Woodcock quit the federal pay board.

Woodcock was one of five labor leaders invited to sit on the 10-man committee which will advise the Cost of Living Council on new wage and price guidelines.

He said he would take part on that committee even though the UAW is urging Congress to reject the proposed one-year extension of the Economic Stabilization Act, which expires at the end of April.

"The reduced reliance on outright controls under Phase III of the economic stabilization program announced last week is a step in the right direction, but it does not go nearly far enough," Woodcock said at a news conference.

"The act places in the hands of the executive (President Nixon) huge and largely unrestricted powers to impose controls on wages and prices. Thus far, those powers have been used ineffectively with respect to prices and inequitably with respect to wages.

"For more than 15 years we have opposed outright controls except in clear emergencies because controls inevitably cause widespread economic distortions and inequities."

Woodcock said the UAW prefers a "price-wage review board which would invoke the force of an informed public opinion as a restraining influence."

Looking forward to this summer's negotiations with the "Big Three" auto companies — General Motors, Ford and Chrysler —on contracts covering more than 700,000 auto workers, Woodcock said the UAW intends "to follow a responsible anti-inflationary course."

Parents Day School Board Meeting Set

The Shoreline United School District board will meet at 2 p.m. Thursday at Tomales High School in conjunction with a parents day at the high school.

Under a program sponsored by the Tomales High School and Tomales Elementary Parent-Teacher associations, parents will visit classrooms, meet students and faculty members and attend meetings of the student council and district board.

The parents day will start at 9 a.m. with a welcome by Spirito Ballatore, student body president, and end with the board meeting.

Supt. Charles E. McCully is scheduled to report on the impact of the state school finance bill on the district.

Demos Name Mertle As Chairman

Robert E. Mertle of San Rafael last night won a contested election for chairman of the Marin County Central Committee.

Mertle, owner of a plastics factory that burned last week in Richmond, narrowly defeated Lotte Schiller, reported outgoing cochairman Gordon Pusser.

Other officers elected were Olive Lewis of Terra Linda as vice chairman, George Silvestri of Novato as treasurer and Richmond Young of Corte Madera as secretary. Mrs. Lewis defeated Richmond Young and Young then defeated Mary Henry. Silvestri was unopposed.

The committee, with 23 of its 24 members at the election session in the Marin Civic Center, also appointed seven persons to vacancies. In the Third Supervisorial District, Robert Politzer and Cathy Waycott were named to the committee. In the fourth district, Stanley Shell was appointed, and in the fifth district, Carol Floyd was appointed.

Seamstress Reports Sex Assault

A San Francisco seamstress said she was raped and robbed somewhere on Mount Tamalpais early today by two men who forced her into their car while she was making a phone call on Polk Street in San Francisco.

The 25-year-old woman told Marin City sheriff's deputies that an auto stopped near the phone booth about 2:45 a.m. and a man asked her if she wanted a ride. When she declined, she reported one of the two men got out of the car, grabbed her and forced her into the vehicle.

She said they then drove her to an area on Mount Tamalpais where they raped her, stole her wallet containing $50 and took three rings, two bracelets and her shoes. The attackers then dumped her out near the Buckeye Restaurant.

Deputies were unable to take the rape victim to Marin General Hospital because of flooding on Bon Air Road and finally were forced to take her to Ross General Hospital for treatment.

Arrests Lead To $16,432 In Jewelry

A man and a woman were arrested and $16,432 worth of jewelry stolen from a San Anselmo store was recovered today, San Anselmo police reported.

Booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of burglary were Joan Carol Davis, 33, and Patrick Michael Quinn, also known as George Patrick Holderby, 26, both living at the Fireside Motel in Mill Valley.

Both were held without bail to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

San Anselmo Police Inspector Bernard DelSanto said the two were picked up at the motel shortly before midnight for questioning in the burglary of the Flash store on San Anselmo Avenue, at 3 a.m. Sunday.

DelSanto said officers then recovered the loot from a locker in a bus depot in San Francisco.

Holderby was placed on probation in Marin County in December 1972 for burglary and heroin possession convictions.

Last October, the Kansas City, Mo., district attorney asked Marin County to send Holderby to Kansas City to testify for the prosecution in a murder case — but the trip was canceled because Missouri authorities refused to pay for an escort to accompany Holderby on the trip. At the time, Holderby was serving a 30-day jail term for petty theft and probation violation.

Tear Gas Is Used On Inmates

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Guards used tear gas Monday night to quell an inmate disturbance at the city jail in which three prisoners and five guards were injured.

About 150 inmates refused to go back to their cells after dinner and began banging on tables with their food trays, authorities said.

Farr Out Of Jail; Issue Unresolved

Williarm Farr is out of jail. But the issue involved in his jailing is yet to be resolved.

Farr was released from Los Angeles County Jail last Thursday by order of Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas. He is free on his own recognizance. The indeterminate sentence imposed by Judge Charles H. Older of Los Angeles Superior Court still hangs over his head.

Justice Douglas is well known for issuing writs to release accused criminals from jail. He did it so often that he reportedly was called down for it by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger. Since that report, Justice Douglas has refrained from such orders.

In the current instance, however, he was not freeing a man accused of a crime. For William Farr has never been accused of a crime.

He was accused of refusing to betray a trust. And there is no doubt he was "guilty" of that.

THE ISSUE AROSE when Farr was covering the Manson murder trial. Judge Older, hearing the trial, had issued a "gag order" forbidding any officer of the court from disclosing anything about the case. One of six attorneys violated that order by telling Farr about upcoming testimony regarding a plot by the "Manson family" to kill one or more movie stars. Farr used the material in a story.

Judge Older demanded that Farr tell which attorney had "leaked" the information. Farr refused. He was called before a grand jury, asked the same question, and again refused to tell. Then, cited for contempt, he refused a third time when Judge Older offered him the "opportunity" to "purge the contempt" by revealing the information. On that refusal, he was jailed — to remain, said the judge, until he talked.

Farr spent 46 days behind bars. He would be there yet were it not for Justice Douglas. He may be there again.

His 46 days were not the longest term served for the same reason by a reporter. In 1970, Mark Knops, reporter for an underground newspaper in Madison, Wis., spent 110 days in jail for refusing to tell a grand jury the source of a story about a bombing at University of Wisconsin.

Knops' information could have solved a crime, so there was some excuse for his jailing. Farr's could not; the objection to it was that, in the view of Judge Older, it might influence the case at trail.

JUDGE OLDER thus struck at the foundation of a free press, which is guaranteed by the Constitution.

The right of judges to punish for contempt is well established. But in this, as in all cases, the punishment should fit the crime — and contempt of court is rule violation rather than criminal action.

Judge Julius J. Hoffman's stiff penalties to "Chicago Seven" defendants and attorneys for contempt in disrupting their trial were overturned by a higher court. But Judge Hoffman did not impose indeterminate sentences.

If the issue raised by Farr's jailing is not resolved, no one is safe from being put in jail for the rest of his life at the whim of a judge who thinks the rules he makes override the guarantees of the Constitution.

"Vietnamization is virtually complete." — Secretary Laird.

'Limited Accidental Damage' — Confused Terms, Confused Thinking

(Reprinted from Christian Science Monitor.)

The destruction of the biggest hospital in Hanoi is described by Washington's Pentagon spokesman Jerry Friedheim as being "limited" and "accidental."

The damage could not have been "limited" unless it had been intentionally limited. If it was "accidental" it was not "limited." If it was "limited" it was not "accidental." The choice of confusing words in handling this human disaster itself exposes a deep weakness in Washington's thinking about war and the weapons of war.

WE DO NOT BELIEVE for one instant that anyone in the White House or Pentagon ordered, or authorized the bombing of a particular hospital. Nor do we believe that any pilot sent over Hanoi in the recent 12-day unleashing of fury on the city deliberately aimed at a hospital.

But in the course of aiming at "military targets" in Hanoi the hospital was hit, and so too were large areas of human dwellings. The evidence is solid, and conclusive.

The point we would like to make about all this is that it is not possible to aim at railway stations, radio stations, power plants, or factories in the center of large Asian or European cities without hitting human dwellings and such nonmilitary objects as hospitals and churches. People in such cities live and shop around such central features as railway stations.

In other words, an order to strike at a railway station or a power plant or a factory in Hanoi is in its effect an order to destroy human dwellings, and people living in them. To say that the damage to human life is "accidental" is hypocrisy. If the targets were in the cities, then the cities and their people were the real targets. A bomb cannot tell the difference between a railway station and a hospital. Nor can the average bomber pilot. To him, a hospital is just another big roof.

MAN TOOK a substantial step forward when he decided that the waging of war should be against men of war. Civilization progressed from the "Dark Ages" to "modern times" as the idea caught hold and spread that armies do not make war on civilians or the cities in which they live.

That idea was set back during World Wars I and II. Americans were loud in condemnation of the Germans. The shell of the old cathedral at Coventry stands as a reminder of German "terror bombing." Yet the German bombs which hit the cathedral at Coventry were aimed at airplane factories, just as the bombs which hit the hospital in Hanoi were presumably aimed at a railway station.

It is tragic and almost unbelievable that Washington has forgotten the lessons of World Wars I and II about the folly and futility of bombing cities.

SACRAMENTO SCENE

Legislature's Proposed New Rules Fall Short

By EARL G. WATERS

The sincerity of the legislative leaders in bringing about some real improvements in the legislative process is about to be put to the acid test.

If the "improvements" promised by those leaders in persuading the voters to approve the new two-year sessions are to benefit the people instead of merely being self-serving, some drastic changes are called for.

Efforts for those changes have commenced. New joint rules have been drafted by the staff and are under consideration.

THE INITIAL DRAFT leaves a great deal to be desired.

One of the arguments advanced for the two-year session was that it would permit the lawmakers to give more time to interim study.

The new rules propose eight recesses during the two-year period. Excepting for a 3½-month recess in September of the first year, the others are of short duration and will hardly give time for any extensive interim committee hearings.

The rules would prohibit any action on a bill until after the 31st day after it has been printed. They would also require nine days notice of committee hearings.

But the proposal to permit introduction of bills at any time including while the Legislature is in recess has pitfalls. For the rules would allow standing committees to hold hearings on bills outside of Sacramento during recess. And they are unclear as to what would prevent action on the bill immediately after recess with no further hearing.

It appears there is grave danger under such rules of lowering public visibility of legislative proceedings. The press and the lobbyists, who serve as bastions of protection against impromptu legislative actions, are all geared to maintaining vigil in Sacramento.

To permit committees to wander around the state to conduct hearings on proposed legislation opens the door to abuses.

AN ATTEMPT has been made to write rules to prevent circumventing the provision that only bills which have been approved in the house of origin may be acted upon in the other house in the second year. But the draft language seems deficient. Action on bills in the house of origin is prohibited in the second year.

Also prohibited is the introduction of bills in the second year which "as introduced or amended" would be substantially the same as the first year bill. But it does not seem to block amending a bill which has cleared the house of origin to do that which the first year bill sought to do and failed.

Further, no rule is suggested to prohibit "hijacking," the system of amending proposals to bypass balky committees.

And while a stringent requirement for committee attendance carries a penalty of loss of per diem for failure to be present, the problem of mass absenteeism and "ghost voting" in Assembly sessions is ignored.

Neither is there any attempt to establish committee schedules to avoid conflicts with regular legislative sessions, which has been the major cause of "ghost voting."

THE NEEDLE

By HAROLD COFFIN

Today is National Nothing Day. You can just sit — without celebrating, observing or honoring anything.

The Safety Council hasn't issued any accident forecast for the day. Rocking chair collisions are very rare.

This is a time for everybody to be a little negative and see what develops.

As chairman of the National Nothing Foundation I've been asked what we hope to accomplish today. The answer, of course, is nothing.

Answer To OEO Trip: Throw The Bum Out

Come on! What does Thomas H. Mercer, regional director of OEO, take us for — complete fools?

Not only is it incredulous (sic) that he himself went to Pago Pago and American Samoa to "study" poverty programs, but the absolute gall of the man to justify inclusion of his secretary and a volunteer absolutely defies imagination.

Why a man like this can continue on the public payroll remains a mystery, but I say throw the bum out!

March Of Dimes Fund Use Questioned

On Jan. 19 the March of Dimes is starting their annual door to door campaign to raise funds. Part of the money is being used for genetic counseling. Genetic counseling offers a procedure called amniocentesis that tells a pregnant woman if her child would suffer from Down's syndrome or other genetic diseases. Many people have assumed this procedure was used so that help could be given to the unborn child — make it possible for the baby to benefit at the earliest possible moment from any discoveries made in the field of fetology. However, is this belief fact or fiction?

. . . Dr. Charles Epstein, head of the medical genetic group for the department of pediatrics, University of California, states that the group is not willing to do the procedure if the parents would not terminate the pregnancy.

The National Foundation of the March of Dimes says that they take no position on abortion but at the same time are spending money on genetic counseling.

It is a tragedy that a nationally known organization with a reputation for aiding children could be using their funds to encourage the killing of babies when the baby is defective. A child has the right to life whether or not he is perfect by present standards. .

Vietnam War Widow Decries Bombing

Five years ago my husband, Sgt. George W. Storz, was killed in the province of Quang Tri, South Viet Nam. I know the agony of loss, of desperation; the only thing that sustained me during that time was the knowledge that I now had the sole responsibility of rearing my two small children, and the third, growing heavy in my womb.

What words are there to express the loss? None. What reasons for his sacrifice? I have not heard them. Today I am remarried; there is new life and love for me, but tonight I wept as I watched on television the plight of a Vietnamese woman who, with child in arms was telling a Swedish newscaster that she had lost eight members of her family in the recent bombing attacks. This had happened in the same area that the newsman had visited a couple of months prior, and he professed that he had seen absolutely no trace of anything which could be termed a "military target." Directly afterwards came the statements of prisoners of war, who, after seeing the damage they had wrought to civilian areas there, were deeply shocked and saddened.

When, oh, when will this senseless killing be stopped? How long will it take before Americans see what we are doing and take responsibility for it, or is it as this dark fear inside my heart suggests: That we do realize, but don't care?. . .

I am ashamed — that this policy is done in our name, for I grew up being proud to be an American. I am grieved — as a Christian, that my brothers and sisters of the world are thought so little of; and I am outraged — because of my ineffectual voice in protest of this giant, inhuman, crushing war-machine, which has no ears for my voice.

One-Man Rule In Washington Something New For Our Republic

In the latest news, as we sit down to write this column, it says that Gerald Smith, who has guided the American case through the SALT I talks, has resigned as Washington's disarmament ambassador, and that Herbert Klein will be resigning as the chief information figure in the Nixon administration.

Mr. Smith has long talked about resigning at the end of the first Nixon administration and Mr. Klein may have personal reasons for wanting out.

But it was remarked by those present on the occasion that President Nixon never once gave Mr. Smith the slightest nod of credit for the successful conclusion of the SALT I talks. The signing of SALT I in Moscow made it sound as though Mr. Nixon had done it all by himself. No notice was taken there, or at any other time, of the devoted and patient months of dedicated work Ambassador Smith put into the project.

And in respect to Mr. Klein it is known that he disapproved and tried to prevent the original unleashing of Vice President Spiro Agnew against press and television journalism in early Nixon days and the revival of the assault in the after-election era.

AMBASSADOR SMITH and Mr. Klein are people who have their own views about public affairs. They have both done their respective jobs with loyalty and distinction. But they are people. They have identity. They have dignity. They are not "company yes men."

The same holds true of most of the people who have been, for the most part, silently slipping away from the Nixon administration as it moves into the second term. It is merely an observable fact that men of independent identity and thinking have largely gone away. The exodus began with the most independent man in the original cabinet, Wally Hickel. It continued through George Romney, Melvin Laird, Peter Peterson, and Erwin Griswold. It continues now with Richard Helms, Gerard Smith, and Herbert Klein.

TRADITIONALLY, the United States has been governed by what today is called "collective leadership." The President has always been at the center and, usually, has had the last word. But one-man government is a distinct novelty in the American record. Even George Washington surrounded himself by the best men of his times, although they wrangled furiously and publicly about policy.

Not one ofthe great presidents — Washington, Jefferson, Jackson, Lincoln, Wilson, Roosevelt — dreamed of, or would have dared to try, one-man rule. Harry Truman said "the buck stops here," but he also surrounded himself with the best cabinet he could get and let his individual cabinet officers make all the decisions they were willing and able to make.

Never since the founding of the republic has power been gathered so completely into the White House itself as it is today. And never before has the President so dominated the structure of government. Except for Henry Kissinger, there is no clearly visible, definable other personality in a high place in Washington. And there is pelnty of gossip around the White House that this residual sharing of the spotlight will soon end.

If and when Mr. Kissinger does go, there will literally be no one around Mr. Nixon to share the spotlight or question any of his decisions. Even Lyndon Johnson did not dominate the city of Washington to this degree, although it was not entirely for want of trying.

You may or may not think that having so much power in Mr. Nixon's hands is desirable. But recognize the fact that it was never like this before in American political history.

De Gaulle's Heirs Running Scared In French Election

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

French Gaullists, political heirs to Gen. Charles de Gaulle, are running scared in the campaign for election next March to the National Assembly after nearly 15 years in power.

National polls are going against them and posing a special threat is a new popular front coalition of Socialists and Communists.

Public opinion polls have shown steady gains for the leftist coalition formed last June. The latest shows 43 per cent of French voters favoring candidates of the coalition. Forty per cent favor the Gaullists and 15 per cent a centrist anti-Gaullist group.

GAULLISTS LED by President Georges Pompidou are telling the voters they never had it so good and in presenting the picture of a rosy future under their continued giudance are making promises ranging from a vote for 19-year-olds to covered swimming pools for cities with populations of more than 10,000.

The Communist-Socialist coalition, declaring it is time for a change, is promising nationalization of industry and banking on a wide scale. The list would include companies engaging in mining or oil operations, nuclear construction and, specifically, the Dassault company which makes the Mirage fighter-bomber plane.

It would restrict the power of the president and give more to the Assembly.

It would halt construction of France's atomic force. It also calls for the end of military blocs but makes no mention of France's continued membership in the Atlantic alliance. It recognizes the European Common Market but calls for an end to capitalist domination.

BESIDES THE MATTER of longevity in office, also working against the Gaullists is a history of scandals which surfaced during the premiership of Jacques Chaban-Delmas and led to his replacement last July by the staunch Gaullist but little known Pierre Mesmer.

Added to this is general French dissatisfaction with the cost of living which is going up at an annual rate of around 11 per cent. French unions say it is even more.

The Communist-Socialist coalition marks their first agreement on a common policy since 1946. They first formed a popular front in 1936. That fell apart after the signing of the Hitler-Stalin pact in 1939. De Gaulle brought Communists into his provisional government in 1945 and they remained in government until their ouster in May, 1946, at the start of the Cold War.

THE EAST-WEST thaw has given the Communists a new respectability and with it their best chance for a political comeback since 1946.

De Gaulle's Fifth Republic ended the system of revolving door governments which followed one another with dizzying speed under the Fourth Republic. Messmer is only the fifth premier of France since de Gaulle returned to power in 1958.

But the Fifth Republic was tailor-made for de Gaulle.

Nixon For Nobel Peace Prize: He's Scrapping U.S. Air Force

WASHINGTON — "The Nobel Peace Prize Committee will come to order. We will now start examining the list of candidates. Who is first, Mr. Secretary?"

"Richard M. Nixon. His name has been submitted by U.S. Sen. Hugh Scott."

"We can't have Nixon, not after the bombing attacks he ordered on North Vietnam last week."

"Au contraire, Mr. President. I think Richard Nixon is a very suitable candidate for the peace prize. He is eliminating the B-52 from the United States' arsenal of weapons."

"How is he doing that?"

"He is having them shot down by the enemy. The United States had only 100 B-52s. So far 12 have been shot down. At the rate they are going, they will all disappear in three months. What better gesture can one make toward peace?"

"IT'S OUT of the question, gentlemen. Nixon has bombed hospitals and schools and killed thousands of innocent civilians. We cannot give him the peace prize for this."

"But wait a minute! Does he not get credit for restraint? After all, he hasn't used atomic weapons against the North Vietnamese. A man who has the hydrogen bomb and doesn't use it against an enemy should certainly get the prize or at least an honorable mention."

"I do not dispute that, but the Nobel Peace Prize has certain stipulations to it, and one is you do not award it to a man who has dropped more bombs on North Vietnam than were dropped in all of World War II."

"Yes, Mr. President, but we must remember the only reason Nixon is bombing the North Vietnamese is to achieve a generation of peace for all mankind. If this bombing were punitive then I would say scratch him off the list. But Nixon is trying to find peace through bombing and he should be honored for it."

"I OBJECT! Nixon has been trying to achieve peace through bombing for four years. It hasn't worked and it will not work. If we award the prize to a man who believes the only solution to peace is destroying the other side, we will be the laughingstock of the world."

"What does the world know? Nixon has said he will stop the bombing any time the North Vietnamese come to the negotiating table and agree to a fair and just settlement of the war. I say a man who talks that way has gone the extra mile."

"But what is a fair and just settlement of the war?"

"That is not for this committee to decide, Mr. President. For years now, we have given the peace prize to people who have done a great deal of talking about peace, but have had no effect on anybody. This time we have a candidate who has done something about peace."

"WHAT HAS HE done?"

"He has shown everyone that he is dead serious about peace, even if he has to commit his entire Air Force and Navy to bring it about."

"That's true, Olav. But at the same time, wouldn't it be better to wait until the bombing stops before we give Nixon the peace prize?"

"By then it could be too late, particularly if he hasn't achieved peace in time. Don't you see what a fine gesture it would be if we gave the prize to a man who was working for peace but hadn't quite made it?"

"We could be at this all day, gentlemen. Let's go on to the next candidate for the peace prize. Mr. Secretary, what is the second name on the list?"

"Henry Kissinger."

Pentagon Papers Defense Costs Top $400,000

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Defense costs for Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo, defendants in the Pentagon Papers case, now exceed $400,000 and their defense fund is in critical financial trouble, its chairman says.

Stanley K. Scheinbaum, chairman of the defense fund, said funds are low because five full-time lawyers have been kept on the case since the government indicted Ellsberg 18 months ago. He estimated it would cost $50,000 a month for the remaining three or four months of the trial.

Scheinbaum said 20,000 persons have contributed to the fund, and that Ellsberg and Russo raised $75,000 through speaking and writing.

Watermarks

The designs above are historic watermarks from early paper producers. They are part of a travelling exhibition from the Library of Congress. The watermark was probably first used by the Italians in the 13th Century. A way of identifying the mill that made the paper, the watermark is still used in some better grades of paper. Artists have developed processes to make very intricate watermarks, such as portraits, but these are practical only when paper is handmade. Modern mills use relatively simple watermarks made by impressing a design on the paper while it is still moist. This is done by a wire cylinder known as the "dandy roll."

DO YOU KNOW — What country is credited with the discovery of papermaking?

Just Suppose For A Minute That The Roles Were Reversed

When fighter planes from Hamilton Air Force Base soar overhead, hearts do not beat faster, muscles do not snap taut, and fear does not freeze the soul.

For they are friendly planes, leaving in their path at worst a sonic boom that momentarily startles and annoys; not death, destruction and misery.

Yet, a twist of the globe away, the planes are B-52s, the people are North Vietnamese, and the boom is the boom of death.

ONE WONDERS what it would be like if by some act of history, the roles were reversed and the news reports read:

SAN RAFAEL — Waves of North Vietnamese bombers blasted Marin yesterday in a massive attack that leveled downtown San Rafael and the Sausalito waterfront.

Officials estimated that 300 to 350 persons were killed and about 1,100 wounded in the daylight raid, described by President Nixon as "barbaric" and "inhumane."

San Rafael was still ablaze today from the bombardment which heavily damaged the Golden Gate Bridge and Hamilton Air Force Base.

The county's main highway, 101, was an impassable series of bomb craters, and the Northwestern Pacific Railroad tracks were demolished at several points.

Two wings of Marin General Hospital collapsed from bomb damage and injured were being carried to the Marin Civic Center, serving as an emergency hospital.

Mission San Rafael, a county landmark, was left in ruins and Dominican College of San Rafael suffered a direct hit that leveled the main building.

REFUGEES FROM the eastern sector of Marin jammed roads to Bolinas and Point Reyes, carrying their belongings in carts and wagons.

Civil defense workers clearing rubble along Fourth Street uncovered the bodies of scores of youngsters who had been attending a kiddie matinee at the San Rafael Theater.

Food, medical supplies and blood were rushed into Marin from East Bay Cities via the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge, which was only slightly damaged.

Tools Taken

Tools valued at $600 were taken Friday or Saturday from Kozy Auto Glass, 50 Lisbon Street, San Rafael, by a thief who pried open a door, police reported today.

Literary Unit's Informational Meeting Set

The adult literacy council, a Sonoma County volunteer group, will hold its semiannual informational meeting for the public Jan. 23 at 8 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church in Santa Rosa.

Those wishing to be students or tutors may attend. Area representatives and students will tell of their work and books used will be on display.

Every community in Sonoma County is now being served by volunteer tutors teaching adults to read and write English, according to council members. The council hopes to reach more nonreaders, especially in Marin County.

Folksong Concert Scheduled Friday

Vera Johnson, Canadian folksinger and writer, will present a concert of her songs at 8:30 p.m. Friday at 81 Hillside Avenue, Mill Valley.

The concert, cosponsored by the San Francisco and Marin County Folk Music clubs, will feature humorous, satiricial and down-to-earth songs.

Novato Chamber Opposed To End Of Air Panel

The Novato chamber of commerce is opposed to elimination of the Marin County Aviation Commission as proposed by Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste, according to president Phillip Coady.

Directors voted last Thursday that the commission shouldn't be abandoned because it is the only citizen group that reviews the needs and development of Gnoss Field and because it performs "an important function representing the community and taxpayers," Coady said.

Chamber directors also rejected a city proposal for four-way stop signs at Seventh Street and Grant Avenue because they believed there wasn't sufficient traffic to warrant interrupting the flow along Grant Avenue.

Labor Scholarships Due Four This Year

The Marin County Labor Scholarship Committee will make four awards this year to senior high school students who plan to attend a college, university or trade school next school year.

Carolyn Horan, county schools' career counselor, who is coordinating the scholarships, said applicants must be a descendant of a member of Carpenters Local 35, Mailman's Local 2095, former Carpenters Local 1710 or one of the several organizations affiliated with the Marin Central Labor Council.

The contest includes a two-hour essay to be held on April 14, said Mrs. Horan, and applications and research material are available at high schools.

Applications must be received by April 7.

Angel Island Boat Booklet Is Published

The California Department of Navigation and Ocean Development has published a special pamphlet for boatmen planning to visit Angel Island State Park.

John E. Bennett, department director, said the booklet, "Angel Island by Boat," describes anchorages and slips in Ayala Cove — the best-protected landing site — and elsewhere on the island. Tidal and weather peculiarities also are described, as well as plans for increased facilities later this year.

Bus Drivers Will Stay On The Job

Golden Gate Transit bus drivers have signed an agreement to continue working under their expired contract pending negotiations on a new one.

Bus Transit Mgr. H. Donald White reported the signing came Friday in a meeting with union representatives of the Amalgamated Transit Union, Local 1227.

The drivers last week rejected a new contract offering pay and fringe benefit increases totaling about $100,000 for 1973. The system has 245 drivers.

White said the contract extension was on a month-to-month basis, with each party required to give 48 hours notice to cancel it. This presumably would give public notice if a strike were called.

He said union negotiators will meet Friday with the drivers to get instructions on how to procede in negotiations on a new contract.

Watches Taken

Driving Course Not Accredited

The San Francisco Better Business Bureau warned Marin residents today that a midwest firm advertising courses for semi-trailer truck drivers isn't accredited as a school nor registered in California as an employment agency.

Advertising has been placed in San Francisco and Marin newspapers by Associated Systems, 1040 East Washington Street, Indianapolis, the bureau reported.

The firm operates heavy equipment schools and advertises in help wanted columns to obtain student referrals, the bureau reported.

A report from the Indianapolis Better Business Bureau is that the owner does not answer complaints which allege misrepresentation by salesmen in guaranteeing employment, promising refunds and misleading advertising.

Prospective students are urged to deal with caution when answering this ad, the bureau said.

Veterans Jobless Rate Cut In Half

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The jobless rate among Vietnam War era veterans has been cut in half during the past 23 months, according to Labor Department statistics.

Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson told President Nixon Sunday the administration's campaign to find jobs for veterans aged 20 to 29 had been so successful that the veterans unemployment rate "in effect no longer constitutes a national problem."

An Injured Brain Can Mend Self

IRVINE — Research demonstrating that the brain is capable of "rewiring" itself after injury has been reported by scientists at UC Irvine. Two psychobiologists at the University of California campus said their work with nerve tissue from laboratory rats shows that the brain has "an amazing and heretofore unsuspected capability for reorganization after brain damage."

Professors Gary Lynch and Carl Cotman, both of the UCI School of Biological Sciences, said the discovery has significant implications for possible treatment of brain disorders, but they cautioned that much additional study is needed before any conclusions may be drawn.

Studies indicating that the nervous tissue left intact after brain damage can show growth have been reported from various laboratories in different parts of the world. However, the UCI studies have shown that the process takes place simultaneously in different brain systems, that is happens in radically different ways depending on the age of the animal, and have provided measurements of the magnitude of the effect.

No one knows at the present time why some brain damaged patients recover while others are permanently handicapped. Cotman and Lynch said they hope that the process of "rewiring," which their research has disclosed, can be controlled by medical science as the basis for a rational system of treatment. THEY NEED HELP, TOO

By KAREN PETERSON

The family and friends of the alcoholic are often overlooked yet they are involved in a highly emotional and distressing situation. Al-Anon is a world-wide organization that recognizes that people involved with the alcoholic need help just as much — and perhaps more — than the problem drinker.

The three women who discussed Al-Anon's program sought help for different problems but their purpose had been the same: comfort, companionship and an answer to their frustrations.

Perhaps the greatest comfort is the realization that other people share the same problems.

"You can live with a drinking problem for a number of years and get a strong sense of isolation," said Sandy. "It's not something you want to discuss. Either you get sympathy, which you don't need, or disbelief. It really helps to talk to someone in the same position."

"In the beginning it doesn't matter who," continued Betty. "You think there is no one else in the world with the same problem. You'd never believe anyone could understand."

THE PEOPLE who attend the meetings remain anonymous and this anonymity creates a more relaxed and open atmosphere. It is not necessary to join, pay dues or feel restricted by a rigid structure or regulations.

"You come as the spirit moves you," said Betty. "It's a self-help group where we share our experiences."

The first thing an individual must accept when he attends Al-Anon is that he is powerless to control the alcholic's drinking. Unless he stops trying to control the drinker, he will continue to live with frustration.

The goal is a change of attitude. The individual who lives with an alcholic is under a tremendous strain and this strain interferes with normal living. Al-Anon works on the premise that the individual can find happiness and that he will adjust. This change of attitude will also be of tremendous help to the alcoholic.

The idea is a selfish one but necessary if an individual expects to help himself, his family and the alcoholic.

"It works against the American ethic of not giving in and to keep struggling," explained Sandy. "You have to become selfish and realize it's not your problem." The individual must become settled emotionally. He has to learn to cope so that he can once again make a life for himself outside of the alcoholic.

"Alcoholics are manipulative people, and we must be easy to manipulate," said Sandy. "There is a sense of entrapment, as if we had no choice. We have to ask ourselves, why do we sit here and take it?"

HE HAS TO decide what he is going to do. He has to learn to cope or realize he doesn't have what it takes. If a decision to stay is made, then he has to base it on the fact that the alcoholic will not change. He has to realize that he can't expect miracles. There are no guarantees.

They are walking a fine line, said Sandy. They have to be able to think rationally. "You have to feel right with what you've done, to find the way home yourself."

All three women stressed that by learning to depend on yourself, by learning to control your emotions and thinking things through clearly, you will indirectly help the alcoholic.

"There's a pattern of the motherly role for women who are involved with the alcoholic. They cover for them and they lie," said Sandy.

"They seek help from doctors and psychiatrists. They are constantly protesting the alcoholic. It's difficult to give this up and to recognize their own powerlessness," she said.

Yet once they stop trying to run the drinker's life, the dependency wears off and the drinker realizes that there is no longer anyone to lean on, she said.

"Criticism of the drinker only incurs hostility, denial or defense," said Betty. "Then you become angry and defeated. It's a tremendous emotional involvement. Once you can think more clearly about the situation, you get less angry and less bitter."

The alcoholic in turn will notice the change in attitude and become curious, they said. He or she may then question whether or not there is anything in it for them.

"YOU HAVE TO get out of your self-involvement with the alcoholic," said Sandy. "Some women become hysterical, but once they've recognized that they can't depend on anyone but themselves, they can once again manage their life and their children. A child can not get support if the mother is upset."

"You can't build your whole life on someone else. You have to do it for yourself," said Connie.

Alcoholism is not the only adjustment a family must go through — even after sobriety the individuals involved must concentrate on returning to a normal relationship.

"There's a tremendous change after alcoholism — a metamorphsis. You're living with a new person," said Sandy. "There's a recovery pattern just as there is a pattern to alcoholism."

For years, she explained, everything is blamed on alcoholism. Once the alcohol problem is gone, so is the scapegoat.

"If they sober up and things still don't straighten up, you have to admit that the problem may be with you," she said.

Al-Anon is not a religious organization, but the women agreed that there is a spiritual feeling among the people involved.

"You realize that there are forces or powers available to you if you ask for them and work for them. If you stop at the material level, you're missing the whole gist of the program," said Sandy.

Self-realization doesn't come overnight. It's something that takes time to sink in. You have to practice every day, said Connie, and the things you learn can be applied to any situation.

"We laugh a lot," said Betty. "It carries us over a lot of bumps."

Enriched Grandparent Relationships Taught

By BARBARA HOSMER

Because she believes that the relation of a grandparent to a grandchild can be potentially so rich, Betty Land will hold a seminar for grandparents at Dominican College, starting next week.

"The relationship is endowed with so much that isn't being put to use, it is so valuable and isn't being realized," said the Palo Alto grandmother, who hopes to show other grandparents how they can enrich their closeness to their own grandchildren.

It must develop into a trust relationship on both sides or there may be boredom after a certain age on the part of the child and disappointment on the part of the grandparent, Mrs. Land said on a visit Friday to the San Rafael campus prior to the start of her course on Monday.

SHE ADMITTED that some grandparents prefer to spend more time with one child than another, but mere preference and being able to feel close doesn't mean that the full relationship is going to be there, she added. She sees the ideal situation as one of availability, both of the grandparent and the child.

"The relationship can offer so much, especially as neither has heavy demands made on their time and there can be so much companionship."

Mrs. Land said she "likes knowing I will have time with my grandchild, but would regret a scheduled 'duty' time." She has found that grandparents she knows are now kind of defiant about not being merely babysitters for their grandchildren.

"It shows that they have more expectations from the grandparent relationship than utilitarian."

MUCH OF the relationship can come from careful listening on the part of the grandparent, said Mrs. Land, and she has no-no and yes phrases for a grandparent to check him or herself with to help open communication with the child.

On her no-no list are such phrases as "Let me do that," "What did you do that for?" and "No, not that way."

Positive phrases that help develop the relationship might be, "I like it when you say that," or "This is nice being here."

A grandparent should not fear showing that he or she is a person at all times, displaying love, anger or happiness when they are felt, said Mrs. Land.

Holding back feelings diminishes it, Mrs. Land said.

SOME OF THE things to avoid with grandchildren, she pointed out, are becoming competitive with a child about experiences and "training the child for hardship."

If the child comes and reports a list of terrible things that happened to him that week, don't try to top it with worse things that happened to you — listen, instead, she explained. And avoid the "Wait until you grow up and find you have to do such and such ..." phrases which train a child for hardship, she said.

She agreed that a stereotype of a grandparent still exists in America that may be comfortable for all concerned but doesn't lead to a deep, rich relationship.

"My daughter still says, 'Mom makes the best hot dishes,' and I haven't made one since 1969," Mrs. Land related to illustrate how a fixed picture may stick to a person even though it holds no reality.

KEEPING THE picture realistic at all times is very important to develop closeness, she said. Neither should the grandparent compete with the parents in a popularity contest with a child. A grandparent who is playing a popularity game with a grandchild is not being honest about feelings with the grandchild, she pointed out.

The stereotype of the grandparent may contribute to this role-playing — "Norman Rockwell and Allstate have made it tough. Apple bosom smelling faintly of apple pie attends the word 'grandmother'. But you can get past it by disclosing real feelings.

"Grandparents can lay out a list of realities and get the kids up to date, but it can be very comfortable being endowed with the qualities that might not actually check out with reality, so it could be a bit risky," she stated.

Also, she said that she personally felt uncomfortable being treated with too much respect simply because of her observable appearance as an elder.

"Respect for elders is part of the mythery. I'd rather be treated as myself — in an ordinary way," she said.

MRS. LAND'S suggestions for getting close to a grandchild right from the beginning: Start feeding the child with a bottle and solid food — be around for meals.

"Also, I like the idea of work — car washing, lawn raking — puddling around with some kind of mutual help situation," she said.

Mrs. Land has been a teacher and writer and counseled at the College of San Mateo. Currently she is working toward the master of sociel work degree at California State University, San Francisco.

She tried the grandparentry course in Menlo Park and was disappointed that those attending weren't quite able to break through to closer relationships.

She hopes with the Marin series to show grandparents who already have a good relationship with grandchildren how to make it even better for both.

Her class will be held in three parts, Jan. 22, Jan. 29 and Feb. 5, at 7:30 p.m. at Dominican College.

Child Aided By Woman In Kentfield

Through the plan the child remains with her family, and the entire family benefits from medical and dental care, sustained guidance and counseling of social workers, a monthly cash grant, distribution of useful goods and the aid of special educational programs.

The $16 per month contributed by Miss Lange will supplement Maria's father's monthly salary of $43.60 which he earns working at a laundry. His salary does not meet the basic needs for the family of eight.

Furniture Gives Clue To History

How is a chair like a history book?

By looking at the furniture, Compton's Encyclopedia points out, you can tell a lot about what life was like then.

Look at a massive, heavily carved Tudor oak chair. Life under Tudor monarchs like Henry VIII and Elizabeth I was rough and boisterous. Furniture had to be built to stand hard use. Tough oak wood went into the Tudors' huge canopied beds, trestle tables, benches, and cupboards.

Knowing that England was ruled by Oliver Cromwell, a Puritan, in the 1640s and '50s, you wouldn't be surprised that the furniture from that period is rather plain. But look at what appeared just a few years later. Lounging chairs and delicate sofas upholstered in velvet and brocade; fine mirrors set in gilded frames; elaborately carved walnut tables. Charles II was restored to the throne in 1660. Charles had lived in exile in France during Cromwell's rule, and brought the luxury of the French court back to England with him.

Nail polish that is allowed to dry naturally will last longer than that dried by holding nails near heat or running cold water over them.

GENERATION RAP

Inconsistency Of Television Commercials Causes Wonder

RAP:

Can anyone tell me why television commercials are so prudish about some things and so sexy about others?

Like what's wrong with openly spraying an underarm with deodorant, yet even that octopus gal with all the arms, just sprays in the general direction. Are underarms obscene yet, and if so why?

Also, they never show even the "rim" in bathrooms. What's so awful about a toilet?

On the other hand, soap, perfume, men's cologne, etc. depend on sex to sell.

Maybe you could "throw this question down the well and see if it bubbles" — I mean, gets an answer from ad men or people in charge of commercials. — OKAY?

OKAY:

Okay!

We can't figure out television taboos, but they surely must make sense to someone in charge. Let's hope he or she elucidates. — HELEN

OKAY:

Another question, while we're at it: How come television is still pretty well censored, but on radio (especially call-in shows), almost anything goes. . .and young people listen to radio more than they do to television? Not that I'm for strict censorship — just equality. — SUE

DEAR RAP:

I was interested in your column on the European hitchhiker and his suggestion that America develop "safe" hitching via registration and identity cards.

It's a shame that this kind of travel is downgraded in the U.S. for it's a great way to go.

Up until a few years ago (I'm now 56) I did a great deal of hitchhiking. I've been all over the U.S., Mexico and Canada, had a wonderful time, met a lot of fine people and a few odd ones. I could never have traveled had I not used my thumb.

I've never been hurt or forced to do anything against my will. I've never been in jail. My recipe is: guts, plenty of identification, a few dollars of your own, and the spirit of adventure. And I wouldn't trade my memories for anything. — VERY YOUNG 56

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

Maybe hitchhiker emblems and i.d. cards in cars would make it safe, but I learned my lesson recently — no more pick-ups for me!

My sister, a girlfriend and I saw a man hitching. He looked safe and it was raining, so we gave him a ride. He told us he was an alcoholic on the way to an A.A. meeting and to turn down a dark side street to let him off. Then I saw he had a gun at my head! He motioned me to make them stop the car, so without letting them know, I told them there was a friend on the sidewalk, and we ought to pick her up. Thank goodness they caught on fast and stopped. I jumped out with the man behind me, and my sister gunned the car just as I jumped in it again. It was split second, but we got rid of him. We notified the police but he had disappeared.

I went to Europe last summer and it's true — hitching isn't considered dangerous over there — but over here, well, — NEVER AGAIN!

HELEN AND SUE:

My brother-in-law says we're relatives now and it's okay if he kisses me. But he never kisses me in front of my sister — just when we're alone. What do you do about not-so-brotherly kisses? — DEFINITELY NOT TEMPTED

D.N.T.:

How about a sisterly slap across the face? — SUE

DEAR D.:

Or an innocent, "I'll ask my sister what she thinks about brotherly kisses, okay?" — HELEN

"Eastern Clouds" was a design inspired by Japanese painting, "American Art" derived from folk art, and a third was called "Princess Flowers".

INSIDE YOUR HOME

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY
(Distributed by General Features Corp.)

Are we still furnishing the living roms of our homes as though they were the "front parlors"? I'm afraid we are. Except where space is really cramped, most families seem to have a living room for show and another "real-life" one. I've even noticed this breakaway attitude in mobile homes, where there's an abundance of space.

Trouble is none of us can afford to waste space. Maybe there could be certain rules (nonrules, actually) established before we lay out the cash for living room furnishings.

1— The living room is the family's place. Guests might come once a week or once a month, but we can't base our lifestyles on those infrequent sessions.

2— We should make it easy for the family to use the living room. Playing chess, checkers, listening to music, reading — while perhaps not compatible occupations at all times — should be provided for if that's what the clan enjoys.

3— Forget the formulas for furniture placement. If one chair and a sofa are all that is needed, why buy two chairs because it's the stock solution?

Better to spend that extra cash on a good reading lamp, game table and straight-back chairs for the homework-doers and the game-players.

4— If refreshments and snacks are consumables allowed during these priority activities, why not provide equipment for them in the living room? For example a roll-around bar cart, a minirefrigerator or place to stash snacks. No sense jumping up and down at the height of a family-type Fischer-Spassky competition.

5— If company is coming, reserve the living room with the approval of the whole gang. Then there won't be such a feeling of dispossession. The youngsters might want to reserve it for a group session some evening and then parents can take their leisure activities elsewhere.

The room shown today, designed by Marcus Tuttle, does have that easy-mix quality that works well for a family of active people. Floors are covered in herringbone-patterned wood tile that just invites dancing. So that area rug selected is one that can be flipped aside at the sound of the first country-western twang.

An ideal game table, and one that works as well for homework or household paper work, is the chrome, brass and glass unit shown by Hickory Manufacturing Co. It has subtle Chinese overtones, as does the bar cabinet with its slide-out tray top, but it is not "faddy." Brass hardware and casters add that extra gleam to the golden-toned room. The Oriental screen, a few framed prints and some porcelain side tables were family heirlooms that just naturally found their way into this living room. New chairs and sofa by KayLyn have a timeless quality and they dont' jar the overall "family" feeling.

Early Childhood Education Is Attracting More Men

The Christian Science Monitor News Service

"I'm here to teach you and to learn from you," Kistler, University of Michigan (UM) senior, replied:

"Then how come you're not a woman?"

With increasing numbers of men entering UM's program in early childhood education, student teachers like Kistler should become less of a curiosity. "Collective bargaining has brought preschool and elementary teachers' wages up to a level more comparable with those of other jobs," UM Education Professor Jane Schwertfeger observes. "And the clear-cut patterns that have separated men's and women's jobs are dissolving."

Throughout the country, preschool education leaders welcome this trend. Boys and girls alike need to be around both men and women in order to develop their own feelings of masculinity and femininity, they maintain.

"Particularly children in inner-city day-care centers whose mothers work and whose fathers are often missing," adds Graham Matthews, who is earning his doctorate in early childhood education at the UM. He has been both head teacher and director of such a center in Detroit.

The male child care worker is not only believed to engender more "masculine" traits in little boys but more feminine traits in little girls. "A girl doesn't know what is feminine unless she has some basic for comparison," says Dennis Lampron, a master's degree candidate. "The child who doesn't come in contact with a man is as 'culturally isolated' as one who has no contact with black children or other minorities.

Kistler sees another side: "A lot of little guys grow up out of touch with the feminine poles of their personality. It's possible for a man to be both strong and intellectual as well as gentle and nurturable. Being around both men and women who are behaving in this way gives them a more balanced image of themselves."

Research currently under way at the Office of Child Development in the U.S. Office of Education bears out the UM students' theories. An Atlanta, Ga., experiment shows high school boys employed as day-care center aides have had a positive influence on their young charges — especially the fatherless black children.

Reality: There are more obstacles facing men in this field than perhaps any other specialty in education.

Chiefly it's credibility. "Many people suspect that the only reason you're interested in preschool education is that upper elementary, secondary, and college-level teaching job areas are closing," Lampron explains.

"People can't believe you'd be willing to give up these things just to work with little children. They doubt you can be as warm and affectionate as a female. You're in a position of continually proving yourself."

"You can overcome any misgiving conveyed by the children; the biggest problems exist with the other — female — staff members," says Kelvin Seifert, a UM teaching fellow combining doctoral studies in psychology and education.

"People have a preconceived idea that men aren't very competent with, or interested in, small children. The more conservative women on a staff may doubt their male colleague's initiative or intelligence. Why he didn't go after a 'real' career, they wonder."

Like the woman executive who is asked to take minutes at the board of directors meeting, the male child care worker may experience sex role discrimination. Seifert, who admits to a growing sympathy with women's causes, recalls being arbitrarily assigned to many mechanical and maintenance duties at one center, including 20 new cots to asemble from scratch.

"The male's more important contribution would consist not of 'acting like a man' for the children, but of disproving the idea that men need to act in some special 'manly' way."

Sex role conventions are not the only barrier that has kept men out of child care, Prof. Schwertfeger adds. "Ten-hour work days and low pay characterize most day-care positions, since the majority of centers are geared to the needs of low-income working parents. Unless this changes, men will continue to opt for administration, research, and training of other professionals instead of working directly with the children."

"People must come to realize that taking care of children is a community responsibility," Seifert concludes, "not just that of an individaul, or more specifically, a woman."

Fishery Limits Bill Introduced

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — Legislation to establish a 200-mile fishery jurisdiction along the nation's ocean coast has been introduced by Rep. Don H. Clausen, R-First District.

The bill, symbolically numbered House Resolution 200, would create the zone in which the government would regulate the taking of fish. He said the measure would "correct a serious flaw in existing conservation laws which do not provide any protection whatsoever to fish caught beyond the 12-mile limit."

Clausen said many nations condone virtual elimination of fish from some areas by their fleets. "Even immature fish are taken and none left for reproduction," he said.

His bill also would regulate the number of fish caught and set penalties for violations.

Opera Slated

The College of Marin Opera Workshop production of "The Primadonna" at college's studio theater on Friday and Saturday will begin at 8 o'clock, and not at 8:30 p.m., as reported in Saturday's Marin Magazine.

Hub Man Makes Plea To Charges

Harry Frank Vantrease, 39, of San Anselmo, pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Superior Court to felony possession of Benzedrine and a misdemeanor violation of having drug injecting equipment.

Vantrease pleaded guilty after a plea bargaining session in which Judge David Menary Jr., his attorney and the district attorney agreed he should spend no more than six months in jail or a residential drug treatment program.

The judge set sentencing for Feb. 5.

Sausalito police arrested Vantrease Nov. 2 slumped over the wheel of his car on the shoulder of Highway 101. When the car door opened, 30 Benzedrine tablets fell out, police said.

A syringe and 12 hypodermic needles were found in Vantrease's pocket, according to police.

Garfinkel Works To Be Displayed

New paintings and drawings by Ada Garfinkel, prize-winning Kentfield artist, state fair art juror and Independent-Journal art critic, will be on display at Dominican College in San Rafael from Jan. 25 to Feb. 24.

The exhibit in the San Marco Gallery and Alemany Library will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Corinne Swall, colaratura soprano who has been a soloist with the Philadelphia Orchestra and San Francisco Symphony, will sing at the Tamalpais, 501 Via Casitas, Greenbrae, at 8 p.m. Friday.

Miss Swall will present a program of classical music accompanied by pianist Deno Gianopoulos. The concert is sponsored by the Concert and Lecture Series of the College of Marin.

Guilty Plea Made To Theft Of Watch

The plea by Herman Sanchez was based on a promise by Judge David Menary Jr. that he will receive no more than eight months in jail when he is sentenced Feb. 5 on the grand theft charge.

Sanchez was arrested Dec. 5 in Petaluma on a warrant charging him and two others with armed robbery, but the charge was revised by a Marin Municipal Court judge.

Sanchez, Lonnie Lawder Rivas, 26, of Petaluma, and Larry Paul Slager, 25, of San Rafael, were sought by police after two teen-agers told police the men forcibly took two watches from them Aug. 14 in the parking lot of Mayfair Market in San Rafael.

Slager pleaded guilty to a reduced misdemeanor charge of battery and served 11 days in jail. Rivas is awaiting trial in superior court.

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Forty-five women will be hired this year by the Cleveland police department and assigned to basic patrol duty, Mayor Ralph J. Perk announced Monday.

Classroom Plan Wins Council Nod

A plan for combined use of portable school classrooms as city recreation halls gained support at the Rohnert Park City Council meeting last night.

Mayor Arthur N. Roberts won tentative approval of a proposal the city buy used portable classrooms that could be shared by the city recreation department and the Cotati-Rohnert Park School District.

Roberts said the plan could be mutually beneficial, since the school district needs temporary classrooms until a new school can be built and the city needs extra space for evening meetings and youth activities.

City Atty. Richard Maxwell warned the plan might be illegal since the buildings would be primarily used as classrooms. City funds cannot be spent on schools since they are not the responsibility of the city, Maxwell said.

"The school could just happen to have a key to them during the day," Roberts suggested, gaining support from fellow councilmen in sidestepping the law. Recreation fees would be used to buy the portables, but the school district would be expected to do repair work and make improvements.

On a unanimous vote, the council told City Mgr. Peter M. Callinan and Schools Supt. James H. Davidson to price used portable classrooms and recommend if the plan might work.

The Rohnert Park City Council also:

REZONING — Approved rezoning of 680 acres more of the Rohnert Park Expressway as requested by Shapell Industries. Councilman Vernon P. Smith dissented, saying an environmental impact report should have been received first on the 2,000 living units proposed.

MOBILE HOMES — Approved on a 3-2 vote rezoning of 41.5 acres for a 300-unit mobile home park at Hinebaugh Creek. Roberts and Councilman Louis G. Beary dissented, arguing for adults only rather than the 30 per cent family units permitted.

BUS — Directed Callinan to study the feasibility of funding a minibus service within the city and to the college.

SALARY — Granted a 5.5 per cent salary increase to Callinan, bringing his pay to $1,860 per month.

MEETING — Agreed to hold a town hall meeting Feb. 12 at 7:30 p.m. at the community center. An agenda will be considered at the Feb. 5 council meeting.

Plan To Preserve Old Structures Approved

A proposal to protect historical buildings through zoning won tentative approval from the Petaluma City Council last night.

Representatives of the Petaluma Historic Preservation Committee, formed after the Dec. 18 city council meeting in which the new city zoning ordinance was adopted, said elimination at the same time of the historic combination district would threaten old structures in the city.

Donald D. Confer, a representative of the committee, said the group would assist the city with plans for a new historical district. A committee suggestion for a three-month moratorium on demolition of structures within the district was rejected.

Planning Director William C. McGivern said he was willing to work with the committee but that a moratorium would be a threat to any work unrelated to historic preservation. McGivern suggested the committee could review any demolition plans and decide if these structures would be worthy of preservation.

Mayor Putnam said the first step was to set up a meeting as soon as possible for whomever wants to hear about the district. She called for a joint meeting open to the public.

"Out of this should come the kinds of things we want. We can decide where to go from there," she said.

The council also suggested that an inventory be compiled of all buildings that have historical value.

The Petaluma City Council Also:

SEWERS — Agreed to consider sharing costs with Stero Dishwashing Machine Manufacturing Co. on extending the sewer main at Lakeville Highway and Frates Road.

APPEALS — Set a hearing for Jan. 30 at 4 p.m. on appeals of residential development evaluation board ratings of proposed housing projects.

COMPUTERS — Agreed to research further the feasibility and cost of a computer system at the Feb. 5 meeting.

ZONING — Set a hearing date for Jan. 29 for rezoning a multi-family residential district to a planned unit development district at the northeast corner of Ely Boulevard North and East Washington Street.

RESTROOMS — Approved installation of prefabricated comfort stations at La Tercera Park at a cost of $8,500.

PARKS — Saw plans for the development of the 2.5-acre Miwok Park and new playground equipment for preschool and elementary children.

MEETING — Adjourned to Jan. 29 at 7:30 p.m. to consider permitting alcoholic beverages in recreational halls and increasing building rental fees.

County Plan To Be Presented

The proposed countywide general plan will be presented to members of the Marin County Family and Children's Services Advisory Committee Jan. 23 at 8 p.m. at the county schools office in Corte Madera.

The committee, an advisory group to county supervisors and welfare department officials, has criticized the plan as lacking firm policies for more low-income family housing.

The committee's agenda also includes discussion of federal revenue sharing as it relates to welfare — possibly forcing the county to pick up a larger share.

The county schools office is located at 201 Tamal Vista Boulevard near the Co-op shopping center.

Club Planning 'Charlie Brown'

The Terra Linda High School Drama Club, known as the Supernumeraries, will stage "You're a Good Man Charlie Brown" next month.

Performances will begin at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 8 and at 8 p.m. on Feb. 9 and 10 in the school's Little Theater.

Senior Tom Elkjer will direct the musical, adapted from the comic strip "Peanuts."

The cast will include John Finn as Charlie Brown, Andree Krier as Lucy, Dan Mogulof as Snoopy, Dewey Reed as Schroeder, Donna Stallone as Patty and Jim Wright as Linus.

JUST A LOT OF WATER

Commuters on Highway 101 today found the scene was straight out of Noah as they approached Corte Madera. Flooding in several sections of the highway, along with a slide on Waldo Grade, contributed to a massive traffic jam in which many never made it to work. (See story, photos, page 1.)

TOW TRUCK DIES — The deep water was too much for one busy tow truck on Lucky Drive in Corte Madera. Water was so deep that vehicles fording the flooded freeway made waves with small white caps. The freeway was opened and closed several times by the California Highway Patrol.

LIFT YOUR SKIRTS — Golden Gate Transit bus wades through deep water at Lucky Drive in Corte Madera. The vehicle made it onto the freeway. The buses at least had the advantage of height, which apparently saved them from the stalled engines that plagued other drivers.

DOUBLE WET — Two unidentified rescuers failed to master the rapids at a Novato intersection, and were dumped into four feet of water. They righted their boat, hopped back in, and went on their way.

HELP — Little Christine Villa of Novato is lifted to safety by two strong firemen after deep waters swept around her home on Garden Court.

Bond Election Is Rescheduled

The Cotati-Rohnert Park School District board has rescheduled its $1.5 million bond election to April 17.

The election had been scheduled for March 6, but the legal notice setting the date had not been published far enough in advance.

Board secretary Miriam Horne said the board set the new date to coincide with the district trustee election. Bond funds would be used to build a new school.

Pick The Best Finesse For Slam Contract In Spades

"How could I tell which finesse was going to work?" South asked after the play of today's hand. He was asking the wrong question, for the choice was very clear. Moreover, an answer to his question would not have helpd him.

SOUTH RUFFS

West opened a club, and South ruffed. Declarer drew three rounds of trumps, ending in dummy, and led the ten of hearts for a finesse. He expected to make his contract if either the heart finesse or the diamond finesse worked.

West took the queen of hearts, and East eventually got the setting trick with the king of diamonds.

TOOK WRONG FINESSE

Both finesses lost, as it turned out, but South should have made his contract. He made the mistake of taking the wrong finesse first.

South should draw trumps and try the diamond finesse to begin with. If East slyly refuses the trick, South can abandon the diamonds and just give up one heart trick.

If East takes the first diamond with the king, South can do without the heart finesse altogether. He can get rid of three hearts on dummy's good diamonds and then his slam contract is unbeatable.

A MORAL

Perhaps we can draw a moral from South's little tragedy. Don't ask a question when the answer is useless. In fact, a bridge player who asks questions after the play of a hand that he has muffed may get an answer that he won't like.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:
♠ - 6
♥ - 5 2
♦ - K 6 4 2
♣ - A Q J 9 8 4.
ANSWER: Pass.

You would bid this borderline hand if the long suit were a major or if it had one more high-card point in either of the long suits. Some experts would bid one club with the hand as it stands.

Nixon Programs Against Crime Said Working

CLEVELAND (UPI) — U.S. Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst says President Nixon's anti-crime programs are working and "we are building an edifice of domestic peace in the United States." Kleindienst said a record 768 persons linked to organized crime were convicted in 1972 and a total of more than 2,500 in Nixon's first four-year term of office.

He said twice as much heroin was seized last year as in 1971, creating a shortage among pushers in major U.S. eastern cities. "We have not yet won the war, but the enemy is in retreat," said Kleindienst. "We will keep up our offensive until we drive the last of the major narcotics rings out of business."

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON GREB

How many candles should we put on the cake today for these celebrities — 38, 62, 64, or 69? Those are their ages today.

1. Dizzy Dean is the kid from Arkansas who pitched his way to fame with the St. Louis Cardinals in the 1930s. One of five children of cotton-pickers, he was spotted by a major league scout while pitching for a gas house club, then proved him right by establishing a lifetime record of 150 wins, 83 losses. He was averaging 22 wins yearly until injured — won 30 in 1934.

2. Ethel Merman made her Broadway debut in "Girl Crazy" 33 years ago. With her strong, booming voice she has starred in countless musicals and made collector's items out of recordings of "You're the Top" and "Alexander's Ragtime Band." She was born in Astoria, New York, and was educated to be a secretary.

3. A. J. Foyt was born in Houston, Tex., where there was plenty of gas to propel automobiles. And he showed how fast they could go three times in the Indianapolis "500," driving to victory in 1961, 1964, and 1967. This national champion won top money by averaging better than 151 miles per hour in a Ford Coyote in his last big win. You could have won it in 1920 driving 89 miles per hour.

4. Ivie Anderson is a familiar voice to anyone who likes Duke Ellington records. From Gilroy, Calif. she sang with his band from 1931 to 1942, cutting such favorites as "It Don't Mean a Thing" and "I Got It Bad." She also appeared with the Marx Brothers in the film, "Day at the Races." She died in 1949 but we remember her birthday today.

ANSWERS

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Difference Between A Strain And A Sprain Misunderstood

L. V. writes: "What is the difference between a sprain and a strain?" This is a good question because there is considerable misunderstanding about these conditions.

Sprain is, perhaps, the more serious, since it represents an incomplete tearing of capsule and ligaments as a result of joint injury. A strain usually involves a muscle that was stretched or pulled beyond its capacity. Overlapping between the two injuries is inevitable because muscles often end in the ligaments that are attached to the joints.

AN ANKLE sprain usually stems from a sudden, twisting injury such as occurs when stepping down a curb or during an athletic contest. The foot inverts so that the weight of the body is carried on the outside of the structure. The ankle is bent under and the joint capsule and ligaments on the outside of the joint are torn. The ankle usually becomes extremely painful and swollen; the individual no longer may be able to bear weight on the leg. Occasionally the person is able to finish what he is doing before the pain sets in.

In a strain, the muscle fibers tear after vigorous and forceful use. The contracted muscle is stretched beyond its ability to lengthen and the injured tissues bleed and swell (charlie horse).

THE DISTRESS depends upon the severity of the injury. Most of the victims tell of developing severe disabling pain during strenuous muscular activity. The typical example is the runner who pulls a muscle in the groin, thigh, or calf during a race. A forceful delivery by the pitcher may do the same in the shoulder and arm.

Chronic muscular strain may occur to a sedentary individual after hiking a long distance. Although the area is tender to the touch, it rarely swells or bleeds.

During the first 24 to 48 hours, strains are best treated with ice packs. Thereafter, heat and rest are most helpful. Sprains respond to a compression bandage, elevation of the part, and the immediate application of ice. An Ace bandage or plaster cast also may be needed. However, surgery usually is required when the tendon is torn. In both instances, physiotherapy hastens recovery.

NEEDS CHECKUP

A reader writes: My boy friend fainted last night and had to be given oxygen to bring him to. He said he has an enlarged thyroid. Could this be responsible for his attack?

REPLY

Yes, but unconsciousness is not the usual manifestation. An enlarged thyroid may press on the windpipe or esophagus, leading to difficulty in breathing or swallowing. In most instances, a goiter is nothing more than a cosmetic defect. Your friend ought to have his attack investigated.

BELL'S PALSY

Mr. S. writes: Six years ago I was cured of Bell's palsy. Could I get it again?

REPLY

Yes, but a second attack is unusual. Not much can be done to prevent the condition except to avoid drafts and infections. See your dentist regulaly to correct dental conditions that might affect the bite.

Coastline Session Is Tomorrow

The first meeting of the North Central Coast Regional Commission will be held at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the supervisors' chambers of the Marin Civic Center.

Passage of Proposition 20 on the November ballot created six regional commissions and a statewide coast panel to draft plans for the zone's conservation and development. The North Central Coast Regional Commission has jurisdiction over the ocean coasts of Marin, Sonoma and San Francisco counties.

The meeting was called by Marin Supervisor Michael Wornum, a member of the new commission and chairman of the Association of Bay Area Governments ocean coastline planning committee.

The regional commission has power to prohibit any construction along the coast during the four years it has to draft a plan.

Ten of the 14 members of the regional commission are from Marin and Sonoma: Wornum, Fairfax City Councilman Frank J. Egger Jr., Marin County Planning Commissioner Margaret Azevedo, Melville Owen of Kentfield, Phyllis Faber of Mill Valley, Sonoma County Supervisor Robert Theiller, Santa Rosa Vice Mayor Gregory Jones, Dr. Bradford Lundborg and Kenneth M. Stocking, both of Santa Rosa, and Wanda Zankich of Bodega Bay.

San Francisco members are Supervisors Robert H. Mendelsohn and John Molinari, and Ellen Jonck. Pleasant Hill Vice Mayor Leonard E. Grote is the representative of the Association of Bay Area Governments.

ALMANAC

The moon is approaching its full phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter. The evening star is Saturn.

Famed American designer and woodcarver Samuel McIntire was born Jan. 16, 1757.

On this day in history:

In 1833, the Pendleton Act went into effect, providing for the U.S. Civil Service Commission.

In 1920, the 18th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution became effective, prohibiting the manufacture, sale or transportation of intoxicating liquors.

In 1942, screen star Carole Lombard, her mother, and 20 other passengers were killed in a commercial airliner crash near Las Vegas, Nev. Miss Lombard was the wife of actor Clark Gable.

In 1970, organized baseball was charged with violating antitrust laws in a federal court suit brought on behalf of St. Louis Cardinals player Curt Flood.

A thought for the day: Irish poet Thomas Moore said, "My only books were woman's looks, and folly's all they've taught me."

Smoke particles, clean air.

Other areas:

San Francisco, clean air.
San Jose, clean air.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, while the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Council Tentatively Sets A Library Bond Election

The San Rafael City Council last night gave tentative approval to an October bond issue for improvement of the city's library after declaring present facilities are inadequate. (See another San Rafael City Council story, page 1.)

No specific date or bond amount was mentioned, however.

The action came after city fathers rejected all bids for a public toilet addition to the facility in the wake of news that the proposed addition would have to be torn down to make way for future expansion.

Low bid on the proposed toilet addition was about $5,000 more than the $12,500 budgeted for the improvement, according to Bryce W. Anderson, library board member.

Anderson said that if the toilets were constructed now, "we'd have to tear them out again to expand." He said plans originally had called for one toilet but had mushroomed into a four-toilet addition. The project has already cost about $600 due to an architectural study, he said.

Anderson said there is no room in the library for more books, and that the facility is inadequate by American Library Association standards for a city San Rafael's size.

At Anderson's suggestion, the council said funds budgeted for the toilet addition will be used for "earthquake-proofing" of the library, an improvement harmonious with future expansion.

The San Rafael City Council Also:

CITY MANAGER — Declared that acting City Mgr. William J. Bielser, who was appointed to the "acting" post in the wake of the resignation of City Mgr. James H. McCown two weeks ago, is now a full-fledged city manager.

ROSS STREET — Put over to Feb. 5 consideration of an appeal of planning commission denial of the Tamalpais Land and Development Co.'s proposal for a multiple apartment development at 127 Ross Street.

REZONING — Rezoned 22 acres off Mitchell Boulevard from heavy commercial to planned community district in connection with the Northgate Industrial Park Unit II.

UTILITY DISTRICT — Declared a strip of land stretching along Francisco Boulevard from Bellam Boulevard to Irwin Street as "Underground Utility District No. 5," but made no commitment to finance the undergrounding. Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere, a spokesman for the Francisco Boulevard Beautification Committee, predicted undergrounding of utilities "as early as 1975."

PEACE PLEA — Rejected a request by the Christmas Eve Peace Committee to declare Saturday as "Peace Day" in the city and declined to lead a Marin peace march sponsored by the Northern California Peace Action Coalition. The council said it had a longstanding policy of "not becoming involved in national issues."

CITIZENS COMMITTEE — Postponed appointments to the citizens committee on the general plan to Feb. 5 in the wake of a flood of 90 applications for 60 committee seats. The city earlier had experienced difficulty in encouraging applications.

DOLLAR ESTATE — Authorized expenditures of up to $1,000 on a matching basis with Marin Heritage for a feasibility study aimed at determining the financial implications of purchase, preservation and use of the Robert Dollar estate on Mission Avenue. The study, to be made by an independent consultant and "appropriate professionals" already associated with the preservationist group, will be completed within 90 days.

APPOINTMENT — Appointed colleague John A. Miskimen as city representative on the Redwood Empire Association, a post vacated by the death of Harry A. Barbier.

BONDS — Called for bids on $2.25 million in open space bonds on Feb. 5.

TRANSFER — Transferred from San Anselmo to San Rafael two small parcels on Alexander Avenue. The land is now in San Anselmo, though all other property fronting on the avenue is in San Rafael. San Anselmo approved the action.

LANDSLIDE — Learned that an old landslide on the site slated for acquisition by the Mont Marin Open Space Assessment District will cost about $50,000 to repair, and directed homeowners to meet with city officials on Jan. 23 to discuss the matter.

GIFT — Referred to the parks and recreation commission a request by E. S. Arntz that he give two acres of land in Bayside Acres to the city in return for payment of an $11,000 sewer assessment.

STOP SIGNS — Ordered stop signs placed on Lea Drive at Regina Way in both directions and that Belle and Ridge avenues be turned into a three-way-stop intersection.

POLICE — Authorized Police Chief Joseph J. Brusatori to make discretionary payments to members of the auxiliary police force as compensation for services rendered.

PERSONNEL — Hired Jack K. Karr as patrolman for $886 monthly; hired Chris Southard as a civil engineer for $950 monthly and promoted Roland L. Brust to assistant civil engineer at a salary of $1,142 monthly.

MANAGERS — Declared the posts of 37 city employees to be "miscellaneous management and confidential personnel," or employees having access to personnel bargaining information, and said such employees may not be represented by the miscellaneous employees association.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Feb. 5.

Concert Slated As Scholarship Fund-Raiser

The Lydian Ensemble, a chamber music group, will present a concert at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 28 at Caleruega Hall, Dominican College, San Rafael, to raise funds for music scholarships.

The program will include works of Claude Debussy, Alan Hovhannes, Jacques Bondon and Alan Rawsthorne.

The ensemble consists of Beverly Bellows, a harpist who is with the Oakland Symphony Orchestra, Oakland Ballet and San Francisco Opera Company; Jean Chandler, a flutist with the Marin Symphony Orchestra; and Janice Negherbon, a biolist, who plays with the Oakland Sympony Orchestra.

Terra Linda Open Space Still In Air

The San Rafael City Council, faced with increasing demands by Terra Lindans that a 10-acre parcel slated for development be acquired as open space, last night asked for more staff information on the matter.

It was the second time in as many hearings that the council had declined action in the tug of war between open space advocates and developer Jerry Meislin, despite a plea by Mayor C. Paul Bettini for a decision without further delay.

At issue is a parcel near Knockaboul Way and Wintergreen Terrace on which Meislin already has received city approval of a tentative map for a 16-lot subdivision.

John Nicholas of 6 Wintergreen Terrace noting that the old Terra Linda Community Services District board unanimously had tapped the parcel for acquisition through a $60,000 reserve fund, presented city fathers with petitions containing signatures of 668 families urging preservation of the land.

Nicholas said that residents in the 1,000-home community "fantastically approved" acquisition of the land, and argued the site was "visible to the majority of the valley."

Others noted the city annexation agreement with Terra Linda earmarked the reserve fund for local open space acquisition and argued that springs on the site made development unfeasible.

Jean Starkweather of Terra Linda said the area has had "an historic slide problem" and claimed a soils report made by Meislin — which found no presence of ground water despite "numerous borings" — was made in September during the drought.

The study by Cooper-Clark soils engineers of Novato is dated Nov. 8 and "was probably made several months before that," Meislin said.

The developer argued he had proceeded in good faith with his plans on the basis of tentative map approval by the city. Declaring that he thought the history of the site to be "an old wives tale," Meislin charged his proposal "was being hindered by political motivations."

Meislin said his plans call for public access for Terra Lindans to the nearby 184-acre Mont Marin Open Space Assessment District lands.

Bettini, who described the petitions as "fanfare," urged a prompt decision on the matter. "Either he has the opportunity to go ahead with development or we purchase the land as open space," he said.

Councilman Lawrence E. Mulryan, describing the petitions as an "important indication" of community wishes, urged authorization of up to $60,000 to acquire the land as open space.

Bettini, saying purchase of the parcel now might mean less money for Terra Linda acquisitions through open space bonds later, asked for more staff advice on other available open lands in the community.

The council deferred action until Feb. 5 pending reports from staff and the parks and recreation commission.

Senator Claims Auto Recalls Topped Sales

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., says auto makers recalled more cars than they made last year and should be required to pay for repairs when safety-related recalls are issued.

Present law only requires manufacturers to issue a recall when a safety defect is noted, Nelson said Monday. He said auto firms often do pay for repairs but are not required to do so.

But Nelson said manufacturers did not pay costs when Corvairs were recalled to fix heaters that leaked fumes, when Volkswagens were recalled to repair windshield wipers, and when Alfa Romeos were recalled to fix defective brake fluid reservoirs.

Plenty To See At Sports Show

Pardon me if I take off the shoes and rest my feet awhile. I wandered through the huge halls and pavillions of the Cow Palace last night at the San Francisco Sports and Boat Show and that takes a little bit of walking.

Although I didn't count them, I'll take publicist Graham Kislingbury's word for it that there are a record 628 exhibits spread over the Cow Palace grounds and in the main pavilion.

OUT OF THE RAIN of winter and into the dreams of vacation there I was in the Vacationland Hall gathering literature from exhibits with that outdoor chamber of commerce air, from Canada, from Idaho, from Wyoming, and from nearby Redwood Empire haunts. Men and women working the booths told of all the great fishing and hunting their areas provided.

Then I strolled through hall after hall of campers and camper trucks, huge mobile homes, every make and model imaginable. Some of the plushier homes on wheels carried price tags of up to $24,000. But being a realist, I spent more time looking at the Volkswagen campers. You don't see too many sports writers driving around in the more expensive ones . . . unless he's free loading on somebody else's rig.

AFTER THAT TRIP through vacationland spots and seeing the rigs that could get you there, I hotfooted it to the South Hall to get the latest on fishing tackle and studied some hand-tied flies, rods, reels, lures and all those streamside goodies. By now the rain of winter was being locked out of my consciousness and my visions were only of some mountainside stream and the clear air of summer.

When I came upon some water skiing exhibits, I immediately looked up the Western Wood Manufacturing Co. which is represented by world champ Mike Suyderhoud of Petaluma, and sure enough, I ran into Mike and his father, Jaap, of San Anselmo.

Mike and Jaap were on hand to discuss water skiing to any of the show goers who stopped by the booth. In addition, there is a continuous videotape of Mike going through his water skiing routine which s really something to behold.

In the main pavilion are the beautiful boats of the show — sailboats, power boats, dinghies to ocean-going craft. At the front of the hall, standing majestically, was the queen of the show — not the pretty blonde, the boat, the boat. It's a Columbia 45-footer, the exterior trim of solid teak gleaming under the bright lights. Cost is a mere $45,000. I had the feeling of being in a big city for the first time, looking up, not at the skyscrapers, but at tall white sails.

NO VISIT TO the boat show would be complete without seeing show director Tom Rooney's gimmick boat, this time the Wrigley Chewing Gum Boat, a catamaran with pontoons shaped and painted to look like giant packages of spearmint gum. It was designed by Brooks Stevens and made by Don Price in the backyard of his Santa Rosa home.

The Hall of Guns is one of the popular attractions of the show and features a display of Buffalo Bill Cody's guns, with Cody's grandson, looking every bit like his grandpa, there to talk to the visitors. There is also an exhibit of the evolution of cartridges which has painstakingly been assembled over the past 54 years.

THE HUCK FINN fishing pond for the kids is still a part of the show and just a peek inside to look at the expressions on those kids' faces when they catch a five-inch trout is worth the price of admission.

The 31st annual sports-boat show will run through Sunday, from 2 to 11 p.m. on weekdays, from 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Sunday.

And take your check book. Everything you see is for sale. Even that $45,000 dandy.

Ailing Attles Sent To Bed

Combined AP & UPI

OAKLAND — Nate Thurmond, a National Basketball Association All-Star again after a long wait, will coach the Golden State Warriors tonight from his center position.

The Western Division coaches added the 6-foot-11 veteran to the West All-Star squad today, 24 hours after Thurmond learned he would be player-coach for a week in the absence of coach Al Attles.

Attles has been ordered to take a week off. He is ill with pneumonitis and will rejoin the team Jan. 25 for the game here against Kansas City-Omaha.

Guard Jeff Mullins, when he learned of the ailment, said: "We are going to miss the leadership and direction of Al."

The Warriors play Cleveland here tonight and start a three-game road trip tomorrow night in Houston.

The Cavaliers are nestled in the cellar of the NBA's Centeral Division with a 15-30 mark while Golden State is second in the Pacific Division with a 29-14 mark.

The last time Thurmond played in the All-Star game was in 1967. He was named to play in the 1968 and 1970 games but missed them because of injuries.

He joins Warriors forward Rick Barry on this year's West team. Barry, just back from the American Basketball Association, also last played in the NBA All-Star game in 1967.

The 1967 game was at San Francisco's Cow Palace and the Warriors' entries were among the stars. Barry scored 38 points while Thurmond scored 16 and grabbed 18 rebounds.

A MIAMI PROMISE

'We'll Try To Be Better Team Next Season'–Shula

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — In his final news conference yesterday before leaving California to return to Florida as the conquering hero, Super Bowl VII winner Don Shula had some bad news for the other 25 coaches in the National Football League.

"We'll be out to be a better football team next season," the 42 year-old coach of the Miami Dolphins said.

"Our desire will have to be to repeat, that's where it has to start," Shula continued. "But I'm not worried. This team has done everything I've asked them to do in the three years I've been at Miami and I don't see any reason for them to change."

Although his perfect 17-0 Dolphins had only two starters over 30 in their 14-7 victory over the Washington Redskins Sunday, the Miami coach wasn't ready to talk about a Dolphin dynasty.

"I don't think you ever hear coach-types talk about dynasties," Shula said. "We know the competition in this league is very tough."

Only tight end Marv Fleming and linebacker Nick Buoniconti, both 31, were Miami Super Bowl starters over 30 and the Dolphin mentor said he didn't look for any of his players to retire, including backup quarterback Earl Morrall, who will be 39 before next season.

DON SHULA
Gives views

"We have a couple of spots where we've got some age," Shula noted, "but basically we're a young football team and we're grooming some younger players, too."

"It's nice to win here in the backyard of a guy (Rosenbloom) who has severely criticized me in the past at not being able to win the big one," he said.

After the news confernce, he had a three-minute phone conversation with President Nixon in which he received the President's congratulations.

Meanwhile, last night, when the Washington Redskins returned to Redskin Park, a small but vocal group of fans cheered them and sang, "Hail to the Redskins."

Obviously pleased with the enthusiastic welcome, Allen told the crowd he "didn't think we'd have such a turnout after we lost.

2 Hamilton Boxers Win Vs. England

The U.S. national team, however, suffered a 6-5 defeat to the English, as light-middleweight Reggie Jones lost a controversial decision to John Whitehorn.

Wells, a heavyweight from Fort Worth, Tex., needed only two punches to dispose of Les McGowen of Liverpool in a first-round knockout. The first punch stunned McGowan, and the second knocked him unconscious for three minutes.

Light flyweight Rivera, of New York City, was awarded a three-round decision over Mickey Abrams of England, and the verdict drew jeers from the crowd.

Also unpopular was Whitehorn's decision over Jones, who had suffered a similar controversial loss to Valery Tregubov of the Soviet Union in the Olympics. This time, Jones knocked Whitehorn down twice for counts of eight in the first minute of the first round, and apparently won the second as well, but the Englishman rallied to win the third round and was awarded the fight.

In another controversial bout, middleweight Frankie Lucas of London was given a decision even though he was floored for eight in the first round and appeared to dominate only the last half of the last round.

The U.S. team later this month will fight the Soviet Union in Las Vegas, Nev.

USF Impresses Bruins' Coach

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Gary Cunningham, John Wooden's right-hand man, saw the University of San Francisco's Dons last week and came away impressed.

"USF is a very fine ball club," the UCLA assistant coach told the Southern California basketball writers Monday. "They can shoot from the outside, they're a strong rebounding team, they run well and they're strong on defense.

"I'm very impressed with them."

Cunningham was in San Francisco last Thursday night and scouted the Dons' 109-92 romp over Loyola of Los Angeles.

"They ran against Loyola and converted many points off their fast break," he said "Defensively, they play both zone and man-to-man effectively."

57 STRAIGHT

Ironically, UCLA has 57 straight wins over three seasons and is closing in on USF's all-time record of 60 straight victories.

The No. 1-ranked Bruins, who have a 12-0 record this season, and the 11th-rated Dons, who are 12-1, meet at Pauley Pavilion Friday night. UCLA faces Providence, 10-1, here Saturday night.

In Pacific-8 action last weekend, the Bruins won 82-67 at Stanford and 69-50 at California.

When the Bruins play USF and Providence next weekend, they'll probably be without starting guard Tommy Curtis, who missed the Stanford and Cal games with the flu.

THE FLU

"He has the gastrointestinal flu and it's doubtful if he'll be ready," the Bruin assistant coach said.

Loyola coach Dick Baker, whose Lions were trounced by USF by 17 points in West Coast Athletic Conference play last week, was asked to pick a UCLA-San Francisco winner.

"USF is a very good team and UCLA is a very, very good team," Baker declared. "UCLA probably won't play anyone much tougher before —or if— they get to the regionals.

'LONG NIGHT'

"UCLA better play well or it could be a long night for them. Obviously, though, I'd have to pick UCLA if I was going to bet."

All-America Ed Ratleff of eighth-ranked Cal State Long Beach and teammate Nate Stephens, the 49ers' 6-foot-11 starting center, have the flu, coach Jerry Tarkanian revealed.

"We don't play until Saturday night so we have some time," Tarkanian said.

'FORTUNATE'

"We've been fortunate to make it through the first part of our schedule as well as we did," Tarkanian said. "We've played only three of our first 14 games at home and the road schedule has really worn the kids down.

"Now we have eight of our remaining 12 games on the home court and the schedule isn't as demanding."

A's Players At Dinner For Finley

OAKLAND (AP) — Several Oakland Athletics players will be in the crowd tonight at a testimonial dinner for Charles O. Finley, owner of the baseball team which gave Northern California its first sports world championship last fall.

"Thank You Charlie Finley Day" has been declared by the city, and the dinner is being sponsored by the Oakland Chamber of Commerce and other local organizations.

Gene Tenace, Joe Rudi, Rollie Fingers, Ken Holtzman, Reggie Jackson and Dave Duncan are among the players expected to attend, along with Manager Dick Williams.

The public is invited to the $12.50-a-plate dinner.

ABA DRAFT

ABA 'Secret' Draft Held By Telephone

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Basketball Association held a "secret" draft of collegiate basketball players by telephone yesterday and mum is the word.

The draft included both seniors and underclassmen but little information was released concerning the identity of those drafted.

The Virginia Squires formally announced that they drafted George Gervin, formerly of Eastern Michigan. Garvin dropped out of school last year after becoming involved in a fight in the championship game of the National Collegiate Athletic Association College Division Tournament. He has been playing for the Pontiac team in the Continental League in Detroit.

The Norfolk Virginian-Pilot reported it is believed that Gervin has already signed with the Squires.

Gervin reportedly had been on the verge of signing with a National Basketball Association team, but NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy would not approve the contract.

Larry McNeill, a 6-foot-9 star for Marquette, was reportedly drafted by the San Diego Conquistadors.

One ABA coach, who declined to be quoted by name, said. "We're trying to break the NBA and sign these guys even before the other league even holds its draft. Most of us are not even going to leak the names of the players we drafted." The ABA office reportedly gave strict orders not to leak any of the players names.

All-Americans Bill Walton of UCLA, Ed Ratleff of Long Beach State and Doug Collins of Illinois State were not on the list since they were drafted last year in the regular ABA draft.

SAN FRANCISCO TENNIS

Nancy Gunter, Fran Durr Win

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Thirty-year-old veteran stars Nancy Gunter of San Angelo, Tex., and Francoise Durr of Paris, fought off younger challengers to win opening round singles matches in the $25,000 British Motors Pro Tennis Championships here last night.

After a first set loss and a near defeat in the second, Miss Durr edged Leslie Hunt of Australia, 4-6, 7-5, 6-3.

Both winners moved into the quarter final round.

Billie Jean King of Berkeley, Calif., and Rosie Casals of Sausalito moved into the semifinals of doubles play with a slim 6-3, 7-6 victory over Chris Kemmer of Los Angeles and Barbara Downs of Alamo, Calif.

The tourney continues through Saturday.

PREP OF THE WEEK

After Just 2 Years Play, Stewart Emerges As Star

By LEW CODDINGTON

Rival basketball players, flailing helplessly under the bucket as Byron Stewart plucks a rebound high above them, can take consolation in one fact: there once was a time when Stewart was their size, or smaller.

It's not true now, and won't be true again. Only a junior at San Rafael High School, Stewart stands 6-foot-7 and last week blended his height with other attributes to score 52 points and grab 38 rebounds in two games to become Independent-Journal Prep of the Week.

For somebody who has been playing organized ball only two years, the achievement is considerable. To opponents who must face him in years to come, the prospect is terrifying.

"I don't think he realizes how good he can be," said San Rafael coach Bret Tovani, who also coached Stewart last year when both were with the junior varsity.

That may be because Stewart still has a keen sense of what he was — an athlete of average size, playing Pop Warner football in San Anselmo, with no basketball experience or interest.

Then he began to grow, five inches in one year and another five a couple of years later. And he discovered a phenomenon — when you're growing like that, a lot of people suggest that you might want to play some basketball.

"I played some in P.E. at White Hill Junior High (in Fairfax) in the seventh grade, and got to like it, because I was a little bit better than everybody else," he said. But he didn't play in the eighth grade, and after moving failed to make San Rafael's freshman team in the ninth. As a sophomore, he made the J.V. team, but didn't begin to play regularly until the second half of the season.

"A lot of people got behind me and pushed me," said Stewart. "Coach Tovani, Coach (Mike) Diaz (who handled the varsity last year), Guy Perry (a forward) and the other guys on the team. The pushing helped. I didn't know they cared, but they did."

Stewart also put in a plug for the cheerleaders, which is understandable, since his sister Darla is one. Both Darla and his other sister, Tonnie, are on the tall side, which is remarkable because his parents are not.

Byron's father, Vern, stands 6-2 and is a representative for Standard Oil now working on racial problems in the Richmond plant. His mother, Ruby, works at Marin General Hospital and is about to become a registered nurse, and she is just 5-7.

"I'm beginning to think about college," he said. "I really haven't decided, but of course there are places where everybody'd like to go — UCLA, Berkeley, Long Beach."

The one area where he would like to improve his game most is rebounding, surprisingly. "I need more board power, I need to be more solid," he said. His favorite professional players — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Bob Dandridge, and Curtis Perry — all have this trait.

Stewart weighs 205 pounds, slim for his height, and the requisite strength presumably can be developed through weight training. "The incentive will have to come from his realizing how much potential he has," Tovani said. "He could be the best thing this league has ever seen.

Kansas City Toys With NBA 76ers

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Kansas City-Omaha Kings got their chance to toy with the Philadelphia 76ers Monday night and like the rest of the National Basketball Association, they had a ball.

The Kings exploited Philadelphia's defense for 43 points in the third quarter, 10 of them coming on layups, and went on to rout the 76ers 135-108. The loss was the 43rd in 47 games for the 76ers this season, the worst record by far in the league.

Nate Archibald, the league's leading scorer, hit for 30 points and contributed 14 assists before leaving the game with nearly seven minutes left. Freddie Boyd led the 76ers with 24 points.

In the only other game, Dave Bing scored 31 points and Bob Lanier added 24 to lead the Detroit Pistons to a 112-101 victory over the Portland Trail Blazers. The victory snapped a three-game losing streak for the Pistons. Portland, which has won only 11 games, second worst to Philadelphia, was led by Sidney Wicks' 29 points.

FOR PINCH-HITTERS

Casey Supports New Rule

By MILTON RICHMAN

GLENDALE, Calif. (UPI) — "Of course, I'm for it. I've been doin' it all my life, ain't I?"

Casey Stengel, the world's leading authority on designated pinch-hitters—he has designated more of them in his time, perhaps, than any other man alive—paused a moment from puttering around in the garden of his neat but unpretentious, white stucco Spanish-type home here to talk about the American League's newly adopted rule for the upcoming season.

"It's gotta help," said the 82-year-old former manager of the Dodgers, Braves, Mets and Yankees, referring to the use of specified pinch-hitters in place of the pitchers without the pitchers having to leave the game.

"Some pitchers are never gonna get to hit this way," a newsman said to ol' Case.

"The ones who can't hit anyway," he said, answering his own question. "They're never gonna take the good ones out, like (Bob) Gibson, are they?

"Sure, I used to believe in takin' pitchers out," Stengel said. " I believed in takin' other guys out too no matter what inning it was. I took (Clete) Boyer out once in the second inning of a World Series in Pittsburgh, before he ever came up to bat, and got hell for it, remember?

"I did it because they had scored three-four runs in the first inning. So I put in a pinchhitter. Why in hell not? I'm behind, ain't I? How in hell am I gonna catch 'em in nine innings if I don't try to? It's too late to catch 'em tomorrow. The guy I put in to hit for Boyer was outfielder-first baseman Dale Long who used to play for Pittsburgh. The fella hit a line drive that was caught. We scored some runs anyway, but we lost. Remember the big smell they made about it? They said it was Boyer's first World Series, and how could I be so mean and take him out?"

"How can anybody say this is a bad thing?" he asked. "I used it with the Yankees and we won ten pennants."

Stengel put in more than 50 years in baseball before retiring at the end of 1965. He saw many fine hitting pitchers in his time but, this is a trait of his, he shies away from saying which one he thinks was best because he doesn't wish to hurt the feelings of some other pitcher who might feel he's the one Casey should have singled out.

"I won't say (Charlie) Ruffing was the greatest hitter I ever seen for a pitcher, but he was one of 'em. (Don) Drysdale was a very good hitter and so was (Bob) Lemon. I had some pretty good ones, too, like (Ed) Lopat, (Whitey) Ford and (Tommy) Byrne. All of 'em could hit."

Yet Stengel sent in pinchhitters for Lopat, Ford and Byrne when he felt he had to.

Casey says he can't begin to calculate how many pinchhitters he used during the 25 years he managed in the majors.

"I'll tell you one thing, though," he says. "I believed in it."

Nobody was sacred as far as he was concerned either.

Once, after one of his better known infielders was removed for a pinch-hitter, and the infielder who had already begun walking up to the plate became so angry over being pulled that he flung his bat toward the rack.

It bounced into the dugout and landed only inches from Stengel's feet.

The infielder grumbled something about being taken out and headed straight down the dugout steps toward the Yankees clubhouse.

Stengel was after him like a shot.

"Lissen here, you," snapped Casey, his face less than six inches from the infielder's. "When you manage this club, you do it your way. I'm managin' now, so you're gonna do it my way. Understand?"

The infielder nodded silently.

Warfield Out Of Pro Bowl; Hill Selected

DALLAS (UPI) — Pro bowl officials today excused Miami flanker Paul Warfield from participating in Sunday's game because of illness in his family.

J. D. Hill, a second year player from the Buffalo Bills, was named to replace Warfield. Hill reported to workouts today.

Warfield's 3-year-old son was thought to have been suffering from a case of flu, but doctors in Miami have diagnosed the ailment as scarlet fever.

Redskins 'Not Fired Up' Against Dolphins—Landry

DALLAS (UPI) — The Washington club that Tom Landry saw on his television set last Sunday did not remind him in any way of the team he was forced to look at New Year's Eve.

"Washington just didn't have the edge against Miami that they did against us," said Landry, preparing the National Conference squad for next Sunday's Pro Bowl. "They weren't fired up.

"I don't know if it was their fans that made them that way or if they were just that way for us. But they weren't the same against Miami."

Miami's 14-7 Super Bowl victory over Washington was the chief topic for discussion Monday during workout sessions for the third Pro Bowl to bring together stars of both the NFC and AFC. The first two games, both played in Los Angeles, were split.

Landry could easily sympathize with Washington Coach George Allen who commented after the Redskin loss that even his veteran squad may not have been prepared to handle the "carnival atmosphere," stirred up in the week leading up to the contest.

"It is a tough row to hoe," Landry said of the pre-game buildup. "If you haven't gone through it and you don't know what to expect it is tough.

"The second time we were there (in which Dallas defeated Miami, 24-3) we took the attitude that (Miami Coach) Don Shula took this time. You just have to bear with it and don't let it worry you. It's just something to put up with."

Landry saw a large similarity between the way Washington played against Miami and the way Dallas played against Washington in the 26-3 NFC title game.

"Washington missed its big chances," he said. "They missed that field goal (in the third quarter) and the touchdown (when Jake Scott picked off a Billy Kilmer pass in the end zone in the fourth quarter).

Lesson Learned By Utah

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The Utah Stars learned a valuable lesson last week and they taught it to Carolina's Cougars, pulling off a 128-110 American Basketball Association victory Monday night in the only scheduled league game.

Last Saturday, the Stars had an 18-point first half lead on archrival Kentucky. Utah blew it in the third quarter and let the Colonels pull within two points before the Western Division leader was able to regain its footing and go on to beat the visitors, 105-96.

"We just decided as a team" before the Carolina game "that we've got to keep our offense moving," said assistant Stars' coach Larry Creger following the win over the Cougars. "So, we just kept our running game going."

Utah had the Eastern Division leader on the ropes Monday night and kept it there. While the Colonels kept pace nearly basket-for-basket in the second half, Utah's huge first half lead gave the Stars breathing room during the final two quarters.

The win gave Utah a solid five-game lead over the Denver Rockets in the West, and dropped Carolina's lead 2 ½ games in the East over Kentucky.

Esposito's Scoring Lead Up

NEW YORK (UPI) — Boston's Phil Esposito has increased his lead in the National Hockey League scoring sweepstakes thanks to a four-goal, one assist performance in the Bruin's 6-0 win over Buffalo on Sunday.

Esposito's 66 points now leads Montreal's Jacques Lemaire and Chicago's Stan Mikita by six with 29 goals and 37 assists. Rene Robert of Buffalo and Bobby Clarke of Philadelphia were tied for third with 57 points, three less than Lemaire and Mikita.

Southpaw Bryant Deserves Raise

Ron Bryant was top man on the pitching staff of the Giants last year with a 14-7 record and 2.90 ERA. When a young southpaw tops such veterans as Juan Marichal (6-16) and Sam McDowell (10-8), it is only natural that he should expect a substantial salary increase.

Bryant's $18,500 stipend in 1972 was substantially sweetened in the 1973 contract sent him by Jerry Donovan, Horace Stoneham's chief negotiator of Giant player agreements. But it didn't make Bryant jump with joy. Bryant would like Donovan to further sweeten it.

THIS WAS obvious after Bryant's first contract talk with Donovan. It was cordial but unproductive. It also was very brief, less than five minutes.

When Bryant emerged from Donovan's Candlestick Park office he was asked whether he had signed a new deal. He put a finger to his lips — a silent no comment.

When Donovan was asked if Bryant, last Giant to sign last season, had become the first to sign this year, Donovan wasn't as reluctant to comment.

"NO," SAID Donovan. "It was just a brief talk. I also talked briefly with Chris Speier and Willie McCovey."

Had Speier and McCovey signed?

"Not yet," said Donovan.

"I could," said Donovan, "but I'm not going to. There's been too much talk and speculation about player salaries in the past. If they want to disclose their own salaries that's their business. But I don't have any intention of pinpointing what they make."

BRYANT PINPOINTED his 1972 salary at $18,500 last November in a voluntary bankruptcy that listed debts of $52,490, including $15,000 owed Stoneham, and assets of $36,750, including property in Davis. He noted that the $18,500 was opposed to $21,000 he made in 1971.

The $2,500 salary cut was due to an up-and-down season Bryant had in 1971 when he was 7-3 before the All-Star break, 0-7 after it, for an overall 7-10 record.

Last year Bryant enjoyed his best season ever, pitching his way out of the bullpen into a regular starting assignment. In late June he spun back-to-back shutouts against the Cubs and Braves. By the end of July he stretched a win streak to six in a row.

THEN, ON AUG. 1 he was bombed in Atlanta — three-home runs in the seventh inning — by the same Braves he had shut out on a four-hitter at Candlestick June 26. Something obviously was wrong.

On Aug. 4 Bryant entered St. Luke's Hospital in San Francisco. He was suffering from viral pneumonia. It wasn't until Aug. 20 that he returned to action and he won five of his last seven decisions for his 14-7 finish which is worthy of a substantial salary increase.

Tide Pool Collectors: Conservation Urged

By AL GIDDINGS

Starting today and through next Saturday, there are a series of exceptionally low tides. Access to the intertidal zone area exposed by the low tide has in recent years become an acute problem. New laws have been written to give the tidal invertibrates protection.

Two state departments in California have issued joint statements calling on teachers to help conserve tide pool resources along the state's 1,100 miles of coastline.

THE STATEMENTS, which were mailed to all county and district superintendents of schools, were signed by Wilson Riles, state superintendent of public instruction, and Ray Arnett, director of the Department of Fish and Game.

It urges teachers to help students study and enjoy tide pool animals in their natural surroundings and to share specimens on a countywide basis when collected under special permits in accordance with regulations.

The policy urges the adoption of programs to control and reduce the collection of tide pool specimens by school groups and sets up procedures under which permits for collection may be issued.

Some tide pool animals under the Fish and Game regulations are still legal to take. All of these are listed in the Fish and Game Sport Fishing Regulations under Section 51. Note that the abalone season closed last Sunday. Cockles and clams are still open, but have regular set bag limits, also listed in the fishing regulations.

Another Hunter-Safety class will be started on Saturday, at the San Rafael Police Pistol Range. It will run from 9 to 11:30 a.m., each Saturday for eight weeks. There is a $5 fee to cover equipment and target costs. Jim Wright will be the instructor. (This is not to be confused with the class starting Jan. 22 at 7:30 p.m.)

OVER LAST WEEKEND, good catches of bass and sturgeon were noted. At the Black Point launching ramp, most anglers checked had some sturgeon and some bass. The anglers there fished the area between the Napa and Petaluma rivers.

Stan Kelly, the harbor master at the Marin Yacht Club, said he saw Don Rossi of San Rafael and two friends come in with three sturgeon.

Everyone is catching lots of flounders, too, so a fishing trip almost anywhere in San Pablo Bay is sure to be productive.

FOUR-HUNDRED persons, many of them from the Department of Fish and Game, are expected for the annual steelhead symposium Feb. 1 at the Cal-Neva Lodge at North Lake Tahoe.

Joint sponsors of the meeting, which will be held on the eve of the fourth annual American Fisheries society wildlife session are the California-Nevada Chapter of the AFS and California Trout.

Trout plants are scheduled for Stafford Lake near Novato this week. Last week's heavy rains have just about filled the reservoirs in Marin County and has eliminated water shortages for this coming season.

DETROIT'S TOP CHOICE SIGNS PACT

DETROIT (UPI) — Right-hander Larry Ike, the Detroit Tigers' No. 1 choice in the recent free agent draft, today gave up his final season of pitching eligibility at Michigan State University to sign a contract with Detroit.

Ike, 22, Grand Rapids, was signed to a contract with Montgomery of the Southern League. He reports to spring training at Lakeland, Fla., on March 15, when the current term ends.

The 6-foot-3, 195-pound pitcher leaves collegiate competition with the Spartans' all-time win mark. Ike began as a freshman and had a 23-6 career record to erase Ron Perranoski's previous Michigan State record of 21 wins.

Mayan Defeated In Phoenix By Baby Cassius

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Baby Cassius of Los Angeles scored a split 10-round decision over Mike Mayan of San Diego in a junior welterweight brawl Monday night at Riverside Ballroom.

The fight was toe-to-toe warfare from the opening bell and the outcome was not decided until the finale.

There were no knockdowns, but both fighters scored repeatedly with punches from all angles.

A packed house of 1,500 booed the decision.

Judge Ed Gary scored it 99-95 for Cassius; Judge Erik Thorne had Mayan the winner, 98-94; and referee Ralph Harmon scored for Cassius, 99-98. United Press International had it 97-97.

Houston's Trade Plans Finalized Over Weekend

HOUSTON (UPI) — General Manager John Breen of the Houston Oilers says a possible trade of the club's No. 1 college draft choice will be settled this weekend.

Trades cannot be made until after Sunday's pro bowl.

"If we do anything I'm sure it will be culminated this weekend," Breen said Monday. "Nothing is definite. There are about half a dozen teams that are interested in our No. 1."

Breen said the Oilers were interested in trading for several Los Angeles Rams, including running back Willie Ellison and guard Tom Mack or linebacker Isiah Robertson and the Rams' second round draft choice.

Austrian Skier Wins

GRINDELWALD, Switzerland (UPI) — Annemarie Proell led Austria's women skiers to another 1-2-3 sweep in today's world cup downhill race. Wiltrud Drexel was second and Brigitte Totschnig third, according to unofficial results.

Track Meet Shuns National Anthem

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Star Spangled Banner won't be played at the Olympic Invitational Track and Field Meet at Madison Square Garden Feb. 16 since "it has become a source of controversy and...nobody has to prove his patriotism at sports events."

Jesse Abramson, director of the meet, said Monday he and meet chairman Edwin H. Mosler, Jr., made the decision Dec. 15 not to play the National Anthem during the track and field meet.

"There is no rule or regulation about playing the anthem at sports events," said Abramson. "We saw no particular purpose in playing it. If we played it just before the meet started at 6:30 p.m. there would be only about 2,000 people in the Garden. There would be nobody to listen to it.

"It was a question of fitting it in. Why suddenly interrupt the meet at say 10 p.m. and play the Anthem before any particular event? We saw no relevance between the Anthem and a track and field meet. Nobody has to prove his patriotism at sports events."

An official of the Millrose Games, the only other indoor track meet scheduled for the Garden this season, that the Anthem "would be played as it has always been for the past 60 years of this meet."

Abramson noted that some fans and players at recent sporting events have not been standing at attention during the traditional playing of the Anthem.

"While there is no particular relevance to our decision," Abramson said, "the Anthem has become a source of controversy and the mood right now in this country has perhaps been the reason for this. I don't know. But what do we need this for now?"

Scoring Lead Kept By New York's Ward

For the past two weeks, it's been New England's Terry Caffery and Tommy Webster, a former California Seal. Before that, it was Winnipeg's Chris Bordeleau. And, still earlier, it was Houston's Gordon Labossiere.

Ward picked up three goals last week and through games of Sunday, Jan. 14, had 36 goals, 36 assists and 72 points. That's good enough for a seven-point lead over Andre Lacroix of Philadelphia, who has moved into second place. Lacroix has 27 goals and 38 assists for 65 points.

Lacroix is one third of the Blazers' "Fire Line" with Danny Lawson and Don Herriman. Together, they've scored 77 goals, been credited with 88 assists and piled up 165 points—more than any other line in the WHA.

Ward's 36 goals remain the best in the league and Quebec's J.C. Tremblay is still the leading playmaker with 48 assists. Tremblay also is the WHA's top scorer among defensemen with 56 points. John Schella of Houston has been charged with the most penalty minutes—145.

A Plea Of Innocent For Hayes

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — A plea of innocent was entered today for Ohio State football coach Woody Hayes on a misdemeanor charge arising from a camera-shoving incident with a photographer in the Rose Bowl.

Hayes was not required to appear for the arraignment and the plea was entered by his attorney, Andrew R. Edwards.

Art Rogers, a photographer for the Los Angeles Times, claimed Hayes pushed Rogers' camera back into his face while he was trying to take pictures on the field shortly before the opening kickoff of the New Year's day game with the University of Southern California.

Comeback Vow By USC's Davis

Combined AP & UPI

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Both legs encased in plaster, Southern California star running back Anthony Davis yesterday said there is "no question" that he will soon be on the athletic field again.

At a news conference at Centinela Valley Community Hospital, where he is recovering from injuries suffered in an auto accident, Davis told reporters from his wheelchair that it would only be a matter of weeks before he was playing baseball for the Trojans.

Davis, who is a star in both football and baseball, rose to fame this year as a former third-string tailback who went on to gain 1,000 yards for the no. 1 ranked Trojan football team, including a spectacular performance against Notre Dame in which he scored six touchdowns, a school record.

"I would certainly have to entertain the idea of coming back," he said here yesterday.

Wilkens, a former Seattle player-coach, was traded to Cleveland before the current NBA season began.

NEW YORK — Bill Bradley, Elvin Hayes and Jo Jo White headed the final 12 players to make the National Basketball Association all-star teams, it was announced today.

Joining Bradley (New York Knicks), Hayes (Baltimore Bullets) and White (Boston Celtics) on the East Squad were John Block of the Philadelphia 76ers, Jack Marin of the Houston Rockets and Bob Kauffman of the Buffalo Braves.

Added to the West squad were Chet Walker of the Chicago Bulls, Dave Bing and Bob Lanier of the Detroit Pistons, Gail Goodrich of the Los Angeles Lakers, Nate Thurmond of the Golden State Warriors and Bob Dandridge of the Milwaukee Bucks.

More Football

LOS ANGELES — Lance Rentzel, wide receiver for the Los Angeles Rams, has been ordered to appear Jan. 30 in Municipal Court for a pre-trial hearing on charges of possessing marijuana for sale.

Rentzel, who was placed on five-years probation in 1971 after pleading guilty to indecent exposure, was arrested last Wednesday at his Hollywood home where police said they seized a half-pound of marijuana.

Basketball

SEATTLE — Lenny Wilkens, former coach of the Seattle Supersonics of the National Basketball Association, says he certainly would think it over if someone offered him his old job back.

Swimming

SYDNEY — Triple Olympic gold medalist Shane Gould will not be affected by an Australian Swimming Union (ASU) regulation that could stop her swimming in the world championships in Belgrade in August.

Her father, Ron Gould, told newsmen yesterday Shane will be back in Australia from California in June in ample time to enter a training camp with the team selected for the world championships.

Track and Field

LAGOS, Nigeria — Ben Jipgo of Kenya raced the 3,000-meter steeplechase in 8 minutes, 20.8 seconds for a world record-equaling performance at the second All-Africa games.

Keep Records On Purchases

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I cannot find the purchase slips on the few stocks that I own. In the event that I want to sell them, how am I to establish my cost figures and work out my profits or losses? — E.E.

A. Your predicament illustrates one of my often repeated contentions: Investors should keep a written record of stock transactions in addition to saving their brokerage slips. These slips are very easy to misplace. A written account of all purchases and sales kept in a safe place is added insurance against such a loss.

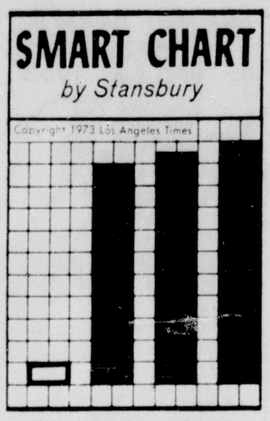
If your stocks were bought on separate occasions your canceled checks will provide the cost basis for your tax return. However, if these checks are no longer available or if your securities were all bought at one time then perhaps your broker will be able to supply the required information. You may also do some research in your library's back newspaper files, that is assmuming you know the dates these transactions were made. Your certificate will provide the stock transfer date. The prices you determine in this search will of course be only approximate and will have to be adjusted for any subsequent stock splits or dividends. Any odd lot fees and commission charges would have to be added in order to establish your full cost.

Q. I would like your opinion on Continental Corp. (NYSE) as a prospective purchase. — R.B.

A. This insurance holding company is trading at only 9 times projected 1973 earnings. The very modest evaluation accorded these shares reflects investors' attitude to the industry in general as well as Continental's inability to generate new business (new premiums increased only 2 per cent year to year in the September, 1972, period) and continued losses from 88 per cent-owned Diners' Club. The sluggish growth in new premiums is a temporary situation, however, reflecting sale of one subsidiary and the merger of another. The Diners' Club situation has improved with losses pared substantially. Shares are rated a buy for income and safety.

Pipeline Plan

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — Oil industry sources indicate Italy's stateowned ENI and the Japanese are showing interest in participating in Russia's proposed pipeline from Tyumen field in Siberia to the port of Nakhodka on the Sea of Japan.



"Everybody said the competition was big, dumb and slow to react. Everybody was wrong."

Stock Mart Continues Its Decline

NEW YORK (UPI) — Continued concern over the uncertainties of Phase III of President Nixon's economic plan and the threat of renewed inflation drove prices lower today on the New York Stock Exchange. Trading was moderately active.

The market has suffered in the past three sessions from investor uncertainties surrounding the President's Phase III economic plan, the possibility of a credit squeeze later this year, and the threat of renewed inflation. The Dow has lost almost 28 points in this period. Even positive Vietnam news has not been able to shake the market out of its economic concerns.

Chrysler Corp. was the most active issue, off ⅝ at 39½ on 165,600 shares. Chrysler announced the recall of 6,263 new passenger cars for two possible safety defects.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were slightly lower in fairly active trading. Bowmar Instruments was the most active issue, up 1⅞ at 23¾ on 42,100 shares.
